COMMANDER EVANS AND SCOTT'S SHIP, THE DISCOVERY.

States and Canada. The lectures are illustrated by still and moving pictures by H. G. Ponting, who accompanied the expedition, and by Dr. E. A. Wilson, who perished with Scott on the return trip from the south pole.

It was Commander Evans who led the party that discovered the bodies of Captain Scott, Dr. Wilson and Lieutenant Bowers. This was eight months after the tragic event took place. Wilson and Bowers died first and were in the attitude of sleep, their sleeping bags closed over their heads as they would naturally close them. Scott had thrown back the flaps of his sleeping bag and opened his coat. He wrote farewell letters and messages until death overcame him. A little wallet containing three notebooks was under his shoulders, and his arm was flung around Wilson.

Over the bodies the finders built a great cairn and surmounted it with a rude cross made from two skis—a most fitting monument and tomb. Other monuments have been erected to Scott, but there in the antarctic wastes is his real monument, for it marks the spot where he died—a gentleman unafraid; "there where his comrades found him in the field of his chosen labors; there where they fittingly enshrouded him in a white winding sheet of snow and left him "alone with his glory."

CUCARACHA SLIDE CHECKED.

Canal Engineers Say Channel Will Be Clear In Two Months.

Canal engineers express the opinion that the slide at Cucaracha virtually has been overcome and that it is now a mere matter of taking out the dirt, which is being removed much faster than it is coming into the canal. W.

THE CHANNEL AT CUCARACHA.

C. Comber, the dredging engineer at the slide, has expressed satisfaction at the outlook and said that he believed within two months the channel at Cucaracha would be at the required depth.

Plans have been completed to bring the depth of the channel in front of the slide to the forty-five foot final stage with the ladder dredge Corozal. All the other dredges will be removed. The width of the canal in front of the slide is now within forty-five feet of the specified 300 feet. This area will be removed with dipper dredges when they arrive from the United States.

We Want to Make Every Shot Count

"Don't fire until you see the whites in their eyes," was Gen. Warren's orders at Bunker Hill. Lack of ammunition was the reason for these orders, and the only hope of giving the British the "once over" was to make every shot count.

DEATH FOLLOWS LONG ILLNESS

field schools, he spent some time in Alfred University, Alfred, N. Y., and in Milton College, Milton, Wis.

He entered the sash and blind trade with Spicer & Ross, and was in charge of Spicer & Hubbard's shop, which is now the Spincer Manufacturing Company, at Madison avenue and West Third street. In 1878 he became associated with Charles Potter, Jr., & Co., being admitted to partnership in 1890, and when the company was incorporated in 1893 he took the office of secretary and general manager, which he held at the time of his death.

Among the civic connections, Mr. Titsworth was a member of the State Geological Survey of New Jersey; the National Civic Federation; director of the Dime Savings Institution and a member of the National Arts Club of New York.

Mr. Titsworth has been prominently connected with the work of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which he was a member, and with the denomination of which it is a part. He had a long experience as superintendent of the Sabbath School, as trustee of the church, and served as president of the General Conference of the churches of that denomination. He was also vice president of the American Sabbath Tract Society, and member of the Board of Manager. of the Missionary Society, and also of the Educational Society, and director of the Seventh Day Baptist Memorial Fund.

Mr. Titsworth never sought public office, but there are few activities that have the purpose of uplifting the life of the city, in which he has not at one time or another participated over. He was deeply interested in musical affairs, and had a share of the work of fostering and developing those interests in Plainfield. As chorister of the Seventh Day Baptist church for over thirty years, his direction of the music of that organization was most helpful.

On November 11, 185, he was married to Nettie Potter, daughter of Charles and Sarah Potter, of Plainfield, and is survived by her and his two sons, Charles Potter Titsworth and Roy Edward Titsworth.

Mr. Titsworth, in his modesty, expressed a desire that it should be said of him simply that "he was a man of kindly disposition, and was a great lover of children;" but those that knew him cannot be content with that simple statement, for no one ever knew him who did not count him as a strong and helpful friend, no one ever went to him for help without getting it, and no worthy interest for public benefit lacked his support.

The funeral will be held at the late home Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh Day Baptist church, will officiate.

All such ideas are entirely groundless as far as our establishment is concerned, though we are sorry to say many credit concerns have not yet waked up to the fact that fair treatment and right prices pay better than the old ways of discourtesy and overcharging.

In the games of the Dunellen Baraca Class Two-man Tournament, on the Presbyterian alleys, last evening, Braun and Parker took four games, losing none, thus making their hold on first place more secure. The Runyon and Fagely team, Runyon substituting for George Voehl, who is ill, won but one game out of the four that they rolled and Day and Bogardus fared no better.

Parker took the high man score of the tournament away from Arthur Voorhees by one pin, when he rolled 213. In their second game with Runyon and Fagely, the Parker and Braun team took the high team score of 364 away from C. Braun and Hodge, when they rolled 381.

FRANK GLASER WILL HAVE TO DEFEND COUNTY TITLE

Frank Glaser has been matched to defend his title of Union county trap-shooting championship against George Everett at the Tremley Gun Club traps on Memorial Day. The usual week-end crowd of gunning enthusiasts were out at the traps Saturday and some good scores were established. Wally Laing broke twenty-one and led George Everett by two points in a twenty-five bird match. Frank Glaser cracked nineteen out of twenty and defeated J. B. Pride and Charley Willis. Others at the traps were Arthur Roden and Billy Moore. All eight gunners turned in good scores.

The Tremley Club has picked a team composed of George Everett, Billy Moore, Wally Laing, Charley Willis and Frank Glaser and are out with a challenge to any five-man combination in the county. A new Western automatic trap has been installed at the suburban range.

TWO LOCAL BALL NINES ON WESTFIELD SCHEDULE

Manager F. W. MacDonald, of the Westfield Athletic Association team, known as the Cubs, is arranging a schedule for the season and would like to book such teams as the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Company nine, Rahway A. A., Roselle Park A. C. and teams of similar strength.

To date the following teams have been booked by the Westfield team: April 25, North Plainfield Alumni at Westfield; May 2, Monroe Avenues at Plainfield; May 9, Garwood Y. M. C. A. at Garwood; May 23, Park Baptists at Plainfield; May 30, A. M. Park Baptists at Westfield; June 6, Standards of Port Richmond, S. I., at Westfield; June 13, Garwood Y. M. L. at Westfield. Teams wishing games should write to F. W. MacDonald, Westfield Athletic Association, Westfield.

BASEBALL NOTES

Frank Chance has several likely looking youngsters who may be able to boost the Yankees a notch or two.

Tom Daly, the boy who showed the King of England how to break up a game with a hit, is still denting the fence for the White Sox.

Because they defeated several big league teams this spring the Columbus team is being touted as a winner in the American Association race.

If the Robinson Robins and the Bradley Tiptops continue to pastime so brilliantly the Brooklyn fans will have the time of their lives this season.

Some accounts say the Baltimore fans have given the Orioles the frosty shoulder since the Federal League Terrapins came to town.

Manager Clark Griffith, of the Senators, is sticking close to the dugout these days, leaving "Dutch" Schaefer and Nick Altrock to do the coaching.

Boston fans are already proclaiming young Scott a wonder. The St. Paul rookie is filling Heine Wagner's place at short and seems to be making good.

With Herr Hoblitzel, Herr Niehoff, Herr Herzog, Herr Groh and Herr Berghamme, Cincinnati has der glassiest infieldings vot is.

The Chicago Cubs and Boston Braves seem to be weak in the pitching department. With a reliable flinger added to each staff O'Day and Stallings would be able to command attention.

Another pitching marvel named Johnson has broken into headlines. Recently he showed the home folks in Jacksonville, Fla., how a no-hit no-run game is produced.

Dr. Flaherty has severed his connection with the Tewksbury insane asylum to join Hugh Duffy's baseball team in Portland, Me. It is not known whether the Doc has been engaged to play ball or to give the Portland players the "once over."

And then again, there were to be no more baseball stories written by star players, neither were the cut-ups to be permitted to do stunts on the coaching lines. But since that old Federal League butted in all kinds of major league rules seem to have been forgotten.

TEAM MINUS CAPTAIN BREAKS THE RECORD

Though he was not on hand to boost his aggregation's average in the Elks Club League series with the Nash quintet, last night, John Cose's aggregation hung up the high team score record of the tournament and copped three in a row from the rival combination. Cose did not figure in the actual pinning but was granted an average mark of 165 in the series.

The Nash aggregation was overwhelmed by some phenomenal pinning on the part of their opponents in the first and final clashes but managed to advance within thirty pins of the Cose outfit in the middle battle. McCullough is credited with the high individual score mark of the evening, taking a 203 in the second contest.

The scores:

TEAM NO. 8.
John H. Cose, Capt.

Gow	149	166	136
McCullough	177	203	170
Bennett	169	124	197

SWIMMERS' CORNER

Prospects were never brighter for keen competition and record performances in the national aquatic championships of the Amateur Athletic Union. The indoor season has been a remarkable one throughout, and the titular clashes will bring to the mark more and far better candidates than every before.

The first event to be competed for, the 500-yard swim, will be held in Pittsburgh on Saturday. It should be a great contest. Harry Hebner and Perry McGillivray, of the Illinois Athletic Club, are not favorites, but they will have to be at their best to defeat Joseph Wheatley, their Mercury Foot rival and new figures are likely to result.

After this event the scene will shift to Chicago, where all the contests but the relay race and fancy dive—to come off in New York on May 4—are scheduled to take place.

On Monday, the 220-yard swim should furnish a sensational race. Hebner is conceded the victory if he shows the speed he did in creating a world's mark of 2 minutes, 21 seconds; but his teammates, McGillivray and Raithel, as well as Huzzagh and White, of the Cherry Circle Club, and Wheatley, New York A. C., are close on his heels, so that the least break on Hebner's part may allow any one of them to capture first place.

On April 29 the schedule calls for the 50-yard dash and the 200-yard breast stroke contest. The former defies predictions. With Small, of the Pittsburgh A. A.; Hebner, McGillivray and Raithel, of Illinois, and Huzzagh, Harless, Buck, Mallen and Rawleigh, of the Chicago A. A., all traveling around 24 seconds, there is absolutely no telling who will finish in front.

In breast stroke swimming Michael McDermott, the Illinois holder ranks foremost, but his clubmate Schlemm, and Taylor and Blouke both Cherry Circle wearers, all have a look-in.

The following days will see titles awarded in the 100-yard sprint and 150-yard back stroke swim. Practically the same field will report for the free style century as for the 50-yard dash and the result is equally in doubt. Hebner, McGillivray, Raithel, Small and Huzzagh have a trifling advantage over their rivals, their own best performances are covered by a margin of one second, so it is anybody's race. The back stroke championship is generally conceded to Hebner, the Olympic champion, but rumor has it that Russell Dean, of the Brookline (Mass.) Swimming Club, will give him the race of his life, and may possibly beat him.

The likeliest candidates for the places are H. Buckland and M. Malsack, of the Pittsburgh Athletic Club, and C. Paviecke, of Chicago University.

The laurels in fancy diving should go to the Mercury Footer, Arthur McAleenan, if he exhibits his best form, but he has proved rather erratic of late, and competent judges believe that C. Wohlfeld, H. Heyn and H. Burton, of Chicago; F. Jouannett, of Boston; T. Barrett, of Columbia, and A. E. Downes and J. F. Dunn, of the New York Athletic Club, may take his measure unless he does his finest work.

The plunge for distance contest was asked for by the M. A. C., of St. Louis, alone, and as its building has since been destroyed by fire this feature will probably go by default.

GERMAN BARONESS TO GIVE A RECITAL

Will Appear With Prof. Spielter at Columbus Auditorium April 29.

Prof. Spielter will render several selections of his own composition on the piano, among which will be the two above-mentioned prize winners. This is the first concert tour of Baroness Olga von Turk-Rohn in America. This wonderful soprano, who is a great favorite among the Royal Courts of Europe, is a versatile artist, who sings with the same perfection as grand opera arias or colatur. Her voice is a broad rich soprano of columnious sound and beautiful sweetness. She has been decorated by more kings, cities and societies than any other living artist. She received a grand medal for art and science from the Emperor of Germany, the Empress of Austria, the kings of Roumania and Bulgaria. Upon her appearance her she will wear the handsome pearl necklace presented to her by the Czar and the decorations of the several kings and queens who honored her in Europe.

PLAINFIELD BANKS HOLD UP RESOLUTION

Will Await the Decision of Tax Board on Validity of Act.

Only one-half of the banks of Union county, affected by the Pierce bank stock taxation measure passed by the last Legislature, filed resolutions with the County Board of Taxation asking that the tax on their stock be assessed against the bank instead of against the individual stockholders. The remaining eight banks, including the four of Elizabeth, will await a court decision as to the validity of the act. If the legislation is held by the courts to be valid, these banks must furnish a statement of their stockholders and the number of shares owned by each when the tax assessments are levied next autumn.

The National Bank of Westfield, yesterday filed a letter with John R. Connolly, secretary of the Tax Board, which may be interpreted to meet the requirements of a resolution such as were filed by other banks, but until the matter is passed on by the tax board members they will be classed with the seven other banks which did not file resolutions.

In this class are the Elizabeth Trust Company, National State Bank, Union County Trust Company and Elizabethport Banking Company, of Elizabeth; Plainfield Trust Company, of this city, and the First National Bank, of Roselle.

Mrs. Frank C. Ard, chairman of the entertainment committee of the Monday Afternoon Club, has still a number of guests privileges in connection with the annual entertainment scheduled for tomorrow evening in Hartridge Auditorium. Any members desiring to avail themselves of these privileges may obtain tickets by calling at Mrs. Ard's residence, 604 Park avenue.

members of the council for the discussion of current topics and pertinent questions that are brought to their attention from time to time, but declared that the beauty of the government in a city does not lie in the officials alone. Mayor Stewart urged a co-operation on the part of citizens with the officials they have selected to represent them in the council and other departments and declared that the city government rested entirely on the individual's conception of good civic service.

He reviewed the question of consolidation since it was first introduced in 1907 and suggested that the association appoint a committee to go over the old records and revive interest in the proposition so that citizens may be appraised of the facts as they exist today. He concluded his talk by lauding the Board of Trade's trolley committee in the work being done to provide transportation of passengers between here and South Plainfield.

Mayor Clark confined his remarks to the consolidation question and showed the various benefits that would be derived by the combining of the two communities. He stated that the increasing property values in the business section of Plainfield were due largely to the patronage of North Plainfield people to the local merchants. Mayor Clark declared that he would willingly resign his office as Mayor of the borough if he knew that this action would assure annexation.

President Jenery, of the Board of Trade, outlined the work being carried on by the organization of which he is the head to secure trolley service to South Plainfield. He also stated that a committee from the Board of Trade would appear at the next meeting of the North Plainfield council to request a special election to be held on the consolidation question, believing that the first logical step is to get the borough voters in line.

Senator Pierce declared that there is now, and has been for a long time past, an inequality in taxation in this State and various suggestions have been offered to him as possible solutions to the problem ever before the people of New Jersey. Senator Pierce was a member of the commission that investigated the tax problem recently in this State and he said that when the report had been turned over to the Governor and approved by the latter official it was suggested that a law be enacted creating a permanent Board of State Tax Commissioners. He claimed that this body should have charge of all tax matters, formulate the rules, and fix the tax rates.

He suggested that the personel of the commission change with the administration, but that the routine officers be secure in their employment and protected by Civil Service. According to the speaker the routine officers would be county assessors and local assessors would be eliminated. The county would be cut into several districts and each would be large enough to keep assessors busy the year round. Senator Pierce said that the objection had been made to the elimination of local assessors by those who claimed it interferred with "Home Rule," but that so long as the county and State taxes are collected from individual taxpayers the county is the home and the State is the home, consequently the elimination of local assessors would not abolish "Home Rule."

NO PROTEST AGAINST SCHOOL

who guarantees to keep them within the cost set or not receive any fee showed pictures and designs of attractive edifices which he has erected in other cities for $60,000 to $90,000. He showed one plan of a building recently completed in Worcester, Mass., under his supervision, containing twelve rooms, a gymnasium and an assembly room, the latter convertible into a study room, at a cost of $60,000. Another was erected in Mechanicsville, N.Y., to accommodate 600 pupils, for $83,000, and another in Millbury, Mass., at a cost of $47-000 accommodates 350 pupils in fourteen class rooms.

The members of the Board displayed much interest in the figures and plans shown by Mr. Simpson. They were especially interested in the fact that if a building, such as that shown in Worcester were built level with the ground, that is without depressed basement, two more school rooms would be available on the street level, making it a fourteen, instead of a twelve room building. While no formal action was taken by the Board in the matter, Mr. Simpson was asked to leave his sketches, and it is probable that his work will have careful consideration.

The committee of creditors of the Exner company, the general contractor for the High School addition came to ask the board to give them an opportunity to investigate the affairs of the contracting company and their own legal rights in the matter before calling in the bonding company to complete the contract. While the creditors have not yet had time to formulate a definite plan of action it is hoped that an arrangement can be made to enable them to reduce their losses by carrying out the Exner company's contract.

The board assured the committee of their wish to assist them in every way consistent with the protection of the taxpayers, and fixed next Monday night as the date to which they would wait before availing themselves of their rights under the contract so that the creditors might have a chance to decide what they wished to do.

A conference has been arranged this week between former Judge Gilbert S. Collins, counsel for the Board of Education and Judge Isaac Runyon, who is the attorney for the creditors' committee. It is probable that after this conference the creditors will agree on a proposal to be made to the board for completing the building under an arrangement with the creditors' committee.

Three local coal dealers were on hand at the meeting last night to bid for the coal supply which the board will purchase next year. Boice, Runyon Company, Wadley & Goodenough and the Consumers Coal Company all presented seal bids for supplying the nine hundred tons which the schools consume each year.

The lowest prices on pea coal were made by the Boice, Runyon Company, and their bid for buckwheat coal was the same as that of the Consumers' company. On the egg and stove coal Wadley & Goodenough had a shade the better of the bidding.

The bids were referred to the fuel committee who will later announce the award after a comparison of the prices and qualify each grade offered.

ANOTHER GAME.

Manager Beckman, of the borough High School nine, has secured the Rutgers Prep. team that was to have played here two weeks ago, for next Monday. The game was postponed because of the interference of the Easter vacation. The locals will play a return game in New Brunswick in the early part of next month. The game that was booked for Woodbridge yesterday has been indefinitely put off because the managers have not yet been able to agree on another date.

SPELLING BEES.

When President Jeffery of the Board of Trade queried some of the local business men who are employing graduates of the locat schools, as to the ability of those young people, several of the answers indicated that the greatest trouble encountered was to find good spellers. In a half joking way it was suggested that two teams, one of business men and the other of high school students, be formed, and an old fashioned spelling bee held. Perhaps that suggestion is not so much of a joke as was intended when it was made. We believe that the people who are not good spellers are not confronted entirely to recently graduated pupils of the public schools, but are found among men who have college educations, and who ccupy high positions in the community. Not long ago the Daily Press received a communication from a well known educator in which the word trousers was spelled with a "w" in place of the "u," and frequently in correspondence written in long hand misspelled words are found, much more frequently in fact than in letters written by recently graduated stenographers. Many famous men are said to have been notoriously bad spellers.

The Newark Evening News sums the matter up editorially in such a way as to show that bad spelling can almost be said to be the rule, rather than the exception, when they make a plea for the old fashioned spelling bees. Says the News:

"Any one who can advance a good reason why the old spelling bee should not be revived as a means of entertainment, of pleasure and of profit will kindly stand up, raise the right hand in an assertative manner and speak promptly. Spelling apparently is becoming a lost art. There was a spelling contest among the schools of Sussex county a short time ago and several hundred pupils attempted to spell correctly 250 words. Only four were successful. Two of the winners were students in grammar schools of Newton, and the other two were from rural schools. High school pupils all failed.

"Time was when to have a reputation as a quick and accurate speller was to be enviably known as an educated individual. The trouble is nowadays that spelling is skimmed over like a lot of the other elementary and foundational branches of schooling. Perhaps the requirements that in later life await the seeker after knowledge may have something to do with this. The business man has a stenographer to whom he dictates his correspondence. The business man leaves the detail of spelling to the stenographer, and the stenographer keeps a dictionary in her desk. Some day spelling will come back into favor again, and then there will be general regret that the old spelling bee was abolished.

It is extremely unfortunate that the contractors for the new high school building have become bankrupt. If there is one thing more than another that is needed in this city it is more school room, and if any complications should arise to delay the completion of the new addition before the schools open in the fall, the present crowded condition will not be a circumstance to what will then be encountered by the Board of Education. The committee, consisting of C. C. Randolph, William A. Garrigues and Charles E. Loizeaux, representing the creditors, is one of able local men, and if it is possible for them to arrange to complete the work, rather than have the Board of Education fall back upon the bonding company who guaranteed the Exner firm, the probabilities are that the building will be ready in the fall.

The proposition of the Public Affairs Committee of the City Council that the garbage men be put under strict regulation is a splendid one, and is the next best thing to having a system directly under the supervision of the city government. It is to be hoped that such regulation will be brought about speedily. Probably the best suggestion of all is that hereafter all ash carters be required to use one type of wagon, to be approved by some local authority. That is much desired, for the present carts are in most instances sifting ashes on every street they use.

Some members of Congress never lose the opportunity to talk, no matter how important may be the business which they are delaying. That seems to be the sum and substance of the holding up of the resolution authorizing the President to proceed with his Mexican policy. Every delay gives Huerta more courage, and makes him think that the people of this country do not approve of the action of President Wilson.

The Daily Press has completed arrangements for a complete news service during the Mexican difficulties, following its usual custom of only printing news regarding Plainfield except in matters of national importance. The service secured is second to none, as has been demonstrated during the past two evenings by the exclusive stories printed in Plainfield only in this newspaper.

It's a toss-up as to whether the Mexican war or the baseball scores attract more attention.

WILSON GIVEN WAR POWER

The most striking speech of the whole debate was made by Senator Root of New York, who attacked the administration's foreign policy in harshest terms.

The speech of Senator Root held the attention of the senate for more than an hour. As he proceeded railing at the Democrats for conspicuous inefficiency and deplorable ineptitude in their handling of the international relations of the United States the Democratic members of the senate squirmed in their seats.

The speech was wormwood and gall to the men who have followed the administration blindly from triumph to triumph in the course of moving through the halls of congress the earlier administration measures of the Wilson program.

Following upon the speech of Senator Lodge, in which the Wilson-Bryan foreign policy was warmly attacked, the Root speech came as salt in a raw wound.

Mr. Root's Prediction.

Mr. Root declared that when the senate had acted on the resolution reported by the senate committee on foreign relations the country would be plunged into a war with consequences that no man could foretell.

In withering language Mr. Root denied that the Tampico incident mentioned in President Wilson's address was the provocation for the administration's rushing to arms. He declared, with emphasis, that the real cause back of the president's action was the destruction of American lives and property during long months that anarchy and riots prevailed in Mexico.

The New York senator intimated in language that was not lost on Secretary Bryan or other Democratic leaders present that in employing the armed forces of the government against the Mexican republic the administration was attempting to lull the American people into a state of forgetfulness that the policy of "watchful waiting" had proved an utter failure.

Protesting against the "war" resolution reported by the senate committee at the instance of the administration, Mr. Root declared that it was inadequate in its statement of the reasons given for turning loose the dogs of war against Mexico.

Lodge Opens Debate.

Senator Lodge opened the senate debate.

"In a situation of the highest seriousness, such as now confronts the congress, it is well to remember that the responsibility of the senate is greater than any other branch of the government," he said.

"When the president comes to congress and lays before it a controversy with a foreign nation," he added, "he comes to the branch of the government in whose hands rest peace or war. When he submits it to congress he takes the last step that precedes peace or war.

"He has come to us. I think that he has a right to do so. With congress in session it would have been unwise for him to have proceeded further without the sanction of congress."

Mr. Lodge asserted that it took congress longer to pass the Spanish war declaration than was planned in the present case. Senator La Follette refreshed senatorial memories by stating that the Spanish war resolution was before congress many days, with extensive debate.

"It was seven days between the receipt of the message from President McKinley and the adoption of the resolution," Lodge stated.

LOCAL BOYS AIDING IN MEXICAN FIGHT

Several Plainfielders Among Those in Vicinity of Vera Cruz and Tampico.

The shedding of blood at Vera Cruz and the immediate prospects of general fighting in and about Mexico recalls the fact that many Plainfielders are directly concerned in the present martial proceedings. Many of Uncle Sam's battleships number a local boy in their crews and others are in the army service. In addition, there are a large number of Plainfielders or former Plainfielders living in various parts of the besieged country.

William Baglen, a grandson of Captain and Mrs. William C. Smith, of Grandview avenue, is one local boy who probably participated in last night's proceedings at Vera Cruz. He is a bluejacket on the "Prairie," which landed some of the marines fired on in the seizure of the custom house. Percy Burner, son of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Burner, of Jackson avenue, a gunner on board the Nashville; David Buckley, nephew of Mrs. George Mehl, of Madison avenue, is on the North Dakota; Murray Kitchen, of Central avenue, and Albert Patterson, of West Front street, are on the Arkansas, stationed off Vera Cruz, and Ensign William Burtis, of Fairview avenue, is on the New Jersey.

Edward Eskerson, Lewis and Edward Mattox and Frank Hepner are also included in the list of Plainfield boys who are in the navy. William Brown, son of Mrs. William Brown, of Watchung avenue, is one of the cavalrymen stationed on the Texan border who will be moved over to Mexican territory at almost any moment.

The Misses Julia and Marie Bourgeois, who lived for many years on Randolph road, have been conducting a private school in Mexico City for the past ten years. They have been very successful from a financial point of view and have a handsome home at Mixcouac, a suburb of the capital. Mrs. Henrietta Gulick, of West Third street, has been visiting them since last fall. She had intended starting for home some time ago but held off because of rebel activities.

CONTROL VERA CRUZ

charge of the American government. Mexico, he says, has done all possible in honor to prevent such a situation. The army of four hundred thousand men will be in readiness in twenty days, he says, and Mexico will be defending not only her own sovereignty, but that of all Latin America. This Mexico will do even should the war last twenty-five years, he says.

Measures were taken today by sending detachments to protect all legations.

Vera Cruz, April 22.—Naval forces of the United States took possession of the port of Vera Cruz, but in the fighting that followed the unopposed landing of nearly 1,000 marines and bluejackets four Americans were killed and twenty were wounded.

The loss of the Mexican garrison which resisted the American occupation from noon until evening is believed to have been heavy. One report says 200 Mexicans were killed.

The American forces have complete control of the business district and most of the other sections of the city. The federal garrison is reported to be in flight toward the west.

Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher, in command of the warships here, the battleships Florida and Utah and the transport Prairie, gave the port officials notice of his purpose to seize the city. To a request, sent through Consul Canada, that he surrender the city without resistance, General Maas sent a curt refusal.

The Peaceful Landing.

The landing movement started in the most calm and peaceful manner possible.

The first detachment, comprising fourteen marines, landed at pier No. 4 without meeting any resistance.

Thousands of the Mexican population now swarmed to the wharves in a spirit of idle curiosity to see the general landing of the American forces, which proceeded swiftly and without a sign of disorder or the slightest objection from the federal authorities, civil or military.

Inside of fifteen minutes after the first boatload reached shore the Americans were in possession of the cable and telegraph office, the postoffice, and almost all the public buildings in the lower part of the city near the property of the Terminal company.

The number of marines and bluejackets who had been put ashore had reached about a thousand, who were spread all over the lower part of the city.

Not Sure About Fighting.

Up to this moment there had been not the slightest evidence of action by the Mexican authorities.

Evidently the Mexican officers made up their minds very quickly, for in barely fifteen minutes desultory firing at the invading force began, but apparently without concerted action or in accordance with any general orders.

Real Conflict Begins.

At 12:30 o'clock, however, the federal garrison of 800 men left their barracks and scattered in small detachments through the central portion of the city. Some of the Mexican soldiers took positions on the roofs of houses. Others did their sharpshooting from second story windows. Still others popped briskly away from street corners.

The Mexican soldiers were joined in their resistance by some of the more courageous citizens, who took occasional pot shots at the Americans from their own houses.

The American forces had not been idle following the first shots from the Mexican side. Detachments were posted at the heads of all the streets in the section of the city they occupied and kept up a sweeping fire with machine guns down the principal streets. They also returned the fire of marksmen whom they spied on the roofs. All this was in the way of self defense.

Soon the Mexicans opened fire with artillery. Then the Prairie went into action with her guns, of which she has ten, all less than four inch. So accurate was the fire of the Prairie's marksmen that the Mexicans were shelled from their positions, retiring slowly toward the western part of the city.

At 1 o'clock the first wounded American was brought to the railroad terminal.

The firing continued with some briskness most of the afternoon. Soon after 4 o'clock a force of bluejackets advanced to the barracks of the city garrison and found that it had been completely evacuated.

Fletcher Warns Garrison.

Captain H. McLaren P. Huse, Rear Admiral Fletcher's chief of staff, came ashore in the midst of the fighting to try to get into communication with General Gustavo Maas, commander in chief of the garrison here. He carried a warning from the American commander to the effect that his patience was exhausted and that if the Mexicans continued to resist the fleet would shell the city.

When William W. Canada, the American consul, notified General Maas that marines were about to be landed and requested him to co-operate with the American forces to maintain order in the city, the Mexican commander replied that this was impossible.

Mexican resistance in the presence of such an overwhelming force can be explained only on the ground that they desired to save their faces by making a show of fight, however futile.

The cargo of war munitions for the federal government aboard the Ypiranga, which arrived here this morning, was captured by the United States landing force. It consists of 250 machine guns, 20,000 rifles and 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition.

Captain Huse tried to ascertain where General Maas was so that he could send somebody under a flag of truce to propose an armistice and inform the Mexican commander that the purpose of the landing of United States troops had been accomplished by the capture of the Ypiranga's cargo.

Campaign Planned.

Washington, April 22.—Now that open hostilities have been begun between the United States and Mexico plans are being rushed for the actual opening of an extensive campaign, which probably will end only after Mexico City has fallen and the entire country has been pacified.

As viewed in Washington the shots fired at Vera Cruz will inflame all of Mexico against the United States. Army and navy officers are certain that it will be only a short time when differences between the Constitutionists and Huerta will have vanished and the United States will find itself confronted by all Mexico reunited against a common enemy.

Although Carranza up to this time has refused to indicate his attitude toward an invasion of Mexico by the United States, it may be only a question of a few days when some depredation upon American life or property along the border will inflame sentiment in northern Mexico, and the United States will be confronted with the necessity of dealing with northern Mexico just as firmly as it is now dealing with Huerta and the so called federals.

Diplomatic Conferences Held.

Up to the time of the firing upon Americans at Vera Cruz President Wilson and his advisers had in mind a plan which they hoped would lead to a peaceful settlement of the Mexican troubles. Secretary Bryan outlined this plan to foreign representatives in Washington in a series of conferences at the state department. These conferences, however, took place before the news had been received that the federal forces had killed four Americans and wounded twenty others.

The diplomats who were summoned to the state department included Sir Arthur Spring Rice, the British ambassador; Ambassadors Riano of Spain, Von Bernstorff of Germany, Jusserand of France, Chida of Japan and Dr. Dumba of Austria. The Italian ambassador also was invited, but was unable to attend. These ambassadors were representatives of the countries most interested with the United States in Mexico.

Secretary Bryan saw them one at a time and informed them that the United States had landed marines at Vera Cruz and was about to establish a blockade of that port. Mr. Bryan gave them to understand that the ships of neutrals would not be interfered with, but that all munitions of war, including such supplies as Huerta might use in the support of a campaign, would be seized by the United States at the custom house. This property would be held subject to the desire of the consignor to remove it from the country.

In order to strengthen the naval forces at Vera Cruz for any test of strength that may be involved in holding that port after its seizure, the navy department has ordered all but four ships of the torpedo flotilla to abandon Admiral Badger's command and steam for Vera Cruz at twenty-two knots.

A report, as yet unverified, has been received at the state department that Huerta is tearing up the railroad tracks between Mexico City and Vera Cruz.

Huerta showed his teeth when the United States warships prepared to seize the custom house and halt a vessel of the Hamburg-American line with 10,000 rifles and 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition. The local commander, General Maas, by Huerta's orders posted strong forces with machine guns on the islands before the city. They have been ordered to resist to the last any attempt to land American forces.

It is known here that the shipment which the administration is so anxious to prevent reaching Huerta consists of 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition and 200 of the latest models of Krupp rapid fire machine guns.

Huerta, it is understood, ordered these munitions specifically to hold and defend the railway from Mexico City to Vera Cruz. The seizure of this line is the very first step contemplated by army and navy strategists to follow occupation of Vera Cruz and the initial warlike measures. If Huerta gets arms to defend it the task of the United States would be infinitely hard.

Orders Approved.

The Vera Cruz episode completely overshadowed every other development in Mexico. It was the subject of a long conference of the cabinet, and it was plainly a cause of grave concern to the president and his advisers. It resulted in a series of wild rumors.

It is known that the president has approved a series of general orders dealing with Mexico. These, it is understood, outline in every essential detail the procedure to be followed in blockading the Mexican coast.

Copies have been transmitted to the admirals commanding on the east and west coasts and also in confidence to the representatives of foreign governments here. These orders will be released by wireless immediately after the president signs the joint resolution authorizing his use of the army and navy dealing with the Mexican situation.

Secretary Daniels left the cabinet meeting and hurried to his own office. He was plainly very much concerned and when told of the various reports concerning Admiral Fletcher and the action to be taken or already taken at Vera Cruz said:

"It would be very unwise for me to say anything at the present moment. The resolution authorizing the president to use the armed forces of the United States is now before the senate. Until it has acted and this matter has cleared we can make no announcement."

TROPHIES AWARDED FOR CLUB'S BOWLING MEET

One of the most successful and best attended receptions yet conducted in the new Columbus Club on West Front street, was held last night, three hundred members and friends of the organization taking advantage of an elaborate program of social amusement planned by the house committee. While dancing proved to be the leading feature with excellent terpischore music furnished during the entire evening, many of the guests engaged in other forms of entertainment. The bowling alleys were frequented by many as were also the billiard and pool tables.

During the evening the committee in charge of the Columbus Club Bowling League that has just closed made the awards to the prize winners.

TROUT PLENTIFUL IN JERSEY LAKES

A FEW LIVE "TIPS"

Fish Biting Well in All of the State Stocked Ponds—Bait to Use for the Speckled Beauties—August's Sultry Days Looked Forward to.

Many Plainfield anglers are taking advantage of the season in which anglers for trout can participate in their favorite sport under the wing of the law and some excellent catches have been reported in nearby streams. Several local fisherman returned home last night with good catches and others started out this morning. The small lakes near Watchung and other streams at the head of the Watchung lake are stocked and the speckled beauties are biting readily.

Later in the season, in August's sultry days, "the kind we are after" seek the deep pools under the banks of some small river in the vicinity (third in size upward from the tiny rivulet), or sojourn at the bend, where the great trees cast a grateful shade all day and the waters are tempered to the nice requirements of this finny arisocrat by sub-aqueous springs.

Here the lads "in swimmin'" will often see several great trout at one time lying motionless near the bottom in very deep water, absolutely refusing the hook, which may be even dragged across their bodies by the urchins in their desire to "hook one of 'em up."

Should a sudden shower come through the notch and roll the water, the knowing angler may successfully invade their realm by wading down stream and using a long line without singer with a good-sized chubs tail on a rather large hook.

Such a bait floating on the swelling flood and carefully guided from side to side will often fill a basket in a short while on a dark or rainy day, for it is then that the great brook fish feed.

Then, too many big brook trout go out of cold water lakes and ponds during the early spring and run down outlet streams for a mile or two in search of food which is there in great abundance at such times.

The fisherman then wonders how such large fish can expect to find food in waters that will shortly hardly feed the local "shorts" and dace that stay there. He takes "the gifts that the gods provide' with the usual philosophy of the craft and fills a basket with these strangers in half an hour that it generally requires hours of fishing in the best waters of that particular stream to accomplish.

The wise trout that thus escape the chance angler in such unfrequented localities soon find the food supply growing scarce, so they migrate back to the hidden pond, where they were planted by some sportsmen a few years before when they came to him from the State hatchery.

There the persistent fly fisher will seek them in August among the lily pads at the mouths of cold inlets if he will row up there in the old punt formerly used for the water killing of hounded deer, a "sport" now happily, ended forever in this State. These will generally be large fish, and furnish great sport, quite a change from the more rigorous river trouting.

ROD AND REEL

Ex-Governor Franklin Murphy was one of the first of the New Jersey fishermen to cast a fly on the Long Island streams on the opening day. He has made it a practise for years to be one of the first over there, and he has a special stream that he delights to fish.

One of the Sheepshead Bay boats came in from the fishing banks Sunday with fully a hundred codfish on board that were caught by fishermen from the cities, who had a lot of fun. Some of the codfish weighed over thirty pounds, and the captain said that he had probably struck a school that was on its way north, as it is rather late in the year to catch such big fish in this section.

HIGH INDIVIDUAL SCORE FOR PARKER

Parker and R. Braum Also Snatched the High Team Score With a 364.

The five-man team representing the firemen of the Central Railroad of New Jersey, defeated the crack Bayonne Third Ward team at Elizabetr, last night, when they took two out of the three games that were rolled by close scores.

On the Central team were two Dunellen men, Arthur Voorhees and "Dory" Day. Voorhees was not only the consistent bowler of the evening but he obtained the hight score, 237, as well. "Dory" Day, the other Dunellen man, while only averaging 137 for the three games, had the honor of making the most difficult spare of the evening.

SHIFTS IN BORO LINEUP FOR ROSELLE ENCOUNTER

Captain Ralph Smalley, of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, will take his team to Roselle for the second meeting of the season, tomorrow afternoon. The boroughites' first game was with this team and the locals scored a 10 to 6 victory as an opener. The Roselle boys will be out for revenge tomorrow and the invaders will find things hot. Several changes have been made in the borough lineup and if the team takes the field in the game as it has in practice Burner will be on first base, Dilts in the shortfield and VanMater in one of the gardens.

Whether or not this change will help the team remains to be seen. Denny will probably start for the "Canadians" on the mound and Benedict will oppose him. The team will be accompanied by a large crowd of rooters.

"BIG JEFF" SUED.

Jeff Tesreau, the Giants' big pitcher, was greatly surprised at Ebbets Field, yesterday afternoon, when he was served with papers in a breach of promise suit. The matter was kept very quiet and last night Tesreau refused to divulge the name of the plaintiff in the action. None of the officials of the New York Club knew any of the details of the suit, as Tesreau refused to discuss the matter. Tesreau was married last year shortly after the world's series.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Disappointment was expressed yesterday by athletic experts over the rules sent out to govern the relay races at the meet of the University of Pennsylvania on April 25, which this year becomes of international importance because of the entry of a team from Oxford University, England. The announcement was made some time ago, that for the first time at this meet the passing of the baton from one runner to another would be insisted on instead of merely requiring the men to touch hands. This was regarded as a good move toward educating American runners in the style of racing demanded at the Olympic games, and was welcomed accordingly by all those interested in the success of the United States at Berlin. In the last Olympic games the American team was disqualified for not relaying in the proper manner, and lost the title, though the quartet was without doubt the fastest entered. It appears that the management of the relay carnival instead of selecting the rules in vogue at the last Olympics, and almost certain to be followed at Berlin, has picked up from somewhere an old set of A. A. U. rules which although generally disregarded look imposing. Unfortunately these differ materially from the Olympic conditions and therefore will not carry out the scheme of Olympic education so thoroughly as expected.

Followers of polo in this country are already expressing doubt over the possibility of the American team retaining the championship this year. The Englishmen have been hard at work for about a month at Madrid, and already reports come that the team has been picked and that from now on practice will consist in the development of team work. While the Americans have been doing considerable work this winter at various places in the South and West, those that are likely to make the team have only had a few days together at Lakewood. The ponies, too, need the work, and there again the English have the lead, for the string of fifty at Madrid have been getting plenty of practice, while some of the animals for the team here have not yet been chosen. The defenders have the advantage, however, in being at home, and there is no doubt that at least Milburn is a superior player to any of those who will represent Great Britain. The others that will make up the American four are at least the equals of the Englishmen. It is more a question of condition of the animals and of team work than anything else, and in these the four across the water have the lead at present.

In about one month more there will be more ball players out of a job than one can throw a stick at. Nearly all the Federal teams are recruited up to thirty or more players, and many of the major leagues are carrying more than that number, some even as high as forty-five. When the weeding out season opens there is sure to be a wholesale canning bee, in which the class AA, A, B and C leagues will join.

Ironies of small town baseball—A local sporting scribe contends that in order to be credited with a hit the batter must smash the ball out of the infield. Whaddayamean bunts don't count?

A new one on medical science—"Jack Ricketts was well able to—(get this now)—endure the X-ray yesterday when he learned that his collection of players had bested the First Baptist boys."—Some pain killer.

Yougottahandit to the guy who breaks into National Pastime prominence in an alumni uniform, however, at this particular time when the Mexicans are hunting American blood. That warfare on Hyde Oval Saturday afternoon was served up as a "prelim."

Query—Has Plainfield a city flagpole, and if so, where is it located?—V. B.

Answer—At one time Plainfield had a city flagpole at the intersection of Park avenue and Front street, but this has since been taken down and a part of it removed to the city High School building's premises on West Ninth street. The High School flagpole serves as a city pole at the present time.

MAY LAUNCH TWO BOOMS AT ELIZABETH DEMOCRATS DINNER

Elizabeth, April 22.—Two "booms" are scheduled to be launched tonight at the Democratic dinner in Turn Hall, to which Governor Fielder has been invited. One is that of Mayor Percy Stewart, of Plainfield, who wants to be State Senator, and the other is that of General Dennis F. Collins for Mayor.

The dinner is announced as a "harmony" affair, and members of the party have been urged to attend. General Collins will be toastmaster. While he has declared that he will support any Democrat nominated for Mayor and that he is not seeking the place, the rank and file believe he is ready and willing and that his "boom" will start when he is introduced as toastmaster. No serious opposition to him exists apparently.

The same cannot be said of Mr. Stewart, however. He has been active at public functions in all parts of the county of late, as has General Collins in this city, but there are at least two others who have an ambition similar to that of the Plainfield man. William A. Leonard, of Elizabeth, and Francis Dobbins, of Rahway, members of the Assembly, would also like to serve in the upper house, their friends say, and a quiet boom has been started.

Practical Fashion Hints

By Alice Gibson

There is no reason this season why the woman who makes her own dresses should not make her coats also. The day of the notched tailored collar and rever is practically past except for certain garments, such as the riding habit and other strictly tailored garments. With a little care a coat may be turned out at home quite as satisfactorily as if made by a tailor.

This design, 7889, is excellent for serge, cloth, moire or any favored suiting material.

In cutting a coat greater care must be taken, perhaps, than with any other garment to see that the pattern is placed properly on the material. The perforations showing the straight of the material should be followed implicitly for if the grain of the material does not run in the right direction the coat will never fit as it should; the fronts will fall apart when it is unbuttoned, and there will be various other little annoying defects that mark the garment "home-made." In stitching the seams begin one at the top and stitch down; the corresponding seam must be started at the bottom and stitched up; this will prevent any twist which might otherwise occur.

This coat may be made in size 36 with 2½ yards of 42 inch material.

The pattern is cut in 5 sizes: 34 to 42

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

Be sure to state correct size measuring over the fullest part of the bust for dimensions.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

Some Cookery Suggestions

SOUPS FROM LEFTOVERS.

DINNER MENU
Cream of Peas Soup
Fricassee of Fowl
Hominy Croquettes
Mashed Potatoes
Lettuce Salad
Custard Souffle

THE odds and ends of meat or vegetables from one day's meal may be made into a soup for the next. Almost any vegetable combinations make good soup. If unsightly they may be strained from the soup before serving.

Tapioca, spaghetti, macaroni and vegetables cut into fancy shapes make nice garnishes for soups. Even the simplest soup nicely served is more appetizing than an elaborate soup that comes to the table in an unattractive form. The vegetables should be boiled in salted water until tender and added to the soup just before serving. Quick cooking tapioca may be cooked in the soup.

Nice Cream Soups.

Pea, Potato and Tomato Soup.—Take one pint of yellow split peas sifted, one pint of mashed potatoes and one pint of tomatoes. Heat, sift, add hot milk to make like thin cream sauce, then one scant tablespoonful of butter and salt and pepper desired.

Carrot, Green Pea, Corn and Tomato Soup.—Take one pint of mashed carrots, one pint of green peas rubbed through colander, one pint of corn pulp and one and one-half pints of tomatoes. Heat together, add one cupful of hot milk and rub through the puree sieve, reheat, add a tablespoonful of butter in bits and salt desired.

Nourishing Foods.

Potato, Onion, Tomato and Barley Soup.—Take one-half pint of stewed onions and rub through a colander. Add to it one-half pint of sifted tomatoes and one pint of mashed potatoes. Add one-half pint of cooked barley or any cooked cereal and milk enough to make the consistency of plain cream. Heat and add butter the size of an egg and salt enough to make palatable.

Bean, Corn, Potato and Tomato Soup.—Take one pint of navy bean pulp, one pint of corn pulp, one-half pint of mashed potatoes, one and one-half pints of strained tomatoes, one small onion or a little celery and heat together. Put through a puree sieve and add enough hot milk to make a creamy consistency. Season with a piece of butter the size of a small egg and a little salt just before serving.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Mother Goose Entertainment For Robbie.

"A NUMBER of children who went to a Sunday school belonging to a big city church used to enjoy meeting together every week," said daddy. "The head teacher of the Sunday school saw that all the lessons were made so interesting that the children looked upon going to Sunday school class as a great pleasure.

"But one Sunday one of the class was not present. It was a very unusual thing for any one to miss Sunday school, and all the children wondered what had become of Robbie Goldsmith.

"The teacher, too, was worried and eager to know what had happened to Robbie. So she promised to find out during the coming week if Robbie was ill.

"When the next Sunday came all the children, seeing that Robbie was absent again, asked:

"'Teacher, did you see Robbie?'

"'Yes,' replied the teacher sadly; 'I saw Robbie and his mother.

"'What has happened to him?' they all cried.

"'A dreadful accident occurred. Robbie was on his way to school Monday, the day after he was last here, and in getting off a car a little before it stopped he fell and broke his leg. He managed to hobble into another car and went right home again. When he got home his mother sent for the doctor, who said that Robbie had hurt himself very badly—in fact, quite seriously—and he would never be able to walk again unless he had an operation. He would have to go to the hospital, and the operation would be very expensive, so expensive that his mother and daddy can't afford it, and yet they feel he should have it so he may be able to walk.'

"'I'll tell you what we can do,' said one little boy. 'We'll give an entertainment and charge the children 25 cents and the grownups 50 cents. We'll get every one in the church to come, and then we can help Robbie get well.'

"'What kind of an entertainment could we give?' asked another child.

"'Why,' continued the little boy, 'we could have a Mother Goose entertainment. We could all dress up as Mother Goose characters and sing and act Mother Goose songs.'

"'That's a splendid idea,' said the teacher. 'I'll help you get it up.'

"The entertainment was arranged and finally given. It was a huge success, and after it was all over Robbie's classmates put the money in a large yellow envelope, which the teacher said, she would take to him. On the envelope was written, 'So Robbie can walk and come to Sunday school before long, from his classmates and teacher.'"

COMPANY CANNOT CUT OFF CONSUMERS' GAS SUPPLY

Trenton, April 22—In a decision handed down today, the State Board of Public Utility Commissioners rules that the Public Service Gas Company is not warranted in cutting off the supply of gas to a customer who has failed to pay a bill within the time limited by the company's rule, when the customer has a cash deposit with the company, amounting to more than the unpaid bill. The decision is upon the complaint filed with the commission against the Public Service Gas Company by Charles Reincke, of Jersey City.

NUMBER OF BILLS PASSED SMALLEST SINCE 1905

Trenton, April 22—The volume of "The Laws of 1914," the contents of which has just been completed by Governor Fielder disposing of the last of the bills in his hands, will be the smallest since 1905. It will contain 274 chapters of laws and two joint resolutions.

Only about 28 per cent. of the bills introduced this year passed both Houses and sent to the Governor. To be exact, the number of bills introduced was 1,114, of which 341 were in the Senate and 773 in the House. The total number passed was 316. In addition to this, seven joint resolutions were introduced in each House, only two of which got through and reached the Governor.

BY KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

Author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"

CHAPTER VII.

Cephas Speaks.

IT was June and the countryside was so beautiful it seemed as if no one could be unhappy, however great the cause. That was what Waitstill Baxter thought as she sat down on the millstone step for a word with the old joiner, her best and most understanding friend in all the village.

"I've come to do my mending here with you," she said brightly, as she took out her well filled basket and threaded her needle. "Isn't it a wonderful morning? Nobody could look the world in the face and do a wrong thing on such a day, could they, Uncle Bart?"

The meadows were a waving mass of golden buttercups; the shallow water at the river's edge just below the shop was blue with spikes of arrow weed; a bunch of fragrant water lilies, gathered from the mill pond's upper levels, lay beside Waitstill's mending basket, and every foot of roadside and field within sight was swaying with long stemmed white and gold daisies. The June grass, the friendly, humble, companionable grass, that no one ever praises as they do the flowers, was a rich emerald green, a velvet carpet fit for the feet of the angels themselves. And the elms and maples! Was there ever such a year for richness of foliage? And the sky, was it ever so blue or so clear, so far away, or so completely like heaven, as you looked at its reflection in the glassy surface of the river?

"Yes, it's a pretty good day," allowed Uncle Bart judicially as he took a squint at his T-square. "I don't know's I should want to start out an' try to beat it! The Lord can make a good many kinds o' weather in the course of a year, but when he puts his mind on to it an' kind o' gives himself a free hand he can turn out a June mornin' that must make the devil sick to his stomach with envy! All the same, Waity, my cow ain't behavin' herself any better'n usual. She's been rampagin' since sun up. I've seen mother chasin' her out o' Mis' Day's garden patch twice a'ready! It seems real good an' homey to see you settin' there sewin' while I'm workin' at the bench. Cephas is down to the store, so I s'pose your father's off somewheres?"

Perhaps the June grass was a little greener, the buttercups yellower, the foliage more lacey, the sky bluer, because Deacon Baxter had taken his luncheon in a pail under the wagon seat and departed on an unwilling journey to Moderation, his object being to press the collection of some accounts too long overdue. There was something tragic in the fact, Waitstill thought, that whenever her father left the village for a whole day, life at once grew brighter, easier, more hopeful. One could breathe freely, speak one's heart out, believe in the future, when father was away.

The girls had harbored many delightful plans at early breakfast. As it was Saturday, Patty could catch little Rod Boynton if he came to the bridge on errands as usual, and if Ivory could spare him for an hour at noon they would take their luncheon and eat it together on the river bank as Patty had promised him. At the last moment, however, Deacon Baxter had turned around in the wagon and said: "Patience, you go down to the store and have a regular housecleanin' in the stockroom. Git Cephas to lift what you can't lift yourself, move everything in the place, sweep and dust it, scrub the floor, wash the winder and make room for the new stuff that they'll bring up from Milltown 'bout noon. If you have any time left over put new papers on the shelves out front and clean up and fix the show winder. Don't stand round gabbin' with Cephas, and see't he don't waste time that's paid for by me. Tell him he might clean up the terbaccer stains round the stove, black it and cover it up for the summer if he ain't too busy servin' cust'mers."

"The whole day spoiled!" wailed Patty, flinging herself down in the kitchen rocker. "Father's powers of invention beat anything I ever saw! That stockroom could have been cleaned any time this month, and it's too heavy work for me anyway; it spoils my hands grubbing around those nasty, sticky, splintery boxes and barrels. Instead of being out of doors I've got to be shut up in that smelly, rummy, tobaccoy, salt-fishy, pepperminty place with Cephas Cole! He won't have a pleasant morning, I can tell you! I shall snap his head off every time he speaks to me."

"So I would!" Waitstill answered composedly. "Everything is so clearly his fault that I certainly would work off my temper on Cephas! Still, I can think of a way to make matters come out right. I've got a great basket of mending that must be done, and you remember there's a choir rehearsal for the new anthem this afternoon, but anyway I can help a little on the cleaning. Then you can make Rodman do a few of the odd jobs; it will be a novelty to him. And Cephas will work his fingers to the bone for you, as you well know, if you treat him like a human being."

"All right!" cried Patty joyously, her mood changing in an instant. "There's Rod coming over the bridge now. Toss me my gingham apron and the scrubbing brush and the pail and the tin of soap and the cleaning cloths. Let's see. The broom's down there, so I've got everything. If I wave a towel from the store pack up luncheon for three. You come down, and bring your mending. Then when you see how I'm getting on we can consult. I'm going to take the 10 cents I've saved and spend it in raisins. I can get a good many if Cephas gives me wholesale price, with family discount subtracted from that. Cephas would treat me to candy in a minute, but if I let him we'd have to ask him to the picnic. Good-by!" And the volatile creature darted down the hill singing "There'll be something in heaven for children to do" at the top of her healthy young lungs.

The waving signal a little later on showed that Rodman could go to the picnic, the fact being that he was having a holiday from 11 o'clock until 2, and Ivory was going to drive to the bridge at noon anyway, so his permission could then be asked.

Patty's mind might have been thought entirely on her ugly task as she swept and dusted and scrubbed that morning, but the reverse was true. Mark Wilson had gone away without saying goodby to her. This was not surprising perhaps, as she was about as much sequestered in her hilltop prison as a Turkish beauty in a harem. Neither was it astonishing that Mark did not write to her. He never had written to her, and as her father always brought home the very infrequent letters that came to the family Mark knew that any sentimental correspondence would be fraught with danger. No, everything was probably just as it should be, and yet—well, Patty had expected during the last three weeks that something would happen to break up the monotony of her former existence. She hardly knew what it would be, but the kiss dropped so lightly on her cheek by Mark Wilson still burned in remembrance and made her sure that it would have a sequel or an explanation.

Mark's sister Ellen and Phil Perry were in the midst of some form of lovers' quarrel, and during its progress Phil was paying considerable attention to Patty at Sabbath school and prayer meeting, occasions, it must be confessed, only provocative of very indirect and long distance advances. Cephas Cole, to the amazement of every one but his (constitutionally) exasperated mother, was "toning down" the ell of the family mansion, mitigating the lively yellow and putting another fresh coat of paint on it, for no conceivable reason save that of pleasing the eye of a certain capricious, ungrateful young hussy, who would probably say, when her verdict was asked, that she didn't see any particular difference in it one way or another.

Trade was not especially brisk at the deacon's emporium this sunny June Saturday morning. Cephas may have possibly lost a customer or two by leaving the store vacant while he toiled and sweated for Miss Patience Baxter in the stockroom at the back, overhanging the river, but no man alive could see his employer's lovely daughter tugging at a keg of shingle nails without trying to save her from a broken back, although Cephas could have watched his mother move the house and barn without feeling the slightest anxiety in her behalf. If he could ever get the "heft" of the "dogboned" cleaning out of the way so that Patty's mind could be free to entertain his proposition; could ever secure one precious moment of silence when she was not slatting and banging, pushing and pulling things about, her head and ears out of sight under a shelf and an irritating air of absorption about her whole demeanor; if that moment of silence could ever, under Providence, be simultaneous with the absence of customers in the front shop, Cephas intended to offer himself to Patience Baxter that very morning.

Once, during a temporary lull in the rear, he started to meet his fate when Rodman Boynton followed him into the back room, and the boy was at once set to work by Patty, who was the most consummate slave driver in the state of Maine. After half an hour there was another heaven sent chance, when Rodman went up to Uncle Bart's shop with a message for Waitstill, but just then, in came Bill Morrill, a boy of twelve, with a request for a gallon of molasses, and would Cephas lend him a stone jug over Sunday, for his mother had hers "soakin' out in soap suds 'cause 'twa'n't smellin' jest right." Bill's message given, he hurried up the road on another errand, promising to call for the molasses later.

The minutes dragged by, and again there was perfect quiet in the stockroom. As the door opened, Cephas, taking his last chance, went forward to meet Patty, who was turning down the skirt of her dress, taking the cloth off her head, smoothing her hair and tying on a clean white ruffled apron, in which she looked as pretty as a pink.

"Patty," stammered Cephas, seizing his golden opportunity, "Patty, keep your mind on me for a minute. I've put a new coat o' paint on the ell just to please you. Won't you get married and settle down with me? I love you so I can't eat nor drink nor tend store nor nothin'!"

"Oh, I—I—couldn't, Cephas, thank you. I just couldn't—don't ask me!" cried Patty, as nervous as Cephas himself now that her first offer had really come. "I'm only seventeen, and I don't feel like settling down, Cephas, and father wouldn't think of letting me get married."

"Don't play tricks on me, Patty, and keep shovin' me off so an' givin' wrong reasons," pleaded Cephas. "What's the trouble with me? I know mother's temper's onsartin, but we never need go into the main house daytimes, and father'd allers stand up ag'in her if she didn't treat you right. I've got a good trade, and father has $100 o' my savin's that I can draw out tomorrer if you'll have me."

"I can't, Cephas. Don't move—stay where you are. No, don't come any nearer. I'm not fond of you that way, and, besides—and, besides"—

Her blush and her evident embarrassment gave Cephas a new fear.

"You ain't promised a'ready, be you," he asked anxiously, "when there ain't a feller anywheres around that's ever stepped foot over your father's doorsill but jest me?"

"I haven't promised anything or anybody," Patty answered sedately, gaining her self control by degrees, "but I won't deny that I'm considering—that's true!"

"Considerin' who?" asked Cephas, turning pale.

"Oh—several, if you must know the truth;" and Patty's tone was cruel in its jauntiness.

"Several!" The word did not sound like ordinary work-a-day Riverboro English in Cephas' ears. He knew that "several" meant more than one, but he was too stunned to define the term properly in its present strange connection.

"Whoever 'tis wouldn't do any better by you'n I would. I'd take a lickin' for you any day," Cephas exclaimed abjectly, after a long pause.

"That wouldn't make any difference, Cephas," said Patty firmly, moving toward the front door as if to end the interview. "If I don't love you unlicked I couldn't love you any better licked, now, could I? Goodness gracious, what am I stepping in? Cephas, quick! Something has been running all over the floor. My feet are sticking to it."

It was too true! The gallon measure, forgotten by Cephas, had been filled to the brim ten minutes before, and ever since the treacly liquid had been overflowing the top and spreading in a brown flood, unnoticed, over the floor. Patty's feet were glued to it, her buff calico skirts lifted high to escape harm.

"I can't move," she cried. "Oh, you stupid, stupid Cephas! How could you leave the molasses spigot turned on? See what you've done! You've wasted quarts and quarts! What will father say and how will you ever clean up such a mess? You never can get the floor to look so that he won't notice it, and he is sure to miss the molasses. You've ruined my shoes, and I simply can't bear the sight of you!"

At this Cephas all but blubbered in the agony of his soul. It was bad enough to be told by Patty that she was "considering several," but his first romance had ended in such complete disaster that he saw in a vision his life blasted—changed in one brief moment from that of a prosperous young painter to that of a blighted and despised bungler, whose week's wages were likely to be expended in molasses to make good the deacon's loss.

"Find those cleaning cloths I left in the back room," ordered Patty, with a flashing eye. "Get some blocks or bits of board or stones for me to walk on so that I can get out of your nasty mess. Fill Bill Morrill's jug, quick, and set it out on the steps for him to pick up. I don't know what you'd do without me to plan for you! Lock the front door and hang father's sign that he's gone to dinner on the doorknob. Scoop up all the molasses you can with one of those new trowels on the counter. Scoop and scrape and scoop and scrape; then put a cloth on your oldest broom, pour lots of water on, pail after pail, and swab. When you've swabbed till it won't do any more good, then scrub. After that I shouldn't wonder if you had to fan the floor with a newspaper or it'll never get dry before father comes home. I'll sit on the flour barrel a little while and advise, but I can't stay long because I'm going to a picnic. Hurry up and don't look as if you were going to die any minute! It's no use crying over spilt molasses. You don't suppose I'm going to tell any tales after you've made me an offer of marriage, do you? I'm not so mean as all that, though I may have my faults."

It was nearly 2 o'clock before the card announcing Deacon Baxter's absence at dinner was removed from the front doorknob, and when the store was finally reopened for business it was a most dejected clerk who dealt out groceries to the public. The worst feature of the affair was that every one in the two villages suddenly and contemporaneously wanted molasses, so that Cephas spent the afternoon reviewing his misery by continually turning the tap and drawing off the fatal liquid. Then, too, every inquisitive boy in the neighborhood came to the back of the store to view the operation, exclaiming: "What makes the floor so wet? Hain't been spillin' molasses, have yer? Bet yer have! Good joke on Old Foxy!"

DRAINAGE CONGRESS MEETS IN SAVANNAH

Savannah, Ga., April 22.—The National Drainage Congress, for which preparations have been going forward for nearly a year, opened its sessions in this city today with delegates present from many States and from several foreign countries. Included in the attendance are governors, members of congress, colonization agents, railroad representatives, engineers of wide reputation, officials of the United States Department of Agriculture, and the agricultural commissioners of nearly all of the southern States.

The sessions will continue four days, and during that time much important action is expected to be taken looking toward flood prevention and the reclamation of hundreds of thousands of acres of swamp and bottom lands in the South and other sections of the country which if adequately drained, may be made to yield the largest crops in the world's history.

Not since the beginning of the movement looking toward government aid in a vast scheme for land reclamation has so much interest been taken in the meetings of the drainage congress and during the four days' session drainage and its kindred subjects, flood prevention, forestry and colonization, will not only be discussed but practical illustrations of what drainage is doing for certain sections of the country will be given.

Foremost among those scheduled to address the congress is Sir William Willcocks, the English engineer who built the Assouan dam in the valley of the Nile, and who recently has been working to restore the channels of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers, in order to reclaim vast areas of territory.

'PHONE MEN PERFORM A REMARKABLE FEAT

String Mile of Wire and Install Instrument Destroyed by Blizzard.

"The Tide Water Oil Company has pipe lines from Illinois and points west, through which the oil is pumped to a station at Bound Brook," says the Telephone Review. "It is necessary that there should be communication between the Bound Brook station and each sub-station to which oil is being pumped, in order that the supply can be cut off when the tanks are full, as otherwise the tanks would overflow, which would cause land damage, or if the supply should be cut off at a sub-station before it was cut off at the discharging stations, the pipes would burst. This communication between Bound Brook and the several sub-stations served by it was over private telegraph lines owned by the Tide Water Oil Company, the Bound Brook station being without any telephone installation. This private line to the sub-station at Constable's Hook, Bayonne, was blown down, and a hurried order was received for a telephone to be installed at Bound Brook in this emergency.

"Realizing what it meant to the Tide Water Oil Company to have communication, every effort was made to put through a rush order, but the entire plant department was so occupied with clearing up conditions and restoring service to existing subscribers that it was aparent there would be some delay in making this new installation.

"A. B. Wilson, local commercial manager, Plainfield, offered his services, which were accepted by the plant department with some misgivings. Hiring a cutter and acompanied by J. J. Carty, one of his salesmen, and James F. Cumiskey, his contract clerk, and taking with them a supply of tools and material, including about 6,000 feet of twisted pair, a start was made through the rough country to string a line from Dunellen to the oil works at Bound Brook. These men worked on the job from 3 until 7:30 p. m., and 5,300 feet of twisted pair was used. Connection was made to the broken end leading to the central office of a circuit that had given service to a local coin box, and the line was strung on fences, trees, porches, over the roofs of houses, and anything that would support it, until the building in which the instrument was to be installed was reached. Here a loop was drawn through a window, and the telephone set up. The wire chief at Plainfield was called; the line was O. K'd., and the Tide Water Oil Company had a service. The job would have been a tough one for seasoned plant men, but for three volunteers from the commercial department it was more than that.

"A cordial letter of appreciation for the unusual effort that was made to install this service was promptly received from the new subscriber."

CONFERENCE ON CHILD WELFARE IN SESSION

Washington, D. C., April 22.—Men and men who are vitally interested in the movement for a better child life have gathered here from many countries to take part in the third international congress on the welfare of the children. Today was given over to the reception of the visiting delegates, who have come from various countries of Europe and South America, from China and Japan and from all parts of the United States and Canada.

The National Congress of Mothers and Parent-Teachers' Associations, which has directed the arrangements for the conference, has prepared a program extending over five days and providing for the discussion of a wide variety of subjects. The sessions tomorrow and Friday will be given over to papers and round table discussions on the relations of the child to the home. The relations of the child to the school will be the general subject for Saturday. On Sunday, "The Church and Child Welfare" will be the general topic, and on Monday the child's relation to the state will be considered.

CIRCUS ACTS INCLUDE STAR PERFORMERS

Show for Benefit of Open Air School Has Many Skilfull Men and Beasts.

So much as has been said about the local acts and people who are to take part in the circus to be given here on Monday, May 4, for the benefit of the Open-Air School, that the excellent professional show to be provided has been neglected in describing the many features. Frank A. Robbins, the veteran show man, whose aggregation will provide the boy's entertainment, has been managing successful circuses for thirty-four years, and he has many star acts which are not seen with any other circus on the road this year. Mr. Robbins spends all of the winter months scouring the country for the kind of features which are "different" and the show this season retains but few of the old features. In addition to the improvements in the performances there has been a substantial increase made in the parade, menagerie and other equipment, so that the show, which has been at the Inter-State Fair Grounds, Trenton, all winter, comes so changed and improved that there is little that is old about it.

The great feature of the show of last year is retained, and in the act the Robbins circus has one which is not to be seen with any other circus on the road today. That is one which draws applause from the lovers of animals, being an exhibition in which eight handsome, coal-black Belgian stallions, imported at a cost of $16,000, go through graceful evolutions, indicating intelligence seldom seen in animals. The Great Charbino, who slides from tent top to the ground, balanced on top of his head on a narrow pole, defies death at every performance. The performance is given twice a day before thousands of people, and hundreds who have entered the canvas covered arena skeptical, have left only to praise.

The DeMotts, two of the most graceful bareback riders in the country; James Burns, famous as a wire walker; a big group of fun makers, three bands, and a hundred other performers provide an entertainment which lasts for two solid hours. The Robbins troupe of trained elephants are unequaled.

Two shows will be given, no matter what the weather. The first will be at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and the other promptly at 8. The doors of the big canvas will open one hour earlier, so that the splendid menagerie, greatly enlarged this year, may be viewed leisurely, and with full knowledge that nothing will be missed in the main tent.

WOULD BAR CIRCUSES FROM RAHWAY SATURDAY NIGHTS

Rahway, April 22.—Mayor Thomas A. Fyfle has initiated a movement against permitting any outside shows, such as circuses, to give performances in Rahway on Saturday nights.

The Mayor declares a circus in the city on Saturday has a demoralizing effect upon business, injuring the local merchants, who largely rely upon their Saturday night trade.

The Wheeler Brothers' show is booked for Rahway, Saturday.

NO INDICTMENT IN CASE OF HOPATCONG POSTMASTER

The Federal Grand Jury at Newark returned no indictment, yesterday, against William S. Richards, for fourteen years postmaster at Lake Hopatcong, who has admitted the embezzlement of $3,031.23 of the office funds.

Richards, on April 9, turned over this amount to Postoffice Inspector Robert H. Aldous, who unearthed the shortage in the postmaster's accounts. When the shortage was revealed, Richards admitted taking the money, the inspector says, and then raised enough to make up his shortage by mortgaging his property.

BOUND BROOK TRAIN VICTIM HAS UNION PRINTER'S CARD

Bound Brook, April 22—Crushed and cut, the body of a man, in the pocket of whose coat was a Typographical Union card made out by Local No. 6, of New York, to Joseph W. Seely, was found at daybreak yesterday morning in front of the Central Railroad station. He had evidently been struck by a freight train and knocked against the railing near which he was found.

The victim was about forty-six years old, five feet nine inches in height, weighed about 200 pounds and was neatly dressed. The station agent discovered the body and notified the police. They summoned Coroner John T. Leahy, who ordered the body taken to the morgue and that the New York police be notified. The man was seen about town Monday afternoon.

ASKS METUCHEN PRINCIPAL TO RETURN PART OF SALARY

Metuchen, April 22—The Board of Education has adopted resolutions inviting Principal Thomas G. VanKirk to give up his claim to a salary of $2,250 a year and to pay back to the town the money he has received on that basis for five months beginning last September. This invitation, said the board in its resolution, was extended to the principal to avert court action in the matter. Should Mr. VanKirk accept the offer it is understood he will continue as principal at his old salary of $2,000.

The alleged unauthorized increase in Mr. VanKirk's salary was inadvertently voted by the board, it is charged, after the citizens at two elections went on record against the raise. The controversy over the question of how the raise could have been voted without the board's knowledge has been waged for more than a year and has led to threats that the matter would be taken to the Grand Jury.

Mr. VanKirk was at the meeting and asserted that he felt the resolutions were unfair and were not inspired by the best of motives. All the members of the board voted in favor of the resolutions except Robert Bruce Crowell, clerk, who asked to be excused.

45 KILLED IN MINERS' BATTLE

Most of Them Are Women and Children.

OVER SCORE ARE WOUNDED

Labor Men and Troops Are Lined Up Ready For Another Big Battle. Strikers Are Sheltered In Hills Behind Bowlders.

Trinidad, Colo., April 22.—Forty-five dead, more than two-thirds of them women and children; a score missing and more than twenty wounded is the toll in tragedy and death known to have been taken by the fourteen hour battle which raged with uninterrupted fury between state troops and striking coal miners in the Ludlow district.

With arms ready both sides after a day of ominous quiet now await the coming of darkness, when, it is forecasted, the battle will be resumed with greater bloodshed then than which has occurred.

The militia, which drove the strikers from their tent colony and, it is charged, fired it, involving thereby the greatest loss of life, are preparing for a machine gun sortie at daybreak from their position along the Colorado and Southern railroad tracks at either side of the Ludlow station.

On the surrounding hills, sheltered by rocks and bowlders, 400 strikers await their coming, while their ranks are being swelled by grim faced men who tramped overland in the dark, carrying guns and ammunition from the neighboring union camps.

Italians, Greeks and Austrian miners have appealed to their consular representatives for protection, and John McLennan, president of the local union district, wired the Red Cross in Denver to be prepared to render aid.

On the outcome of the engagement may depend the fate of the strike. Both sides face it as a battle to the death, with no thought of quarter asked or received.

SALIENT FEATURES IN MEXICAN CRISIS.

Four marines killed, twenty wounded.

Admiral Fletcher has seized Vera Cruz

Huerta offered a strong resistance.

This is the first step toward a blockade of that port and was taken to prevent the landing at Vera Cruz of 200 field guns and 15,000,000 rounds of ammunition destined for General Huerta.

Administration officials said that the president had ample authority for such action without the approval of congress and that immediate action had been imperative.

Officials in Washington say that Huerta played for time in order to get this shipment of arms into Mexico.

There was a general exodus of Americans from Mexico City to Vera Cruz, where many Americans went on board the refugee steamship Esperanza.

The senate engaged in debate over the Mexican resolution. Senator Lodge asserting in a speech that the resolution should set forth the murders of Americans as a cause for action, while Senators Shively and John Sharp Williams maintained that the Lodge resolution would mean nothing short of war, while the foreign relations committee's resolution specifically disavows any intention to declare war.

BRIGADE READY TO EMBARK.

Transports at Galveston Taking Supplies In Case of Order to Sail.

Galveston, Tex., April 22.—Five thousand men who, army officers say, would be the first to be dispatched should the United States army be ordered into Mexico were ready here to embark in less than six hours. They are the Fifth brigade of the Second division, hurriedly recalled from Houston early by orders from Washington. While the Fifth brigade, or practically half the division, was returning to Galveston by train four army transports waiting here were being provisioned for a thirty days' voyage.

"LES MISERABLES" TELLS STORY OF A GREAT HERO

Jean Valjean, the hero of Victor Hugo's "Les Miserables," which will be presented in moving pictures at the Plainfield Theatre on the afternoons and evenings of next Friday and Saturday, the proceeds to go to Wellesley College, is a character who is sure to attract the interest of all those who see the film play.

"Les Miserables" is especially timely, coming as it does when all the reading public is aroused by the recent events in the case of the gunmen to consider the lot of the man who is regarded by society as a criminal.

The story which the films tell of the life history of Jean Valjean is one which not only arouses intense interest in the dramatic life but a deep sympathy and appreciation of his struggles.

Arrested for stealing a loaf of bread for his starving mother, the hero is sentenced to five years imprisonment and hard labor. He escapes and finds shelter in the house of a good priest, but is tempted to steal some valuable silver plate from his benefactor. When charged with his theft and brought before the priest, the latter declares he gave Jean the silver, thus shielding him from prison.

This action on the priest's part gives the guilty man a new start in life. Of his struggles, temptations and success from this time on the pictures telling a thrilling story which cannot fail to appeal to every person who sees them.

FIRST PANEL OF JURORS WILL BE DRAWN MONDAY

The first panel of petit jurors and the Grand Jury for the May term of the Union county courts will be drawn by the jury commissioners before Judge Connolly on April 27. The term will open May 5, when the inquest will be charged by Supreme Court Justice Bergen, and trials of cases in both the civil and criminal branch will begin the following day.

In addition to the "hatchet murder" in Elizabeth a few weeks ago, when Stefano Migliroroni was killed near his home by being struck on the head with an axe by some person still a fugitive from justice, the inquest will be charged with investigating the death of Charles E. Thompson, electrocuted in Meadow street, Elizabeth, ten days ago by a "live" wire. An indictment against the Postal Telegraph Company or some of its responsible officers, charging them with responsibility for Thompson's death, probably will result. The coroner's jury last week held the company liable.

FIRE IN SHED.

Boys in a small house in the rear of the residence at East Fourth and Washington streets started a fire yesterday afternoon that for a time threatened nearby structures. The fire department was called and extinguished the blaze with chemicals.

IN ONE MINUTE! CLOGGED NOSTRILS OPEN---COLDS AND CATARRH VANISH

Stops Nasty Discharge, Clears Stuffed Head, Heals Inflamed Air Passages and You Breathe Freely.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat, clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed, nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. —Adv.

RECEIVE MONEY FROM BOND ISSUE

Mayor Latham of Dunellen Plans to Get Interest on Half the Amount.

TO CHECK ON BALANCE

C. Wesley Blaine Resigns From Health Board—Saloonkeepers Are Warned Not to Sell Liquor to Minors Under Penalty of Law.

The Dunellen Council at its adjourned meeting, last night, was informed by the borough's legal advisors concerning the sale of the $20,000 par value joint sewage bonds, and in this connection Mayor Latham stated that he had placed $10,000 of the amount derived from the sale of bonds in the savings department of the First National Bank of Dunellen, and the balance is a checking account at 3½ per cent. The Mayor was complimented for his good financiering.

A petition was presented signed by property-owners along Lincoln avenue and Mountainview Terrace, asking that sidewalks be laid on both sides of Lincoln avenue from North avenue to the end of that thoroughfare in front of property not already improved. This matter was referred to the sidewalk committee.

The Middlesex County Mosquito Exterminating Commission informed the Council that it had been granted the small sum of $5,500 for demonstrating purposes and they wanted to know if the mosquito pest was bad enough in the borough to warrant an expenditure of a part of this inadequate sum there. The communication was referred to the Board of Health.

The resignation of C. Wesley Blaine as a member of the Board of Health was received to take effect May 1. It was accepted. Mr. Castner stated that the matter of oiling North avenue had been taken up with the Public Service Corporation and that he expected a definite communication from it in this regard in a few days. Borough Engineer Churchill brought up the matter of establishing grades upon the streets of the borough where it has not been done and the matter was referred to the law and ordinance committee. This committee reported that the saloon keepers of the borough had been warned not to sell liquors to minors under the penalty of court proceedings.

The contract for watering the streets was awarded to the lowest bider, Albert Rajotte, at the rate of a team and man at 54¼ cents per hour. The next lowest bidder was John Hill, who bid 56 cents an hour. Other bidders were Earl Ising and Fred Russell.

BORO THESPIANS WILL PRESENT ANNUAL PLAY

"All Tangled Up" to Be Given With a Selected Cast at the Park Club.

"All Tangled Up," Charles Townsend's best farce comedy, will be presented by the Boys' Athletic Association of the North Plainfield High School at the Park Club tomorrow night at 8 o'clock. It will be the fourth annual play of the borough school and with a selected cast is sure to be a great success. There are eight characters and they have been rehearsing for the past three months. Miss Helen K. Ray is acting as coach and she has given up a large amount of her time to this affair. The production upholds its name throughout and the complicated situations are enough to make the biggest grouch laugh.

All of the characters are well adapted to their parts and with a few original lines they will keep their audience interested all the time. The manager's report shows that a large number will be present and there are a few tickets left that may be secured at the door. The full dress rehearsal will be held at the Park Club this evening before a number of invited critics. After the performance tomorrow there will be dancing until 2 o'clock, with music by Halbfoerster's orchestra, of Elizabeth.

The cast of characters is as follows: "Major Hollis Halliday," a lawyer, Atwood Giddings; "Lester MacVey," his partner, Ashley Burner; "Lieut. George Rapley," a retired military man, Duclos VanMater; "Keeling Plantum," an undertaker, Charles Beckman; "O'Toole," a family treasure, Edson Day; "Mrs. Halliday," Mary Martin; "Clara," her daughter, Lucile Ewart; "Vernie," the undertaker's daughter, Katherine Giddings. The managers are as follows: Business managers, Hyman Abrams and Frank Dunning; stage, Lester Chandler and Warren Townley; property, Roscoe VanCamp and Charles Roll; advertising, Thomas Ball; electrical, Franklin Lowe; music, Elmer French.

"LES MISERABLES" PICTURES ARE GREAT WORK OF ART

"Les Miserables," which is coming to Plainfield, tomorrow and Saturday of this week, for matinee and evening performances in moving pictures, has just finished a twelve weeks engagement at the Carnegie Lyceum, New York city. During its run the managers report that the hall which has a capacity of six hundred and fifty persons has been filled every afternoon and evening and the pictures are pronounced by those in charge to be among the most successful ever shown in the city.

The presentation of this film in the Plainfield Theatre by the alumnae of Wellesley College for the benefit of the colege fund makes it possible for the people of this city to see the pictures without going into New York. It offers one of the greatest attractions which has ever come to Plainfield and as one of the New York men who had seen the pictures twice during the time they were running at the Carnegie Lyceum put it, "Be sure to see them. Don't miss them."

BOY REVEALS PLOT TO LOOT STATION

Albert Rhodier Tells of Carefully Laid Plans to Burglarize Grant Ave. Depot.

When arraigned before City Judge W. G. DeMeza in the city court, yesterday, Albert Rhodier, the seventeen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert Rhodier, of Spooner avenue, unraveled a tale that better fit the lips of a hardened criminal. Under a fire of cross questioning by Judge DeMeza the youth revealed a plot his "gang" had contrived to loot the Grant avenue railroad station, which was suddenly curtailed by the lad's father who dragged him back to the paternal home and later turned the youth over to the police.

Young Rhodier, armed with a screw-driver, which he claimed was a fit substitute for a burglar's "jimmy," sneaked through back lots to the ticket office of the Grant avenue station Sunday night and selecting a window on the dark side of the structure proceeded to pry open an entrance. Just as he had started the job his father appeared on the scene and put a sudden end to the proposed burglary. The parent had scented trouble when the wayward youth left the house and followed close in his footsteps to the railroad station, where he found that his fears were not wholly unwarranted.

Queried concerning his object in looting the station the boy said he intended to summon his companions who were lying as scouts in ambush and "hop a coaler" for "Chi" (Chicago). He was originally arraigned on a charge of being incorrigible but admitted the other crimes of which he was guilty when examined by the court. He said that he looted the same place last year and got away undetected in that instance. Judge DeMeza told the youth to await the action of the Juvenile Court and he was taken to Elizabeth this morning by Detective-Sergeant Flynn.

P. H. S. SHOW TO BE GIVEN IN THEATRE

New Auditorium Will not Be Ready for Annual Minstrel Performance of B. A. A.

Announcement was made today that the new Plainfield High School auditorium would not be ready for use before the opening of the September term and as a result the managers of the Boys' Athletic Association's annual minstrel show have engaged the Plainfield theatre. Those having purchased tickets for the affair may redeem the same for seats in the theatre at the box office on or after May 1. The change in the arrangements will in no way interfere with the program planned by the school boys and several new features will be added prior to the presentation of the production.

Rehearsals for the show are now being held under the direction of Sewell Ulrich, the coach, and the cast is gradually rounding into shape. An unusually large chorus has been rounded up and the theatre stage is much more adaptable to such an affair than the one used in previous years. Besides the usual entertainment of minstrelsy several short sketches are being arranged and many novel features will be introduced in the 1914 production.

Owing to the uncompleted condition of the High School assembly rooms, rehearsals are being held in the Franklin School auditorium and this place will be used regularly until May 9. William Peacock is the manager of the show and Daniel McNamee is his assistant.

KIELY OUT OF LINEUP.

Laing will be substituted for Kiely in the Elks' Club bowling team lineup tomorrow night, when the latter aggregation visits the Park Club to roll a return match series with Park Club pinners. Kiely is out of town at the present time, thus leaving the gap to be filled in the antlered tribe's fighting front.

"THE LITTLE MINISTER."

J. M. Barrie's delightful play, "The Little Minister," in motion pictures, will be shown in Y. M. C. A. Hall, Saturday afternoon and evening. This is one of the Vitagraph Company's most successful productions. The entertainments will be held at the usual hours and the regular admission will be charged.

CHARLES LINDSAY IMPROVING.

Charles Lindsay, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Lindsay, of Mountain avenue, who had his leg amputated in the Flower Hospital, New York, about two months ago, is very much improved and is now at his home. He expects to be about again in a short time.

DEMOCRATS GIVE HARMONY DINNER

More Than Six Hundred Guests Attend Annual Affair in Elizabeth.

P. H. STEWART PRESIDES

Governor Fielder, Congressman Tuttle and Assemblyman Beekman Among the Speakers—Gen. Collins Toastmaster.

Elizabeth, April 23—The annual banquet under the auspices of the Union County Democratic committee, at Turn Hall, last night, was a marked success and was attended by about six hundred members of the party from all parts of the county. It was the first gathering of the kind in years when harmony seemed to prevail with a capital "H." The anti-Collins faction was present and joined in making the affair a success. There were no especial boom started, although Mayor Percy H. Stewart, of Plainfield, county chairman, was incidentally mentioned as a candidate for State Senator.

Mayor Stewart made a few remarks in introducing the toastmaster of the evening, General Dennis F. Collins. United States Senator James E. Martine, who was announced to speak, did not appear, being detained in Washington. The speakers were Governor James F. Fielder, Congressman Helfin, who spoke on the Mexican situation; State Senator Charles O'Connor Hennessey, of Bergen county; Congressman William E. Tuttle and Assemblyman Azariah Beekman. All the speeches were marked by praise of President Wilson in his attitude toward Mexico, while there were words of praise for Governor Fielder and the admirable way in which he is conducting the affairs of his office. Congressman Tuttle particularly commended the work of the President and Governor.

Included among the six hundred guests were about thirty from Plainfield, including all the prominent Democrats. Those on the committee of arrangements for the dinner were Mayor Percy H. Stewart, Patrick J. Reville and Fred Endress. During the serving of the dinner a popular program of music was given by an orchestra.

RECALLS INCIDENTS OF FIRST MEXICAN WAR

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I noted today this newspaper heading: "Two Mexican Wars," which reminds me of my recollections of the first war. I was only seven years old when the war closed, and did not jot down any of the events that came to me at that time so I have to trust to memory.

I recall the method used to obtain recruits for the regiments of volunteers of the State of New York, which was accomplished by having two "color bearers," one carrying the "Stars and Stripes," and the other the "New York State Flag." These men were headed by a "drum corps," consisting of two men. All were in full uniform, and commanded by an officer. This party every day marched through the streets of the city and it was expected that those wishing to enlist would "fall in line."

I witnessed this military display many a time, but do not recall ever having seen a recruit following. This method of recruiting, I imagine, is the origin of the term so often used, viz., "Druming for recruits." At the close of the war, say in 1848, I stood one day at the front of the City Hall in New York and saw the First Regiment of New York Volunteers return from the front.

This regiment lined up in front of the City Hall, and the "color bearers," with the flags, escorted by the "color guards," marched into the hall, and deposited the same, and they should be there to this day. I saw the grand illumination in New York to celebrate the return of Peace, and may live to see another.

FUNERAL OF MRS. STITES.

The bearers were Leslie Stites, John Madden, Louis Stites, Jacob Overland, Frank Green and Robert Morley.

HOSPITAL AUXILIARY DANCE INSPIRES MUSE

Truthful Press Agent for Tomorrow Night's Affair Bursts Into Song.

"If you must stay at home in bed, just send your dollar bill instead. For Muhlenberg sure needs the cash, and though for weeks you live on hash, you're satisfied you've made a hit, by spending just a little bit, and helping some poor soul in need, is charity itself indeed."

So sings the press agent of the dance to be given tomorrow night at Columbus Hall for the benefit of Muhlenberg Hospital, one of the most worthy charities, for rich or poor, in the city. The advance sale of tickets assures a big attendance at the dance and most every person will find some friends there. Music is promised that will warm the cockles of the heart, and make memory travel back years on the sands of time, and set your feet a shuffling to again quote the press agent. But best of all it is promised that the latest dances will be shown by professionals, the kind that most people never expect to master, but which nevertheless are good to look at. That promises to be one of the most enjoyable features, for the latest "terpischorean fantasies" (again the press agent) will be shown by Edward LaPorte and Miss Ethel Hudson. There will be plenty of opportunity to indulge in the one sport that amuses young and old, that is drinking lemonade and eating ice cream and cake, served in a dainty manner at a small additional cost to the price of admission.

To again quote the press agent, who after all is some individual, and is one of few in that class who tells the whole truth, "They say that a certain place is paved with good intentions. If you have the proper spirit, is not the committee justified in believing that you will quit paving and be there? This dance is a business proposition. The money is for the hospital. The committee not only wishes to touch your heart strings, but your purse strings as well."

Tickets for the dance will be on sale at the door, so that those who have not secured them in advance will not be put to any convenience.

PLAINFIELD PARTY WILL TOUR WORLD

Mrs. F. G. Mead and Daughters Leave Here on Long Pleasure Trip.

Mrs. Frederick G. Mead and her daughters, the Misses Frederica and Margaret Mead, of "Sunnyside," East Front street, are now on their way to San Francisco, from which place they will sail on May 14 on the Steamer Manchuria for China, on the tour around the world. They plan to spend the summer in the hills of China with Mrs. Mead's son, Lawrence Mead, who is engaged in mission work in that country.

While abroad Mrs. Mead and her daughters will visit the Y. W. C. A. and other foreign mission stations, gathering interesting data as to the work being done at these places. They expect to be away at least a year.

Prior to the departure of the party from Plainfield, Mrs. Francis de Lacey Hyde on Saturday evening gave a farewell dinner at which there were present a large number of guests including Rev. Dr. Robert E. Speer and John R. Mott, whose work and interest in both foreign and home missions are well known.

PLAN UNIQUE ENTERTAINMENT.

Those who attend the weekly meeting of the Doyle and McCormack dancing class in Debele's Auditorium tonight, will be treated to a "Fete Terpischoriem," many novelties having been arranged by those in charge. This will be celebrated in connection with party night and many out of town guests are expected to be present at the affair tonight. Included in the entertainment will be a modern dancing demonstration by Madame Bynner and Professor Valdes, of Brooklyn, who will perform the hesitation, tango and mixed dances.

ELKS FRATERNAL VISIT.

About one hundred members of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., paid a fraternal visit to Somerville Lodge, No. 1068, last evening, when the local lodgemen were headed by Exalted Ruler Frank Smith. The degree team of the local lodge introduced three new members into the mysteries of the order. The trip was made by two trolleys, the Plainfielders being acompanied by a band of fifteen pieces.

CAPTURE MEXICAN GUNBOAT WITH A LAUNCH; TAMPICO NOT TAKEN

American Lieutenant Has Easy Time Taking Boat—No Word From Mexico City Except Unofficial Stories of Rioting.

Tampico is reported to still be in the hands of the Mexicans.

Lieutenant McCandless, commanding a launch, captured a Mexican gunboat.

Eight more American lives lost in fghting late last night at Vera Cruz, making total loss to date twelve dead and fifty wounded.

Everything was reported quiet at Vera Cruz this morning, with Americans in full control.

Rioting reported at Mexico City.

No war tax will be levied at once.

Some one scrawled across door of American Embassy at London words "Oil in Mexico Spells Blood."

Washington, April 23.—Every hour of additional delay in hearing from Charge O'Shaughnessy at Mexico City adds to the apprehension of the administration that something serious has developed in Huerta's capital. For forty hours not a single direct word has come from the American charge. The government here is utterly without information of what is going on behind the scenes in Mexico City or of the fate of Americans there. Frantic but futile efforts have been made to get into communication.

The state department was in touch with other embassies here endeavoring to learn whether they had any word of events in the Mexican capital that they could furnish which would throw light on whether our people there are safe.

Washington, April 23.—Although it is reported that rioting has commenced in Mexico City, endangering the life of Americans there, it is impossible to verify the report as there is absolutely no communication between the Mexican capital and the outside world.

Private dispatches were said to be from a source of unquestioned trustworthiness and bore date of today set forth that mobs of Mexicans were forming anti-American demonstations; that Americans on the street had been menaced and threatened with violence and that they were concentrating at the embassy for mutual protection.

Startling information as to the military situation at Tampico was disclosed from high authority.

The effect of it is that no move to seize Tampico has yet been made by the American forces because a larger Mexican federal force has been assembled there than was supposed.

The Navy and War departments have made plans for the early seizure of the railroad from Vera Cruz to Mexico City. A reconnoitering force has reported still intact two bridges on the railroad, one ten miles and one eighteen miles from Vera Cruz. Officers at Vera Cruz reported that these bridges must be protected if Vera Cruz is to be a base of further operations, because they could not be readily rebuilt if destroyed.

Washington, April 23.—Early reports received at the State Department this morning were most encouraging from the seat of trouble in Mexico. At Vera Cruz it was reported by Counsel Canada that the night had been quiet, with the American troops thoroughly policing the streets, and that there had been no disorder of any kind, the armed Mexicans being under arrest, and many of the city officials assisting in restoring normal conditions.

President Wilson and the Cabinet were in session all the morning, the principal business being to consider placing an embargo upon the shipment of arms across the border from Texas, but the order has not as yet been issued.

Washington, April 23.—Senator Lodge, of Massachusetts, made an impassioned demand that the embargo in shipment of arms to Mexico from the United States be replaced "Francisco Villa, with 6,000 men, is right on our border," said Senator Lodge. He said that the message from Carranza plainly indicated that the United States would soon be at war with him and Villa. "After Carranza's statement what reason can there be to expect that we will not soon be in conflict with the Constitutionalists? Is it possible that we are so entangled with Francisco Villa that we cannot place an embargo upon shipments of arms into Mexico, which may be turned against us?"

Washington, April 23.—It is practically settled by the House leaders that no additional taxation will be authorized, until war is formally declared. They say the treasury can immediately use $130,000,000 of Panama bonds, and that the President also has authority under the old Spanish War act to sell bonds, so that Congress will only act when these resources are exhausted.

Vera Cruz, April 23.—Flag Lieutenant McCandless, of Rear Admiral Badgers' staff, captured a Mexican gunboat with nothing but a launch armed with a one-pound cannon. The gunboat was just outside the harbor, and was about to take 250 soldiers off a transport. When the launch approached the gunboat, the Mexican soldiers lined the rail and threatened the launch with rifles. McCandless kept right on, climbed on the deck of the gunboat and placed it under American control. General Maass, commanding the Federal Mexican forces, is believed to be definitely located at Tejeria, fifteen miles from here, on the line of the Mexican railway. It is reported that he is waiting re-enforcement, numbering 4,000 men, before attacking the Americans in this city.

Vera Cruz, April 23.—A band of freed convicts made a desperate attack at 11 o'clock last night, upon the Cuartel just south of the city, killing one of the marines of the force which had been placed there. Rear Admiral Fletcher is now in active command of operations on shore. Detachments of marines are now in control of the territory fourteen miles out of the city. They have not seen any of the forces of General Maass, which left Vera Cruz suddenly and which were supposed to be entrenched in the sand hills. Scouting parties are endeavoring to locate them. All vessels entering the harbor are being boarded by the Americans. The Mexican gunboat Progresso arrived with 1,000 troops on board but was not permitted to land them. The vessel, however, was allowed to leave the harbor.

Trouble yesterday was caused by the police and some convicts. It is feared here that the situation at Tampico is serious.

Vera Cruz, Mexico, April 23.—Entire possession of Vera Cruz has been obtained by the United States forces at a loss of eight more American lives. About thirty more marines and blue jackets and officers were wounded. Six of the dead were ordinary seamen from the battleship fleet, one a gunner's mate and the other a private in the Marine Corps.

Several of the killed and wounded were from the dreadnought Utah. They were shot down while storming the Diligencia Hotel, in which many Mexican sharpshooters were slain.

We Want to Make Every Shot Count

"Don't fire until you see the whites in their eyes," was Gen. Warren's orders at Bunker Hill. Lack of ammunition was the reason for these orders, and the only hope of giving the British the "once over" was to make every shot count.

It is now practically certain that this place will not be represented on the semi-professional ball field this season as the most prominent church people of the community have forestalled every effort to get one organized. For many seasons this place has been represented by a semi-professional team that has played Sunday ball, but this year they have been refused the use of the field on the strength of a number that are opposed to Sunday ball playing. May it be said to Manager Alberts' credit that he has done all in his power to prevent rowdyism at any Sunday contests.

Dunellen & Vicinity

Editor of the Daily Press:

In refusing to act with the committee appointed by the Board of Trade, of Dunellen, at one of their recent meetings, it is now self evident the members of the Board of Health had a fair idea of the caliber of some of the members of that committee and did not wish to be, and, in fact, would not be held responsible for just such mis-statements as appeared in your issue of yesterday (April 21) in reference to our water supply. Such statements said to be the results of the efforts of the Board of Trade committee are without foundation of facts. An absolutely false statement appears in the article relating especially to the number of cases of sickness they say occurred after the plugging of the pipe from the well in question, instead of twenty cases as noted in the article mentioned, not a single case has been reported to the board, and we have every reason to believe none occurred. We challenge the members of the committee to name a single case as having been reported after the period mentioned. According to reports rendered by the State Board of Health for over a year the water of the reservoir mentioned has been considered free from coli and other form of bacteria considered harmful to the human system; furthermore, this reservoir is as they admit, away up on the mountain side and is flushed nightly, and the water supply coming from that source will be found as pure as any in the county and much better and purer than that supplied in the larger cities. As for the board withholding the reports of the State board from time to time, our board has always been willing to show such reports to the proper authorities. The boiling of the water as noted in the report was recommended as a precautionary measure, and no one is now obliged to continue it against their wishes. We have been in constant communication with the State Board of Health and feel that their advice is more reliable than that offered by private individuals.

Respectfully,
EDWARD PENNOCK,
President Board of Health.

Newton Apgar, of Dunellen, and Ira Crouse, of Perth Amboy, had practically bid a like amount, while Mr. Apgar was the lower on the general bid. Mr Crouse was the lower on the alternate. The specifications as to the material to be used in the erection of the outer walls of the school have been changed from brick veneer to the real article of brick and Mr. Apgar and Mr. Crouse have been requested to send in new figures which will be opened at a special meeting of the Bound Brook board, called for Tuesday evening of next week. Mr. Voorhees was elected to fill the unexpired term (2 years) of H. B. Williams, resigned. Mr. Gardner succeeded himself and Mr. Walton succeeds Fowler W. Vail, who did not care to serve again.

Miss Nellie Vail, a slight improvement in whose condition was mentioned in these columns recently, has experienced a setback due to an attack of tonsilitis.

Thomas Beck, of Jackson avenue, has not as yet attained the state of health that was his prior to his illness of three weeks ago.

Gustav Barfus, who owns the garage along the Bound Brook road at Dewey Park, is to be the business proprietor of the garage that M. A. Gallagher is going to erect at the corner of Washington and North avenues. Mr. Gallagher was granted a permit at last night's meeting of the Common Council to move the frame office building which stands upon the site of the proposed garage, thirty feet south.

NO WORD FROM MEXICO CITY

London, April 23.—When one of the secretaries of the American embassy called to see Ambassador Page this morning, he found the front door of the embassy plastered with clippings from the ultra-radical London Star, relating to the alleged connection of the American oil interests with the outbreak of war in Mexico. Scrawled across the door in large letters were the words "Oil In Mexico Spells Blood."

Key West, April 23.—An emergency hospital is being established here for the wounded at Vera Cruz.

Los Angeles, Cal., April 23.—As a result of the belligerent attitude assumed by Carranza, in his message to President Wilson, four companies of infantry and one machine gun platoon of the National Guard were hurried to Calexico, this morning. There is a general belief along the southern border that the rebel and Federal forces will unite when they learn of Carranza's attiture.

Chicago, April 23.—Twenty-two aviators, comprising the Chicago section of the National Aeronautic Reserve, are to meet here today to plan for an invasion of Mexico by airship.

Jackson, Miss., April 23.—Adjutant General Scales of the Missouri State Militia, was ordered by the Department of the East at Governors Island to arrange for the quick mobilization of the Missouri guard encamped here. General Scales says that the State troop can be mobilized quickly and that two regiments can be placed on a war footing within thirty-six hours of receiving orders for action.

El Paso, April 23.—Five extra trains left the city of Chihuahua this morning en route for Juarez. The rebel officers are reticent concerning them, but there is a strong belief that they carry troops. Colonel Hatfield, in command of the American troops on duty here, has informed the War Department of the movement and is in communication with headquarters by direct wire. So far there has been no trouble here, but the tension is increasing hourly, and it would require only a trivial incident to start serious race riots.

EDWARD BERRY'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of Edward Berry was held this morning at the home of his son-in-law, Edward Schillinger, of Church street, and at 9 o'clock from St. Mary's R. C. church. Rev. Father McDonald conducted the solemn requiem mass. The bearers were Daniel Conway, John Kelley, William and Patrick Berry, Thomas Love and Michael Decoursey. Interment was made at St. Mary's cemetery.

The Young Men's Hebrew Association tendered a "welcome home" reception to Dr. Max Goldstein and Dr. Meyer Moledezky, last night. The affair took place in the association's temporary rooms at 202 West Front street and was in honor of the young men's return after two years of medical study abroad. Several hours were passed in the form of a smoker, during which there were reminiscent stories, songs and impromptu numbers. Refreshments were served in conclusion.

Drs. Goldstein and Moledezky were charter members of the Y. M. H. A., the association being organized at the latters home. They have always maintained their interest in it and the reception was in recognition of their support.

The committee in charge of the affair was composed of Henry Rosenbaum, Charles Kurtzman, Sam Meyers and Louis Rothberg.

Carranza Also Denounces Wilson.

HIS STAND DETERMINED

El Paso, Tex., April 23.—Generals Carranza and Villa and the Constitutionalists do not believe the action of the United States against the Huerta government is justified. In reply to a request from Washington that a statement of position be given by the first chief of the Constitutionalist party General Carranza sent a long message to President Wilson.

The text of the message was not made public, but the document contains a statement that while the action of the United States government is against Huerta, who is, in fact, a usurper, yet he is possessed of certain representative power of the Mexican people, and, having such representative power, the action of the Washington government is not justified.

The message of Carranza was sent direct to President Wilson. On the border it is considered that the position of Carranza is the most serious phase of the Mexican situation that now faces the United States. General Villa was present when the message was written and is known to approve all that it contains.

Villa's Napoleonic Visions.

This means that it represents 12,000 armed Mexican rebels. Many believe that Villa, flushed by his victories against Huerta's troops and because of the praise heaped upon him for his generalship and military ability, having visions of becoming an American Napoleon, dictated a large part of that message.

It is declared that the first message from Carranza sent here for translation was much stronger than the one finally transmitted to President Wilson. The first was a virtual declaration of war against the United States, it is declared, but Roberto Pesqueira, Carranza's representative here, returned it to Chihuahua with suggested changes, which Carranza complied with.

The seriousness of the situation becomes apparent when it is understood that there are 2,000 miles of Mexican-American border with many cities on the international line, rebels holding all Mexican ports opposite this territory. El Paso is the largest, but Laredo, Eagle Pass, Brownsville, Del Rio and several other towns of considerable size lie just across the border from the Mexican ports held by the rebels. Westward from here Douglas, Nogales and Naco, in Arizona, are on the line.

Dead Bodies Strew the Streets.

Vera Cruz, April 23.—The cost to the Mexicans of their futile resistance to the Americans cannot be estimated because of the fact that most of the dead and wounded were taken away by their comrades. Scores of corpses, mostly of soldiers and police, were, however, strewn in the streets, and it is believed that the Mexicans lost something like 200. Most of the dead were found about the Plaza de la Constitucion.

Captain Huse, Rear Admiral Fletcher's chief of staff, has not yet received word from General Maas, commander of the garrison here. It is believed that he has fled westward with his forces.

Detachments of men of the signal corps have been posted on all the advantageous positions in the city to keep watch on the Mexican troops.

As the American troops advanced through the city for the purpose of clearing away any further possibility of resistance there were many pitiful scenes when women with children in their arms besought mercy in the belief that they were about to be put to death.

There is very little shooting in the captured city now, the Mexican commanders apparently having restrained their men, but the latter once in awhile stopped at street corners and fired on the marines and bluejackets.

Special trains which left Mexico City with Americans aboard have not arrived, and it is feared that the line has been cut. Great uneasiness is felt here regarding the Americans in the capital, and the fact that the American charge d'affaires has not arrived here adds to the apprehension. It is believed, however, that General Huerta will take all possible steps to protect foreigners.

The captain of the German steamer Ypiranga readily acquiesced in the order of the American commander not to attempt to land the large cargo of munitions of war consigned to President Huerta and placed his vessel at the disposal of Admiral Fletcher. He promised not to leave the harbor unless a norther compels him to seek safety in the open sea.

All the American women and children have gone aboard the Ward liners Esperanza and Mexico by order of Rear Admiral Fletcher.

The heaviest fighting was in the streets near the custom house, where Lieutenants Wainwright, Ainsworth and Lerry of the Florida were in charge of the landing forces. This accounts for the fact that the Florida's men lost so many in dead and wounded.

House to House Search.

Noncombatants were safe in the depot throughout the fighting. They fairly fought for places of vantage where they might witness the advance of the marines.

When the city hall was seized it was discovered that most of the officials had apparently fled.

There being no officials to preserve order, it was evident that there was no other course for Admiral Fletcher to pursue but to fight his own way into possession of the city and assume control.

While the fighting was in progress the mayor of Vera Cruz turned up and visited Consul Canada under a flag of truce. Nothing was accomplished in the conference which they held, however, and the marines began a house to house search for "snipers."

The American forces were resisted mainly by an unorganized rabble of citizens of the lower class. Few of the upper class were in evidence during the fighting.

The rattle of rifles and the deafening booming of the guns of the warships swept and shook the entire city. Intense excitement prevailed and the peons ran bewildered and terror stricken before the advance of the marines.

The men moved forward in perfect order until the word was given to break into small squads and hunt out the "snipers." Then came a chase over housetops and into private residences to drive out the sharpshooters.

JAPAN STRICTLY NEUTRAL.

Tokyo Government Announces Its Attitude In Mexican Issue.

Tokyo, April 23.—The Japanese government will remain strictly neutral in so far as the war between the United States and Mexico is concerned. This was the announcement of government officials here. A Japanese warship is now on the Pacific coast of Mexico and will stand ready to take Japanese citizens aboard should it be necessary for them to leave Mexico.

MORE BATTLESHIPS ORDERED TO MEXICO

Re-enforce Fleets on East and West Coasts.

Washington, April 23.—The navy department continues to add to the formidable fleet of war vessels now gathered in Mexican waters. Secretary Daniels has ordered four more battleships and four torpedo destroyers to proceed at once as re-enforcements to the American vessels on the east and west coasts.

The battleships Georgia, Virginia and Nebraska, now at the Boston navy yard, and the West Virginia and four torpedo destroyers now at San Diego, Cal., received these orders yesterday. In addition two reserve cruisers have been ordered to be commissioned immediately for use in Mexican waters.

The most interesting phase of the naval orders was the movement of vessels on the Pacific coast. For several days the navy department has been increasing the strength of the United States fleet on the west coast of Mexico. Several of the vessels have been ordered to Santa Cruz, which is the western terminus of the Tehuantepec railroad. It has been said that vessels were being rushed there for the protection of American freight over this railroad, but the belief is that both the eastern and western terminals of this road will be seized within a short time.

Another explanation of the increasing of the naval force on the Pacific coast is that precautions are being taken to prevent shipments of arms from the orient falling into the hands of Huerta. So far as can be learned the navy department has no information of any actual consignment of arms and ammunition from the east.

The West Virginia has been ordered to report to Rear Admiral Howard, commander of the Pacific fleet, whose flagship is now at Mazatlan. The department announced also that the Maryland will leave Mare island for the west coast of Mexico on Friday. The Third division of the Atlantic fleet, consisting of the Georgia, Virginia and Nebraska, will sail from Boston on Saturday under orders to report to Rear Admiral Badger.

Plainfield, N. J., April 23, 1914.

MR. CALKINS' PLAN.

Councilman Calkins suggested as good a plan as any that has been offered in Plainfield for the solution of the liquor problem. Aside from those people who are opposed to any license whatsoever, we believe that a majority of the people in the city will approve of the suggestions of this able city father. That City Counsel Reed considers it a good solution of the question, which is becoming one that is annually agitated here, is demonstrated by the fact that Mr. Calkins had his assistance and advice in drafting the ordinance.

Plainfield is more or less stirred up every year by the liquor question, and it usually takes a couple of months for the Council to settle the matter. The people sit placidly by and let anybody run for Council without quizzing them as to how they stand on the liquor question, and then when some one who favors more licenses gets elected, the voters rise up in their wrath, hold indignation meetings, and scare the refractory city father into voting the way they wish. Mr. Calkins' proposed ordinance would solve this problem. There would be one retail place for every 2,500 people, and one wholesale place for each 6,000, if the new act is passed. This would make it possible next year to provide one more wholesale place, and down the monopoly argument which is so constantly heard, and would keep the number of saloons as they are until the State census of 1915 is made public, probably adding another place or two in 1916.

Mr. Calkins suggestion will of course be opposed by all avowed prohibitionists who naturally would object to any ordinance providing for more saloons at any time, no matter what the growth of the city. If that policy were persisted in, it would inevitably bring a break, as it stands to reason that at some time in the future an additional license or two will be granted by some Council, unless the people are mighty watchful of the men they choose. Such granting will break the present custom, and then there will be nothing left to go by, in deciding what our limit will be.

Thus it is seen that a policy established now is of much greater importance to the city than the actual number of wholesale places at the present time. Get the limit fixed by ordinance and it will have as great a moral influence as the Tyler zone act has on the territory where saloons can be opened.

If such an ordinance as Mr. Calkins proposes were passed it would stand with the Tyler Zone, and make it practically impossible for future councils to disturb Plainfield's splendid policy of regulating the liquor traffic.

"STARVE THE FLY."

Fly swatting time will soon be here with the usual activities, charges and attacks, thrusts and parries, loss of temper and the customary rear guard of disappointments. In anticipation of the impending conflict, one will take satisfaction in running down some of the old veterans left over from last year to be the happy parents of several billions of offspring in 1914. With perfect glee, these old stock are laid low and one feels that one has saved a billion swats or more of the coming summer time. In some cities, the boys receive ten cents apiece for the pelts of these big bull-flies—better than paying ten cents a pound for their offspring after a while.

The new slogan for the summer fly campaign in Plainfield should be "Starve the Fly." This is the real up-to-date battle cry of the erstwhile fly-swatters. To prepare for the new campaign provided you have not already done so, go down town and buy a covered, airtight garbage can instead of purchasing a fly-swatter. Then start in to cleanse the premises, renovate the back yard and remove all refuse which is guaranteed to hatch perfect young flies. In this city the Board of Health has ordered that foodstuffs be kept covered in the stores and the restaurants have doors and screens to save eatables for human beings.

These are just a few of the methods adopted to keep the fly from getting a square meal wherever he goes. Right now, the campaign should be along two lines for every householder—swat the old bull-flies and solve the garbage disposal problem. The removal of refuse NOW will be effective in keeping down the swarms of flies this summer. "Starve the Fly" is a good slogan; it furnishes a warning and an incentive for urgent action. Keeping one's premises clean is a guarantee of protection from the pests, disease spreaders and all-around pirates, otherwise designated as house flies, whose lives have been condemned to extinction by methods of cleanliness and sanitation.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Mr. Matthews is quoted as saying in Plainfield on Monday night that I have no more idea of what suffrage would mean to the nation than he has of what it would mean to Zuzuland. I do not know how well-informed he is as to Zuzuland, either geographically or politically, but I do know that he gave no evidence of knowing how woman suffrage has worked in those states which have had it for many years, when "debating" with me in Cranford last Friday night, and showed no realizing sense of the ethics of a debate either. Under the rules of the Cranford debate I was given thirty minutes to present the suffrage side and he then had the same length of time in which to present the anti side, after which I had fifteen minutes for a reply, Mr. Matthews had twenty minutes and I had a final five minutes.

He spent all of his first period in mis-stating what I had said. The following is a fair sample of this: I had stated that there were 69,000 women employed in the sweatshops and factories of New Jersey, pointing out the difficulty of passing laws to better their conditions of work and claiming that the same number of working men would receive much more consideration from our lawmakers (which everyone knows is true!). Mr. Matthews, referring to this said, "Mrs. Feickert has told you that there are 69,000 working women in this State. If you subtract from this number the thousands who are working in our kitchens, you will find that the number employed in sweatshops and factories is so small as not to need any especial protective legislation." By this maneuver he forced me to devote a good part of my second period to setting straight his mis-statements of my presentation of the suffrage side. Not until his second speech did he present the anti-suffrage side of the case, leaving me only five minutes in which to answer his arguments.

The question asked me by anti-suffragists which he says I did not answer was this, "How do the liquor laws in the ten suffrage States and in Ohio, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and, I think, Massachusetts, compare?" I would certainly not undertake to recite off-hand the liquor laws of fourteen States, and neither would anyone else with any regard for accuracy of statement.

Mr. Matthews also mis-states the facts when he says that a vote for or against suffrage was taken at the close of the meeting, in which I had a majority of eight votes. Mr. Gellatly, the chairman of the meeting, distinctly stated that the vote would not be for or against suffrage, but solely on the merits of the debate. Mr. Matthews accounts for his defeat by saying that he was speaking before "an audience of suffragettes." As there were at least thirty Antis present from Plainfield, Westfield and Elizabeth, in addition to the Cranford Antis, Mr. Matthews was not so friendless as he would have us believe.

During his one term in the Assembly, Mr. Matthews voted against the bill raising the age of protection for girls from sixteen to eighteen years, and he said in Cranford that the State of Delaware in allowing its age of protection for girls to remain at eight years, no doubt expects "their natural guardians," their fathers, to protect them (by hanging those who injure them perhaps? That is the way it is done in the South!).

What Mr. Matthews continually harped upon at Cranford was the value of Public Opinion against the value of the vote. Regarding one as a substitute for the other is a rather novel idea. He also announced his candidacy for the State Senate next fall, and said that as I was supposed to be responsible for the near-defeat of his friend, Assemblyman Leonard, in Union county, he presumed I would do my best to defeat him also. This is not likely to be a very difficult task. We may safely leave him to the Public Opinion of which he thinks so highly. No doubt Public Opinion, using the vote as a means of expression, will keep Mr. John Matthews out of the New Jersey Senate.

I see that he insisted at the Plainfield meeting that Suffrage and Feminism were one and the same thing. I pointed out in Cranford that, just as many suffragists belonged to different religious bodies and had different political affiliations, so that there were some very radical suffragists and also a great many who were very conservative. I then read an extract from a speech of Josephine Dodge Daskam Bacon at an Anti-Suffrage luncheon at the Hotel Somerset, Boston, on January 13, as reported by the Boston Journal, which is as follows:

"The difference between feminism and suffrage must be clearly distinguished. I believe in the latchkey for women. I believe in better pay for woman's work—I even believe that the man should hand over to the woman, not as a charity, but as her pay for running his house and rearing his family, part of the money that he earns. But I am not a suffragist merely because I have never seen a way in which the ballot could help me."

It is quite evident that Mr. Matthews' ideas are identical with those of the little book entitled "Votes for Men," sold in the Anti-Suffrage headquarters, and advertised in "The Woman's Protest" among "Books recommended for reading," which presents the following ideal for women:

"It is not by cultivating her social instincts, feeling for justice, fair play and broad human outlook, that woman is going to help on the race. As much as she turns her attention to the public good, by so much she destroys the race she is trying to serve, and this is no Irish bull either. She can't be fair-minded even without becoming a poor mother. Maternity like love must be blind. If the mother of little Johnny Brown, for instance, is a rational woman, and realizes that little Johnny Jones is just as pleasing a specimen as her wall-eyed offspring, and just as due to consideration, she might be more fair-minded, but she would not be so crazy to make her own little Johnny something truly great and good, at the expense maybe if necessary of all the other little Johnnies in creation. No woman is naturally fair-minded and sanely just. She is intense, she is irrational, she is crazy. She is a born partisan from the word go."

Perhaps the anti-suffragists are willing to accept this standard for womanhood. The suffragists most emphatically are not willing to do so.

MRS. E. F. FEICKERT.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

Feeling that a gross injustice has been done me, I crave the indulgence of yourself and readers to the extent of enough space to vigorously protest against what I call an inhuman action on the part of Muhlenberg Hospital's executive force. My nine-year-old daughter was stricken with diphtheria last week and her condition became such on Saturday night as to make Dr. Kate McGrath, of Stirling, order her immediate removal to the hospital as a means of saving her life. We had no anti-toxin or emergency appliances at home, so hurriedly drove the three miles to Plainfield. Arriving in town, Dr. McGrath called Muhlenberg on the telephone and after being shifted from one person to another four times, was finally told she would have to state her case to Dr. Murray. The latter was not at home, so she was informed on calling, and reference to the hospital again brought instruction to call Dr. Ard. The child all this time, mind you, was almost choking to death in the carriage.

Dr. Ard was located and announced that the little sufferer could not be received at the institution as a case of scarlet fever was already in the contagious ward. Pleadings or protests were of no avail, so after procuring some anti-toxin I had to drive back home. It was with bitterness and anxiety mixed, that the journey commenced; as both Dr. McGrath, myself and wife, the latter being with me, believed my daughter would die before getting home. Fortunately, she responded to treatment and is now convalescent, thanks to the doctor.

I submit these facts so the people of Plainfield will appreciate my position. If the hospital is not equipped to handle a case such as this, why doesn't it say so? Why is it that a case of scarlet fever means the exclusion of one of diphtheria or vice versa? I have been a contributor to Muhlenberg since the late Dr. Rodman made his first appeal in 1882 and yet when I ask the present staff to aid me in saving my child's life, I am turned away with the ridiculous excuse mentioned.

I am frank to say the institution has done a great deal of good in the past, but my own experience has been one of many blunders made since the citizens gave over $125,000 to meet the community's needs. If the place is not to be called on in an emergency, then what in the name of common sense are we to do? I was willing to pay for all I received although the present prices for rooms and things are enough to bankrupt any but a millionaire and yet with all the new buildings there is no room for a child in the throes of death and three miles from home. How long are the citizens going to stand for it? If this sort of thing keeps up, I'll guarantee the slogan will be "God bless old Muhlenberg but defend us from the new!"

Sincerely yours,
W. H. ROGERS.

INCREASED INTEREST MARKED YEARS' WORK

Annual Report of President of High School Parent-Teacher Association.

Following is the very interesting report of Mrs. G. Stuart Simons, as president of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Plainfield High School, which was presented at the annual meeting Tuesday night:

"This annual meeting marks really two school years of activity for the High School Parent-Teacher Association, as we re-organized in January, 1913. The excellent reports of our officers and committees show in detail the work we have accomplished along definite lines, but could not possibly give any idea of the results accomplished by awakening in us a new interest in our own boys and girls and a broader interest in all boys and girls. Our special object in organizing this association of parents and teachers was to work together for the good of our children. To do this our plan was to provide opportunities for better acquaintance, appointed times for conference to discuss individual needs and public meetings for the discussion of general needs of the High School children.

"This plan has been successfully worked out in conferences in classrooms before or after each meeting and by providing competent leaders of discussions in general topics of interest.

"The teacners have cheerfully taken advantage of these opportunities by inviting parents to meet them at appointed times and the parents have gladly availed themselves of their opportunity to freely discuss with the teacher the best way to help the children make the most of their school lives.

"If we had done nothing else than increase the interest of a few parents our work would have been worth while, but like all unselfish works our efforts for others have multiplied good for ourselves and we have profited by our comradeship.

"Our affiliation with the State and National Congress has brought us many advantages such as free literature, representation at the State congresses and councils where we have been fully represented, broadening our view point by hearing the views of the best educators and the experience of other associations which influences are sure to be felt individually and as an association.

"Such work as we have done could only be accomplished by the co-operation of the members of the association and I take this opportunity to thank the officers, the committees and members for their willingness to run the machinery and their interest in all that has been done. I consider it a great privilege and honor to be a member or officer of such an association. In closing I recommend that the same spirit of co-operation be continued and that we keep ever before us the object of our association.

"Better acquaintanceship of parents and teachers that we may co-operate intelligently in the education of our children using systematic earnest efforts to this end."

TAPS FROM THE GAVEL.

Lodges scheduled to meet tonight are as follows: Central Lodge, No. 48, A. O. U. W., at Exempt Firemen's Hall; Jerusalem Chapter, No. 24, F. and A. M., at the Babcock building; Franklin Council, No. 41, Jr. O. U. A. M., at Junior Hall; Unity Lodge, No. 102, K. of P., at K. of P. Hall; Trafalgar Lodge, No. 506, O. S. of St. G., at the Coward Hall, and Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, at the Babcock building.

Members of the A. O. U. W., of this city, will be shocked to hear of the death of Past Grand Master Edward H. Colyer, of Newark, who died at his home on Monday of heart trouble. The funeral services are being conducted this afternoon at the St. Paul's M. E. church, of Newark. Mr. Colyer was interested in lodge work for many years and is well known in this city.

Two candidates were initiated into the mysteries of the Plainfield Aerie, No. 866, F. O. E., at the meeting of the lodge held last night. Final preparations for the annual ball to be held at Sebring Auditorium, Wednesday, April 29, were made. Halbfoerster's orchestra, of Elizabeth, will furnish music for the occasion.

PLAN FOR MASS MEETING.

The executive committee of the Union County Christian Endeavor Union met Tuesday night and transacted routine business, the mass meeting to be held next month and the fresh air work to be carried on this summer by the union, each occupying a prominent part in the discussions of the evening.

TRINITY HAD A PROSPEROUS YEAR

Reports at Annual Meeting Show That Much Was Accomplished.

RECEIPTS OVER $10,000

According to Statistics Bible School Largest in the County—Elders and Deacons Elected for Coming Year.

The reports as received at the annual meeting of the congregation of Trinity Reformed church, last night, indicated that the church had enjoyed a prosperous year, financially and otherwise. F. S. Cutter acted as chairman of the gathering, while Raymond Cutter filled the position of clerk.

The election of officers resulted in the re-election of Albert L. Force, Frederick E. Smith and William Oliver to succeed themselves as elders, for a term of two years. Edgar F. Sheppard, Fred Smith, Jr., and W. J. Trembath were elected as deacons, the first named to succeed himself, for a term of two years. Manning F. Gano and Charles M. Dolliver were the retiring members of the board. Sixty-one new members have been added to the church during the year, while twelve have died. The net increase in membership is twenty-seven.

The Bible school is now the largest in Union county, and has made considerable progress. The benevolent funds of this organization amounted to $188, with $595 being raised by the Mission Society of the school. The Christian Endeavor Society showed great activity during the year, bringing their membership up to eighty-five. The Junior Society has a membership of fifty-nine. The Ladies' Christian Work Society, the Dutch Arms Society and Band, and the Young Women's Mission Society all presented reports which indicated the accomplishment of much work.

The consistory of the church presented the anual budget, which was adopted by the gathering. It was also voted to make an every-member canvass of the congregation, which would greatly help in the smooth running of the finances of the church.

The financial reports of the various organizations show the following receipts for the year: Church treasurer, running expense, $6,014; for benevolent purposes, $1,434; Bible School, $1,956; Bible School Missionary Society, $505; Willing Workers, Class No. 30, $60.12; St. Paul's Brotherhood, $35.83; Loyal Band, 103.97; Home Department, $304.20; Missionary Fund, $50; Ladies' Christian Work Society, $583.49; Dutch Arms Society, $417.25; Dutch Arms Concert Band, $1,041.88; Y. P. S. C. E., $240.10; missionary fund, $75; Jr. S. C. E., $37.68, and Young Women's Mission Band, $233.89.

The statistical report is as follows: Number of families in the church, 454; received during the year, on confession, 30; on certificate, 20; members died, 12; dismissed, 11; members in full communion active list, 814; absent list, 169; baptisms, infants, 7; adults 9; enrollment of Bible school, main department, 684; home department, 398; total, 1,082; cradle roll, 74; grand total, 1,156. The total estimated expense is $5,664.60, and the estimated receipts were almost the same. The fact that the Dutch Arms Band's receipts for the year amounted to $1,041.88 was the occasion of favorable comment.

SIMPLE DEVICE SOLVES MOST ANNOYING PROBLEM

By the simple expedient of bending a piece of steel, F. N. Hibbitts, superintendent of motive power of the Lehigh Valley Railroad, has solved one of the most annoying of the smaller difficulties of railroading. He has invented a tender tank that does not leak. The old type of tank was always springing a leak in the bottom through a rivet hole or where an angle-iron at a corner became loosened, but in Mr. Hibbitts' style of tank flanges are used, these having proved stronger and easier to repair and have now become standard on the Lehigh Valley.

It is through apparently simple expedients of this kind that the great progress in railroading has been made. Anything that saves time and expense is never lost in the railroad world.

"JERSEY'S LIQUOR PROBLEM."

Under the joint auspices of the Plainfield Federation of Men's Bible Classes and the Anti-Saloon League of New Jersey, a men's mass meeting will be held in the Plainfield theatre on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. "New Jersey's Liquor Problem and Its Solution" will be discussed by men who are leading in the State-wide movement for local option legislation. The "Dutch Arms" Band, of Trinity Reformed church, will play. All men are invited.

WEAK STICKING IN THE PINCHES LOST CREDITABLE EXHIBITION FOR LOCALS

Inability to deliver the necessary bingle with men on the paths was the cause of a 4 to 2 defeat handed to the Plainfield High School clan on Parker Field, yesterday afternoon, by the crack Rahway High School outfit. The result was a pleasant surprise to supporters of the local team and was the next best thing to a victory which would have appeared little short of miraculous had it been accomplished. The Rahwayans came here as popular favorites and were conceded to be easy victors by virtue of their remarkable showing against other teams in the State.

The Plainfielders, however, more than held their own against the invaders and the game was either team's until the final round was completed. The locals had the pleasure of robbing the visitors of a number of well directed bingles at crucial moments of play. Rahway got its runs on clean-cut hitting and Plainfield had numerous opportunities to pull tying counters across the pan only to have the pinch man fall down in the hitting art. VanDeventer was once more the shining light for the Plainfield crew, bagging a trio of pretty flies in the left field garden and delivered his usual two sacker in the ninth, scoring the final run. He poled out three hits and O'Leary and Victorson each secured a brace. Schwitzer was credited with a brace for Rahway.

Sminck did the hurling for P. H. S. and was in fine fettle, allowing but six hits and fanning three. Rahway yielded twelve hits to the Plainfielders.

ELKS MAY FORM BASEBALL TEAM

PLENTY OF TALENT

Bowling League Clubs Named as Possible Entrants in League to Be Run During the Coming Season—Plan Has Met Favorable Response.

Following the conclusion of another season of successive pinning in the Elks Bowling League, several clubs on the circuit are advocating the formation of a baseball league to operate over the same territory during the summer months. All of the ten lodges on the bowling circuit have members who can toss the horsehide and cavort about the baseball diamond and a ball league would prove a monster success beyond a doubt. Plainfield Elks are recognized as ball players of high calibre and the Queen City lodge would enter such a project the moment it was made a reality.

Several years ago a select few of the Elks clubs in various parts of the metropolitan district formed baseball nines and some exciting mid-week games were staged in this and other cities. At that time Plainfield turned out a nine that was capable of putting up a formidable fight against all comers and many of the veterans of that combination are still available.

Elizabeth, Newark, New Brunswick, New York, Paterson, Rahway and Jersey City lodges have also been mentioned as possible contenders and it is understood that the sentiment for such an organization is favorable to all of the above mentioned organizations. Each of these clubs boast of a nucleus of stars around which clever teams could easily be moulded and there is no reason why the baseball league should not be just as great a success as the bowling league.

In the event of this proposition becoming a reality it now seems certain that the contests will be staged during the middle of the week, probably Wednesday afternoons and Saturdays. There are good baseball parks in all of the towns arranged on the tentative list and the same governing body that ran the bowling circuit could probably be induced to accept the responsibilities of the proposed ball league.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Although the baseball season has only recently been ushered in some exceedingly clever talent has come to light in the various amateur camps in this city and the coming months of competition give every promise of being banner ones. Among the shining lights of the opening days is Laskoski, a new man to local baseball followers. This individual is a natural born slab artist and has been corraled by the Jefferson Democratic Club politicians who expect him to take care of everything that comes his way this summer. The new man is an artist built for the game and has a fine assortment of twisters intermingled with some of the smoke stuff. In the opening game of the season last Saturday afternoon Laskoski had the Monroe batters standing on their heads during the nine rounds of play and the best they could do with his early season flinging was the snatch of a couple of safeties. Hope Chapel will be put to a crucial preseason test Saturday afternoon when it faces the "Hume-Rulers" hurler.

His fellow clubmen claim that he was not in the best form in the opening contest but as yet no one has ventured a prediction concerning his ability when in mid-season form. Better take a crack at him before he gets warmed up.

Shifts and shakeups are common at this period of the season in schoolboy baseball camps but we are forced to note the same faces appear on the batting list even after the greatest eruptions. High School coaches have a habit of throwing scares into the midst of the unsophisticated schoolboy performers, but without exception they always hold a tight string to the deposed player. Every schoolboy aggregation has its array of stars and although an occasional phenom appears on the horizon the cast of characters remains pretty nearly the same throughout the summer months.

There has been some agitation going the rounds during the last fortnight concerning the advisability of forming a representative ball nine for the Queen City to perform here during the coming season, but local magnates all appear to be backward in arriving at definite conclusions. Among the most likely teams around which a strong delegation could be moulded are the Public Service and Monroe combinations. Both of these clubs have some clever ball artists on their rosters and either would form an excellent nucleus if the proper person took hold of the managerial end of the deal. Why not "take a chance" one one or the other of the teams and provide representative baseball for us here this season?

Haven't heard a murmur from the Fitzsimmon's camp since little Maximus came out and announced his intention of entering the fight pastime. "Ruby Robert" as a loyal Cornishman, evidently respects the powers of this twentieth century Hercules. It's a safe bet that a majority of these would be scrappers who were clamoring for recognition a short time ago will keep under cover while there's a chance to do some real fighting with the Mexican "greasers" as opponents.

Warm weather and the rain during the last week has left the cinder path at Parker Field in excellent shape and a large number of local sprinters and long distance pluggers are taking advantage of the opportunity to work out winter's kinks. From the array of talent that frequents the local rendezvous track possibilities for Plainfield during the coming summer look rosy.

History has failed to repeat in the cases of the Spicer, Royal Giant, West End A. C., First Presbyterian and Netherwood A. B. baseball clubs as yet this season. Some of these aggregations have contracted the deplorable habit of getting up steam when it is time to draw the curtain while others will be back numbers in local diamond competition this summer if present circumstances are to be taken by the dopester as a criterion.

The manager of the All Star basketball team that is scheduled to perform in Saengerbund Hall a week from tomorrow night has threatened to desert the proposed plan of action. Never heard of anybody dying for the want of basketball with the mercury flirting with the eighties. Better let well enough alone, in our estimation.

PITCHERS WHO HAVE RUN UP BIG STRINGS

Chesbro, Walsh and Mathewson Have Some Unique Records.

Pitchers employed by New York clubs hold the major league records (counting from 1901 on) for winning the greatest number of games in a season. Jack Chesbro led the Yankees to 41 victories in 1904, the year he sprang the spitball on the objecting opposition, and that mark never has been beaten. Christy Mathewson piloted the Giants to 37 victories four years later and then hung up a National League record that still stands.

Chesbro's record of 41 wins almost was equalled by Ed. Walsh, of the White Sox, in 1908, the big spitball expert coming through with 40 triumphs. The third best record in the American League is held by Walter Johnson, of Washington, who, while winning a Chalmers car last year, captured 36 contests. Joe Wood, of the Red Sox, the year previous, annexed 34. American Leaguers who have won 32 games in a season are Johnson and Cy Young, while Jack Coombs and Cy succeeded in winning 31 games in a campaign.

In the National League, in the last thirteen years, the men who have won 30 or more games in one season are Mathewson, who has turned the trick four times; and Joe McGinnity, who has turned it twice. Christy came out on top in 37 battles in 1908, won 33 in 1904, landed 31 in 1905 and was victorious in 30 in 1903.

Just thirty men have succeeded in winning 25 or more games in a year since the American League expanded in 1901. Of these heroes not one was a Cardinal, a Brown, a Redleg or a Brewer, Milwaukee having been in fast company in 1901. Mathewson has won 25 or more games in eight seasons, Joe McGinnity in four, Cy Young in four, Mordecai Brown in four, Walter Johnson in three, Bill Donovan in two, Eddie Plank in two, "Rube" Waddell in two, Jack Coombs in two, Ed Walsh in two, Jack Chesbro in two, Joe Wood in one, Bill Bernhard in one, George Mullin in one, Grover Alexander in one, Al Orht in one, Addie Joss in one, "Doc" White in one, "Chief" Bender in one, Tom Seaton in one, Charley Pittinger in one, Vic Willis in one, Russell Ford in one, Larry Cheney in one, "Rube" Marquard in one, Sam Leever in one, "Deacon" Phillippe in one, Frank Smith in one, Eddie Killian in one and Howard Camnitz in one. The full list follows:

FOUL FLAGS FOR HYDE OVAL.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team has been presented with two red foul flags by the Misses Edna French and Mary Robley, teachers in the Somerset School. The flags were used in the last game and they are the first ones that the borough athletic association has ever had. They will prove a big help to the umpires and also in other ways.

MATCH GAMES POSTPONED.

The Elks' Club Bowling League series scheduled to be rolled between the Kiely and VanEmburgh forces on the club's alleys tonight, has been indefinitely postponed owing to the absence from the city of the captain of the former quintet.

HOPE'S TEAM HAD A GOOD SEASON

Seventy-five Per Cent. of Basketball Contests Resulted in Victories.

NOTABLE VICTORIES

Credited with five defeats and fifteen victories the Hope Chapel basketball team successfully brought its 1913-14 basketball campaign to a close with an average of 750 per cent. Considering the calibre of teams against which the aggregation waged its battles the record is an unusually creditable one and as in other years the Hope contingent is well up among the leaders for the laurels that are laying around loose in this section. Included in the victories are two of a decisive nature played with the Y. M. C. A. team, in which the city championship was at stake.

Jim Doig and the Heron brothers did the bulk of the scoring from the field and foul line while the other members of the outfit served in an excellent style in their respective capacities.

HOPE CHAPEL TO OPEN.

The Hope Chapel baseball team, of the Sunday-school League, will open its schedule of pre-season games Saturday afternoon on Hope Common, when the Jefferson Democratic Club outfit will furnish the opposition. The Democrats last Saturday held the strong Monroe crew to a 1 to 0 score and as a result much interest is manifested in the Hope Chapel clash.

CLIFF RANDOLPH TO PITCH FIRST GAME

Perth Amboy Board of Trade Arranging Elaborate Opening Day Program.

Cliff Randolph will twirl the opening game for the Perth Amboy team, of the Atlantic League, in that city, May 20, according to present plans, and at a meeting of the Board of Trade, held yesterday, the directors of the club made final arrangements for a gala opening day program. The events include a luncheon at noon for the guests, an automobile parade, which will start at 1:15 o'clock in the afternoon and arrive at the new ball park before the game, a grand concert preceding the contest and a dollar dinner in the evening.

The details have been left in the hands of the committee, and it is assured that Manager "Billy" Pfau's team of Pacers will open their season in a manner which shows that their efforts to place Perth Amboy on the baseball map have the earnest backing of both the fans and business men. Arrangements are being made to accommodate hundreds of out-of-town visitors who will flock to Amboy to witness the initial tilt.

GRACE CHURCH BASKETBALL TEAMS GUESTS AT BANQUET

Members of the Grace Church basketball team and the Boys' Club were guests at a banquet served in the parish house, last night, under the direction of the Misses Avery and Egan. Eighteen boys were present at the affair and following the dinner an informal program of speechmaking was enjoyed.

The Rev. E. Vicars Stevenson was the principal speaker and took for his subject, "A Sport." He lauded the work being done by the boys in the club and advocated clean sportsmanship among the members. Other talks were delivered by Raymond Manley and Daniel F. McNamee, the manager of the basketball team.

COMPANY K MARKSMEN SET A PRECEDENT IN SHOOTING

For the first time in the history of Company K every man qualified in the efficiency tests conducted in the armory on West Front street, last night, every man passing the qualifying mark of ninety points. The lowest score out of the sixty-one turned in was 104 and the showing of the Plainfield militia is considered little more than remarkable. The local soldiers have been drilled regularly in the shooting art and have mastered marksmanship in a creditable manner. Representatives from Company M in Somerville assisted in keeping the local shooters scores last night and several Plainfielders will act in a like capacity when the efficiency tests are held in that place tonight.

The scores:

Captain Peterson, 138; Sergeant Apgar, 147; Sergeant Thompson, 138; Sergeant DeCamp, 134; Corporal Glover, 139; Corporal Perrine, 146; Corporal Tranchand, 145; Private Archbold, 141; Private Kennedy, 135; Private Osman, 139; Private Millwater, Sr., 131; Private Dentz, 119; Private French, 128; Private Houston, 133; Private Millwater, Samuel, 125; Private Wahl, 125; Private Laing, 121; First Lieutenant Phillips, 147; Sergeant Pearson, 139; Sergeant Howell, 142; Sergeant Van Arsdale, 141; Corporal Kmosko, 121; Corporal Johnson, 123; Artificer Hansen, 136; Private Bird, 138; Private Heinold, 131; Private Miller, 139; Private Sharp, 148; Private Trotter, 128; Private Glennon, 141; Private Armory, 138; Private McGoldrick, 132; Private Millwater, Phil, 142; Private Dress, 123; Private Glaentzer, 126; Private Hall, 115; Private Neal, 104; Private Patterson, 115; Private Reynolds, 128; Private Renninger, 127; Private Vogel, 134; Private Wills, 137; Private Wilson, 112; Private Forrester, 132; Private Willard, 122; Private Whitman, 141; Private Shirley, 123; Private Pearson, 114; Private Lant, 126; Private Bowe, 135.

SLONIM'S NEW JEWELRY STORE.

Leo Slonim, the West Front street jeweler, is now fully settled in his new store which has just been completed, after many alterations. The store front is most unusual and there is nothing else like it in the Plainfield business section, having hundreds of pieces of leaded glass. Inside the store is fitted with the finest mahogany show cases that Mr. Slonim could find, and not a deatil has been omitted to make the place bright and cheery. After fourteen years in Plainfield, starting with a small store, which would not now hold the two safes needed to hold the stock of goods carried, Mr. Slonim offers the largest stock the city has even seen in his line. He has a splendid watch repairing and engraving department, conventenily arranged for the work required, as to light and ventilation. Mr. Slonim is a graduate optician, with twenty-five years' experience, which fits him for the work. He was the first person to erect a big street clock on Front street.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depended upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant. —Adv.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If Your Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers You, Drink Lots of Water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowe's clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which removes the body's urinous waste and stimulates them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In 24 hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer is a source of irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which every one should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this, also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Adv.

AN ORDINANCE

To Amend an Ordinance Entitled "An Ordinance Establishing a Sanitary Code for the City of Plainfield," Adopted December 18, 1902.

The Board of Health of the City of Plainfield by virtue of the provisions of the act of the Legislature of the State of New Jersey entitled "An Act to Establish in this State Boards of Health and a Bureau of Vital Statistics and to define their respective powers and duties" approved March 31, 1887, the several supplements and amendments thereto, and of other acts, doth hereby ordain as follows:

That Article No. 13 of the Ordinance to which this is an amendment be and the same is hereby amended so as to read as follows:

ARTICLE
GOVERNING PLUMBING, DRAINAGE, AND VENTILATION.

Section No. 1. The Board of Health shall appoint at the first meeting in February of each year or as soon thereafter as possible a Plumbers' Examining Board, which shall consist of a Plumbing Inspector employed by the Board of Health, a Master Plumber, and a Journeyman Plumber, whose duty it shall be to examine all applicants as to their qualifications to become Master Plumbers, and report results to the Board of Health.

Sec. No. 2. This board may, by resolution, grant licenses as Master Plumber, to such persons as it may deem qualified, which licenses shall be written or partly printed and partly written, bearing the date on which the same is issued and shall be under the seal of this Board and signed by its President and by its Secretary. But no such license shall be granted by this Board until after the applicant therefor shall have offered himself for examination as to his qualifications by the examining board above provided for.

Sec. No. 3. No person shall engage in the business of Master Plumber in the City of Plainfield, or do or undertake to do any work as such in said City, without having such license as aforesaid as Master Plumber from this Board or from the Board of Health of some other municipality of this State.

Sec. No. 4. Every Master Plumber shall, when so requested by any member of the Board of Health, or by the Inspector of Plumbing, exhibit his said license, and upon his failure so to do shall be deemed an unlicensed Master Plumber.

Sec. No. 5. The Board of Health shall have the power to revoke any licenses so issued to any Master Plumber as aforesaid for violating any provisions of this act.

Sec. No. 6. Before any portion of the Plumbing and Drainage System of any new or old building shall be constructed or reconstructed, there shall be a plan filed at the office of the Board of Health and approved by the Plumbing Inspector and signed by the Plumber, showing the said Plumbing and Drainage System entire from its connection with the Sewer or Cesspool throughout the entire building, together with the location of all fixtures, traps and ventilating pipes. No portion of the work shall be executed until the plans have been approved by the Plumbing Inspector of the Board of Health and the name of the Plumber, who is to do the work, has been affixed to the said plans. Before any existing system is altered or added to or any change made in the fixtures in any new or old building, a permit must first be obtained, and in such case an Inspection will be required.

Sec. No. 7. With every plan for a new plumbing system to be installed in the City of Plainfield, a fee of Two Dollars ($2) shall be paid to the Board of Health.

Sec. No. 8. The Board of Health shall be notified by the Plumber when ready for an inspection or test, and the following tests must be made in the presence of the Plumbing Inspector, viz:—the water test and the smoke test before any final certificate can be granted. All defects disclosed must be removed before the granting of such a certificate.

All inspections and tests shall be made during business hours as soon as possible after such notification.

Any such system put in and covered before inspection by the Plumbing Inspector of the Board of Health must be uncovered for inspection.

Sec. No. 9. Except where the Board of Health expressly prescribes otherwise, the following provisions must be observed and any violation or departure therefrom shall be punishable as a breach of this ordinance:

(a) Before laying the drain from the building to the sewer or cesspool, and after the trench is graded, the bottom of the trench must be carefully rammed to avoid settling of the drain. After the pipe is laid, as the trench is filled, the earth must be tightly rammed as near as possible to its original compactness. Tunneling is prohibited. When the ground is made or filled in, the drain extending from the sewer or cesspool to the foundation wall must be extra heavy cast iron pipe of not less than four inches diameter; such pipe must be laid with the joints properly caulked with lead.

(b) Where a building is to be connected with a sewer or cesspool it must be connected by a drain not less than four inches in diameter of extra heavy cast iron pipe, having a fall of not less than one-quarter of an inch to the foot.

(c) Where there is no sewer in the street in which the building faces, and it is necessary to construct a private sewer to connect with a sewer on an adjacent street or avenue, it must be laid outside the curb under the roadway of the street and not through the yards or under houses.

(d) All horizontal sewer drains extending from any building to a point where the City Sewer terminates shall be of extra heavy cast iron pipe not less than four inches in diameter with caulked leaden joints or wrought iron screwed joints, and shall be so located as to be readily accessible for inspection with cleanouts located every fifty feet. The house drain within buildings shall be either cast iron or galvanized wrought iron and shall be securely hung on the cellar wall properly suspended from the cellar ceiling unless this is impracticable, in which case it must be laid at a uniform grade upon a bottom of hydraulic concrete. The house drain shall have a fall of at least one-quarter inch to the foot, and more if possible. Said drains shall be provided with openings for cleaning purposes, the same to be closed by gas-tight brass cleanouts placed just inside the foundation wall.

(e) All cast iron pipes and fittings must be sound, free from flaws and sand holes and when laid underground shall be known as grade "Extra Heavy." The weight of such pipe per lineal foot must be as follows:

2 inch pipe to weigh 5½ pounds.

6 inch pipe to weigh 20 pounds.

All cast iron pipe and fittings above cellar bottom shall be "Extra Heavy" or "Medium" untarred. Pipe known as "Standard Pipe" and fittings shall be prohibited. The weight of "Medium" pipe per lineal foot must be as follows:

All cast iron traps and fittings shall correspond in quality, weight and finish with the above specifications.

All wrought iron or steel pipe shall be lap welded pipe and properly tested at the pipe mills. The weight of wrought iron or steel pipe shall be not less per lineal foot than the following:

5 inch pipe to weigh 14.810 pounds.

All wrought iron or steel pipes and fittings shall be galvanized, and such fittings below the water line, and the highest fixtures, shall be those known in the trade as galvanized drainage fittings.

Lead pipe shall be of the best quality drawn pipe of the grade known in the trade as "d" and shall weigh, per lineal foot, as follows:

1½ inch pipe to weigh 3 pounds.
3 inch pipe to weigh 6 pounds.

Lead traps shall be of the same weight as specified for pipe.

(f) All brass pipes for waste and vent pipes must be thoroughly annealed, seamless drawn brass of standard iron pipe gauge. Connection with brass pipe and traps, or between brass pipe and iron pipe must not be made with slip joints or couplings. Threaded connections on brass pipe must be of the same size of pipe and be tapered. The following average thickness and weights per foot will be required:

Diameter	Thickness	Weight per lineal foot
1¼ inches	.14 inches	3 pounds

(h) Every soil, waste and ventilating pipe must extend up with the pitch of roof in the building and terminate at the ridge of roof, except in a flat roof house in which it shall extend at least six feet above the roof, excepting in all cases of an addition or extension to a building, the vent pipes must be returned back in to main building and thence extended up to the ridge. Each length shall be securely fastened, and each line of soil or waste pipe shall rest at the foot on a pier or foundation to prevent settling. All joints in cast iron drain, soil or waste pipes must be so filled with oakum and lead and hand caulked as to make them gas-tight.

Soil pipe shall be run as nearly vertical as possible, and in all cases horizontal pipes shall have a fall of at least one-fourth inch per foot. No short quarter bends or short offsets, except long sweep bends will be permitted, and when the direction is necessarily changed, Ys, ⅛ bends or long sweep bends must be used. NEEDLEWORK

By MARGARET LAWRENCE

A FORGET-ME-NOT WREATH DESIGN.

Forget-me-not wreaths are very attractive especially when embroidered in the natural colorings. This wreath, illustrated on a nightgown-case, may be developed in the delicate blues and greens with occasionally a touch of pink. The flowers may be carried out in solid work or knot-stitch, and the leaves and bow-knot in solid work. Mercerized cotton, filo silk, very heavy rope silk or ribbon should be used for this design. This wreath is 9½ by 10 inches, and is appropriate for use on nightgown-cases, baby-pillows and bags.

By Alice Gibson

There seems to be a continual demand for the separate blouse. It is fashioned of silk, shadow lace, chiffon and for practical wear the soft flannels are favored. A wool and silk crepe de chine is an excellent material and is dressy enough for almost any occasion.

No. 7431 is a design with a vest which may be of a contrasting material or plain, a full length, set-in sleeve, a removable chemisette and a peplum which may be omitted if not fancied.

The armhole is one of the things that often causes disaster. If care is not taken to prevent it from becoming stretched. A good idea is to run a line of basting stitches around the armhole, especially if the material is a loose weave.

In setting in the sleeves if the pattern notches are followed carefully there will be no trouble.

This blouse may be made in size 36 with 2 yards of 36 inch material and ½ yard of contrasting silk for the vest. The pattern is cut in 5 sizes—34 to 42.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

WHEN SERVING FIGS.

BREAKFAST MENU.
Hashed Lamb on Toast.
Rolls.
Figs and Apple Jam.
Coffee.

FIGS contain from 50 to 75 per cent of fruit sugars; consequently when combined with other foods they contribute much of the necessary sweetening.

Fig Salad.—Stuff figs with chopped celery and nut meats and serve on lettuce with grapefruit pulp, dressed with mayonnaise.

A Combination Jam.

Fig and Apple Jam.—Take five pounds of peeled and sliced tart apples and add to them five pounds of ripe figs and five pounds of granulated sugar. Cook until as thick as desired. Cool before sealing.

Fig Mold.—To one quart of boiling milk add one-half cupful of sugar, a saltspoonful of salt and three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch dissolved in a half cupful of cold water. Cook in a double boiler for an hour; then add one cupful of steamed and chopped figs and lemon juice to flavor. Turn into a mold and serve when cold with whipped and sweetened cream.

Fruit and Cereal.

Rice With Fig Sauce.—Take one cupful of rice, wash thoroughly and put over the fire in a small saucepan with one cupful of boiling water. Cook until the water is absorbed. Have in the double boiler three cupfuls of scalding hot milk, add the rice and a half teaspoonful of salt. Steam until the rice is tender. Meantime cut fine enough figs to make a generous cupful, add water to cover and stew with a tablespoonful of sugar to sweeten. Cook until of the consistency required; then flavor with lemon juice and a little of the grated yellow rind of lemon. Serve with the hot boiled rice.

Figs With Rhubarb.—Take two bunches rhubarb, wash them and cut in inch pieces without peeling. Put into a double boiler with a cupful of sugar and four or five figs cut in small pieces. Cover and cook over the hot water until the rhubarb is tender and the sirup rich and jelly-like in consistency. Raisins may be used with the figs. If you have a hot oven put the rhubarb and figs in a stone pot, cover closely and bake in the oven until jelled.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Big Dog Who Was Frightened By a Bug.

He Leaped Out of the Window.

"WELL, daddy, we're all ready for our story. What's it going to be about tonight?" exclaimed Jack and Evelyn as daddy came into their room.

"Dear me," sighed daddy; "you two dear little children will barely let me get my breath!"

"Oh, daddy," said Evelyn, "we don't mean to be selfish, but your story is the nicest part of the day, and we look forward to bedtime because of that."

"Neither of you is selfish, and I'm a very happy daddy to have two such nice children to whom to tell stories."

Daddy smiled and began: "Today from my office window in the city I saw quite an interesting thing. You know, the roofs of the houses and buildings are so near together that they are almost like a sidewalk. One could really quite easily walk from one roof to the other.

"Well, there was a big brown dog sitting by an open window overlooking the roof. What should he spy but a brown bug which looked very much like a beetle. The dog was very much interested in the bug.

"Well, he stepped out of the window and on the roof. There he sat watching the bug with a fixed gaze. He evidently was rather afraid of it, for he'd step a little nearer and then sit down again as if to say:

"'I'm not going to take any chances. That may be a beautiful bug to look at, but he may be a poisonous one.'

"However, he was very curious, for he'd apparently never seen just such a bug before. It was the funniest thing, though, to see the bug. He was enjoying the sunshine very much and was quite indifferent to the dog. The dog neither frightened nor interested him.

"After a little while the dog began to bark at the bug. But still the bug paid no attention, and this annoyed the dog so much that he began to bark quite furiously. However, the bug enjoyed the sunshine too much to leave it, and the dog gave up barking, for the bug finally decided to move; not at all as if he were being frightened away, but just as if he thought it was time to be going home.

"The dog followed along the roof, but keeping quite a little distance behind. After the bug had walked over to the second roof, to his horror the dog saw the bug had a big family and his home was in a hole near a chimney.

"The great big dog fled from the little bugs and disappeared again through the open window.

"So the little brown bug, who was really quite harmless, was safe from the big dog because he acted so indifferently."

CHAPTER VIII.

On Tory Hill.

IT had been a heavenly picnic, the little trio all agreed as to that, and when Ivory saw the Baxter girls coming up the shady path that led along the river from the Indian cellar to the bridge it was a merry group and a transfigured Rodman that caught his eye. The boy, trailing on behind with the baskets and laden with tin dippers and wild flowers, seemed another creature from the big eyed, quiet little lad he saw every day. He had chattered like a magpie, eaten like a bear, torn his jacket getting wild columbines for Patty, been nicely darned by Waitstill and was in a state of hilarity that rendered him quite unrecognizable.

"We've had a lovely picnic!" called Patty; "I wish you had been with us!"

"You didn't ask me," smiled Ivory, picking up Waitstill's mending basket from the nook in the trees where she had hidden it for safe keeping.

"We've played games, Ivory," cried the boy. "Patty made them up herself. First we had the 'Landing of the Pilgrims' and Waitstill made believe she was the figurehead of the Mayflower. She stood on a great bowlder and sang:

"The breaking waves dashed high
On a stern and rockbound coast and, oh, she was splendid! Then Patty was Pocahontas, and I was Cap'n John Smith, and look, we are all dressed up for the Indian wedding!"

"I shall have to run into father's store to put myself tidy," Waitstill said, "so goodby, Rodman, we'll have another picnic some day. Patty, you must do the chores this afternoon, you know, so that I can go to choir rehearsal."

Rodman and Patty started up the hill gayly with their burdens, and Ivory walked by Waitstill's side as she pulled off her birch bark crown and twisted her braid around her head with a heightened color at being watched.

"I'll say goodby now, Ivory, but I'll see you at the meeting house," she said as she neared the store. "I'll go in here and brush the pine needles off, wash my hands and rest a little before rehearsal. That's a puzzling anthem we have for tomorrow."

"I have my horse here. Let me drive you up to the church."

"I can't, Ivory; thank you. Father's orders are against my driving out with any one, you know."

"Very well. The road is free, at any rate. I'll hitch my horse down here in the woods somewhere, and when you start to walk I shall follow and catch up with you. There's luckily only one way to reach the church from here, and your father can't blame us if we both take it."

And so it fell out that Ivory and Waitstill walked together in the cool of the afternoon to the meeting house on Tory hill. Waitstill kept the beaten path on one side and Ivory that on the other, so that the width of the country road, deep in dust, was between them, yet their nearness seemed so tangible a thing that each could feel the heart beating in the other's side.

Their talk was only that of tried friends, a talk interrupted by long, beautiful silences—silences that come only to a man and woman whose understanding of each other is beyond question and answer. Not a sound broke the stillness, yet the very air, it seemed to them, was shedding meanings, the flowers were exhaling a love secret with their fragrances, the birds were singing it boldly from the treetops, yet no word passed the man's lips or the girl's. Patty would have hung out all sorts of signals and lures to draw the truth from Ivory and break through the walls of his self control, but Waitstill, never, and Ivory Boynton was made of stuff so strong that he would not speak a syllable of love to a woman unless he could say all. He was only five and twenty, but he had been reared in a rigorous school and had learned in its poverty, loneliness and anxiety lessons of self denial and self control that bore daily fruit now. He knew that Deacon Baxter would never allow any engagement to exist between Waitstill and himself. He also knew that Waitstill would never defy and disobey her father if it meant leaving her younger sister to fight alone a dreary battle for which she was not fitted. If there was little hope on her side there seemed even less on his.

His mother's mental illness made her peculiarly dependent upon him and at the same time held him in such strict bondage that it was almost impossible for him to get on in the world or even to give her the comforts she needed. In villages like Riverboro in those early days there was no putting away even of men or women so demented as to be something of a menace to the peace of the household. But Lois Boynton was so gentle, so fragile, so exquisite a spirit, that she seemed in her sad aloofness simply a thing to be sheltered and shielded somehow in her difficult life journey. Ivory often thought how sorely she needed a daughter in her affliction. If the baby sister had only lived the home might have been different; but, alas, there was only a son—a son who tried to be tender and sympathetic, but after all was nothing but a big, clumsy, uncomprehending man creature, who ought to be felling trees, plowing, sowing, reaping or at least studying law, making his own fortune and that of some future wife. Old Mrs. Mason, a garrulous, good hearted grandame, was their only near neighbor, and her visits always left his mother worse rather than better. How such a girl as Waitstill would pour comfort and beauty and joy into a lonely house like his if only he were weak enough to call upon her strength and put it to so cruel a test! God help him! He would never do that, especially as he could not earn enough to keep a large family, bound down as he was by inexorable responsibilities. Waitstill thus far in life had suffered many sorrows and enjoyed few pleasures. Marriage ought to bring her freedom and plenty, not carking care and poverty. He stole long looks at the girl across the separating space that was so helpless to separate, feeding his starved heart upon her womanly graces. Her quick, springing step was in harmony with the fire and courage of her mien. There was a line or two in her face—small wonder. But an "unconquerable soul" shone in her eyes, shone, too, in no uncertain way, but brightly and steadily, expressing an unshaken joy in living. Valiant, splendid, indomitable Waitstill! He could never tell her, alas! But how he gloried in her!

It is needless to say that no woman could be the possessor of such a love as Ivory Boynton's and not know of its existence. Waitstill never heard a breath of it from Ivory's lips; even his eyes were under control and confessed nothing, nor did his hand ever clasp hers to show by a telltale touch the truth he dared not utter; nevertheless she felt that she was beloved. She hid the knowledge deep in her heart and covered it softly from every eye but her own, taking it out in the safe darkness sometimes to wonder over and adore in secret. Did her love for Ivory rest partly on a sense of vocation—a profound, inarticulate divining of his vast need of her? He was so strong, yet so weak because of the yoke he bore, so bitterly alone in his desperate struggle with life, that her heart melted like wax whenever she thought of him. When she contemplated the hidden mutiny in her own heart she was awestruck sometimes at the almost divine patience of Ivory's conduct as a son.

"How is your mother this summer, Ivory?" she asked as they sat down on the meeting house steps waiting for Jed Morrill to open the door.

"There is little change in her from year to year, Waitstill—by the way, why don't we get out of this afternoon sun and sit in the old graveyard under the trees? We are early and the choir won't get here for half an hour. Dr. Perry says that he does not understand mother's case in the least and that no one but some great Boston physician could give a proper opinion on it; of course that is impossible at present."

They sat down on the grass underneath one of the elms, and Waitstill took off her hat and leaned back against the tree trunk.

"Tell me more," she said; "it is so long since we talked together quietly, and we have never really spoken of your mother."

"Of course," Ivory continued, "the people of the village all think and speak of mother's illness as religious insanity, but to me it seems nothing of the sort. I was only a child when father first fell in with Jacob Cochrane, but I was twelve when father went away from home on his 'mission,' and if there was any one suffering from delusions in our family it was he, not mother. She had altogether given up going to the Cochrane meetings, and I well remember the scene when my father told her of the revelation he had received about going through the state and into New Hampshire in order to convert others and extend the movement. She had no sympathy with his self imposed mission, you may be sure, though now she goes back in her memory to the earlier days of her married life, when she tried hard, poor soul, to tread the same path that father was treading, so as to be by his side at every turn of the road.

"I am sure" (here Ivory's tone was somewhat dry and satirical) "that father's road had many turns, Waitstill! He was a schoolmaster in Saco, you know, when I was born, but he soon turned from teaching to preaching, and here my mother followed with entire sympathy, for she was intensely, devoutly religious. I said there was little change in her, but there is one new symptom. She has ceased to refer to her conversion to Cochranism as a blessed experience. Her memory of those first days seems to have faded. As to her sister's death and all the circumstances of her bringing Rodman home, her mind is a blank. Her expectation of father's return, on the other hand, is much more intense than ever."

"She must have loved your father dearly, Ivory, and to lose him in this terrible way is much worse than death. Uncle Bart says he had a great gift of language!"

"Yes, and it was that, in my mind, that led him astray. I fear that the spirit of God was never so strong in father as the desire to influence people by his oratory. That was what drew him to preaching in the first place, and when he found in Jacob Cochrane a man who could move an audience to frenzy, lift them out of the body and do with their spirits as he willed he acknowledged him as master. Whether his gospel was a pure and undefiled religion I doubt, but he certainly was a master of mesmeric control. My mother was beguiled, entranced, even bewitched at first, I doubt not, for she translated all that Cochrane said into her own speech and regarded him as the prophet of a new era. But Cochrane's last 'revelations' differed from the first and were of the earth, earthly. My mother's pure soul must have revolted, but she was not strong enough to drag father from his allegiance. Mother was of better family than father, but they were both well educated and had the best schooling to be had in their day. So far as I can judge, mother always had more 'balance' than father and much better judgment—yet look at her now!"

"Then you think it was your father's disappearance that really caused her mind to waver?" asked Waitstill.

"I do, indeed. I don't know what happened between them in the way of religious differences nor how much unhappiness these may have caused. I remember she had an illness when we first came here to live and I was a little chap of three or four, but that was caused by the loss of a child, a girl, who lived only a few weeks. She recovered perfectly, and her head was as clear as mine for a year or two after father went away. As his letters grew less frequent, as news of him gradually ceased to come, she became more and more silent and retired more completely into herself. She never went anywhere nor entertained visitors because she did not wish to hear the gossip and speculation that were going on in the village. Some of it was very hard for a wife to bear, and she resented it indignantly, yet never received a word from father with which to refute it. At this time, as nearly as I can judge, she was a recluse and subject to periods of profound melancholy, but nothing worse. Then she took that winter journey to her sister's deathbed, brought home the boy, and, hastened by exposure and chill and grief, I suppose, her mind gave way—that's all." And Ivory sighed drearily as he stretched himself on the greensward and looked off toward the snowclad New Hampshire hills. "I've meant to write the story of the 'Cochrane craze' some time or such part of it as has to do with my family history, and you shall read it if you like."

"I should like very much to read your account. Aunt Abby's version, for instance, is so different from Uncle Bart's that one can scarcely find the truth between the two, and father's bears no relation to that of any of the others."

"Some of us see facts and others see visions," replied Ivory, "and these differences of opinion crop up in the village every day when anything noteworthy is discussed. I came upon a quotation in my reading last evening that described it, 'One said it thundered; another that an angel spake.'"

"Do you feel as if your father was dead, Ivory?"

"I can only hope so. That thought brings sadness with it, as one remembers his disappointment and failure, but if he is alive he is a traitor."

There was a long pause, and they could see in the distance Humphrey Barker with his clarionet and Pliny Waterhouse with his bass viol driving up to the churchyard fence to hitch their horses. The sun was dipping low and red behind the Town House hill on the other side of the river.

"What makes my father dislike the very mention of yours?" asked Waitstill. "I know what they say—that it is because the two men had high words once in a Cochrane meeting, when father tried to interfere with some of the exercises and was put out of doors. It doesn't seem as if that grievance, seventeen or eighteen years ago, would influence his opinion of your mother or of you."

"It isn't likely that a man of your father's sort would forget or forgive what he considered an injury, and in refusing to have anything to do with the son of a disgraced man and a deranged woman he is well within his rights."

Ivory's cheeks burned red under the tan, and his hand trembled a little as he plucked bits of clover from the grass and pulled them to pieces absentmindedly. "How are you getting on at home these days, Waitstill?" he asked, as if to turn his own mind and hers from a too painful subject.

"You have troubles enough of your own without hearing mine, Ivory, and anyway they are not big afflictions, heavy sorrows, like those you have to bear. Mine are just petty, nagging, sordid, cheap little miseries, like gnat bites—so petty and so sordid that I can hardly talk to God about them, much less to a human friend. Patty is my only outlet and I need others, yet I find it almost impossible to escape from the narrowness of my life and be of use to any one else." The girl's voice quivered and a single teardrop on her cheek showed that she was speaking from a full heart. "This afternoon's talk has determined me on one thing," she went on. "I am going to see your mother now and then. I shall have to do it secretly, for your sake, for hers and for my own, but if I am found out then I will go openly. There must be times when one can break the lower law and yet keep the higher. Father's law in this case is the lower and I propose to break it."

"I can't have you getting into trouble, Waitstill," Ivory objected. "You're the only woman I can think of who might help my mother. All the same, I would not make your life harder, not for worlds!"

It was almost impossible for Ivory to hold his peace then, so full of gratitude was his soul and so great his longing to pour out the feeling that flooded it. He pulled himself together and led the way out of the churchyard.

MOTHERS' WORK
Conducted by the Plainfield Mothers' Association, Every Thursday

Contributing Staff.
Mrs. H. E. Parker, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

The annual meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association, Tuesday evening, was a most enthusiastic one, and the attendance very gratifying. Mrs. G. Stuart Simons' comprehensive report of the work accomplished the past year was published in full in the Wednesday issue of the Press. Officers for the ensuing year were elected as follows: President, Mrs. St. John Fitch; first vice president, Principal Lindsey Best; second vice president, Mrs. Blanchard; recording secretary, Mrs. Berrien; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Runyon; treasurer, Mrs. Dall. The literature committee reported the free distribution of over 100 leaflets and magazines from the table in the hall, during the year.

The literature embraced a variety of subjects relative to the welfare of the child, home and State, such as: "The Cigarette Smoking Boy," "Go Tell Other Girls," "Teaching the Boy to Save," "Teaching the Girl to Save," "A Better Crop of Boys and Girls," "Training the Boy to Work," "Assisting the Boy in a Choice of Vocation," "Adolescence," "The Ideal Mother," "Health of the Worker," "Teeth, Tonsils, Adenoids," "Every Boy's Library."

Cards and leaflets on "Humane Education" from the American Humane Society and the New Jersey Anti-Vivisection Society. Also a number of books dealing with the humane treatment of children and animals

We are indebted to the Metropolitan Insurance Company, also Nestle's Food Company for magazines and booklets, and to the Humane Societies for their gracious donations.

After the transaction of business, Principal Lindsey Best discussed the courses of study which the High School presents; he was followed by some of the teachers, each describing her or his own particular work. The following teachers participated in the discussion: Miss Miller, Miss Bennett, Miss Ball, Mr. Bostwick, Mr. Hubbard, Mr. Lord and Mr. Beers. Any person who, after hearing the curricula described, including the classical, scientific, general, commercial, home arts, and industrial arts, yet finds fault or criticizes these magnificent courses of study, is fit for "treason, strategy and spoils."

Mrs. Fitch, in her inaugural address, urged the parents to join the Parent-Teacher Association. She thinks parents should feel it a privilege to come into closer relationship with the teachers through the pleasant medium of the Parent-Teacher Association. The membership fee is 25c, and can be sent to the chairman of the membership committee, Mrs. George Wean, Park avenue. A rising vote of thanks was extended to Mrs. Simons for her indefatiguable labor in behalf of the association, and to Mr. Best for his lucid description of the school curricula.

At the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association annual meeting, this afternoon, there will be some important business transacted.

Mrs. William Sanford, Mrs. J. Stewart Simons and Dr. Maximillian Groszmann are attending the International Mothers' Congress, which is in session at Washington, D. C., this week. Dr. Groszmann is on the program.

The aims of the Mothers' Congress and the Parent-Teacher Associations are "To carry the mother-love and mother thought into all that concerns or touches childhood in home, school, church or State; to raise the stnadards of home life; to develop wiser, better trained parenthood; to bring into closer relation the home and school that parent and teacher may co-operate intelligently in the education of the child, using systematic earnest effort to this end through the formation of mothers' clubs and parent-teacher associations. To rouse the whole country to a sense of its duty and responsibility to childhood."

Westfield has a Woman's Club of 200 members, devoted to the civic and educational interests of the town There is power in an organized body of such proportions.

Pasadena, California, has a Shakespeare Club of 500 or more members, which sheds its educational radiance over the whole city. The admission to its entertainments is 25c.

Columbus, Ohio, has a Musical Club of 2,500 members, each member paying annually $3.00, which gives her the benefit of twelve concerts, six artist concerts and six afternoon concerts by the best talent of Columbus and other nearby cities, colleges of music, etc. An organization of 2,500 women can do big things. During the time we were residents there, we had a number of the best artists that the world has produced, to give recitals.

It seems to me that Plainfield would be benefitted by the uniting of many small clubs into one big organization; the clubs retaining their individuality if so desired and still holding meetings separately, yet working together under one constitution for the good of all Plainfield, and holding stated meetings for the free discussion of civic economic and educational questions pertaining to the city; yet strictly a woman's organization. With a small membership fee the most celebrated artists and speakers could be procured.

MRS. JOHN C. EVANS.

WELL KNOWN LOCAL MEN TO LEAD CIRCUS FUN MAKERS

Clowns are the most important people in many circuses, especially for the young folks, and the antics of the oddly dressed fun makers amuse every child that gets inside of the big "white tops." Usually the personality of the clowns has no interest, but in the case of the performance of the Frank A. Robbins All Feaure Show, which will appear here for the benefit of the open air school on May 4, there is very much local interest in the clowns. In addition to the host of fun makers that travel with the show, the list will be swelled by a number of local young men, who are planning a large number of funny stunts, including local hits. The leaders in this group of fun makers will be Warren Ackerman and Reginald Rowland, but they are enlisting a number of helpers, and by the time set they will probably outnumber the regular clowns with the circus.

Another local act will be that of Maximus, the well known local "strong man," and he will be burlesqued by an equally prominent young society leader. They are preparing their respective acts and promise exhibitions which will be both skillful and laugh provoking. Maximus has a string of press notices from newspapers from one end of the country to the other, received when he was professionally engaged in vaudeville, but since settling in this city and opening his school, he has become a Plainfielder, and will give his performance to help the work of the open air school.

Of the twenty-four boxes provided for each performance, but seven remained for the matinee, and nine for the night performance this morning. Reserved seat tickets are on sale at the Daily Press office, and general admission tickets can also be procured there.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 48 degrees; 11 a. m., 52 degrees; 1 p. m., 62 degrees.

THE DAILY PRESS IN BOUND BROOK will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon by Hoagland Union News Stand at station, and A. Aaron, newsdealer.

CLOTHING ON CREDIT AT CASH PRICES

all your ideas of buying clothes, hats and shoes on credit are wrong. Perhaps you have a false impression that if you trade with us the terms will be hard, that prices will be too high and that you will be treated without due courtesy.

All such ideas are entirely groundless as far as our establishment is concerned, though we are sorry to say many credit concerns have not yet waked up to the fact that fair treatment and right prices pay better than the old ways of discourtesy and overcharging.

Gardens and Lawns

If your flower or vegetable garden last year was not satisfactory—if your lawn shows bare spots and slow growth, it usually means that the soil has become acid for want of lime.

Edison Pulverized Limestone sweetens soil and produces better flowers and vegetables and gives lawns the soft, smooth, green effect so much desired.

Edison Pulverized Limestone

This natural limestone, pulverized as fine as flour, causes no injury, no matter when or how used. Use it as a top dressing, evenly distributed, both in the garden and on the lawn, and allow the rains to carry it down into the soil. Or, if you don't want to wait for rain you can use the garden hose.

For a garden or lawn, in fair condition last year, use about 100 pounds of the Pulverized Limestone for every 1000 square feet. If they were in poor shape use a larger quantity. Remember, there is no danger from using any amount of Edison Pulverized Limestone.

Ask us for a copy of testimonials from various users giving their successful experience with this product, which is for sale in 100-pound cloth bags.

GO ABROAD TO SETTLE ESTATE

Mrs. Caroline Lincoln and Miss Anna H. Tyler Remembered in Will.

BEQUESTS OF $300,000

Mrs. Caroline T. Lincoln and her sister, Miss Anna H. Tyler, of this city, to whom was left the residuary estate of Mrs. Allen Frances Evans, estimated in value to more than $300,000, left yesterday on the Steamship Amerika for Paris, for the purpose of settling up the estate. Mrs. Evans died in Paris on March 17, having lived in that city for several years. She was a sister of the late Dr. Thomas W. Evans, the American dentist, who died in 1897, leaving more than $5,000,000.

Mrs. Evans gave each servant in her employ $100 for every two years of service and left $1,000 to Josephine de Brown, for missionary work in Paris, and $1,000 each to the Anglo-American Y. M. C. A. and the McAll Mission, both of Paris.

The American Episcopal church of Paris received $5,000 and Larz Anderson, former Ambassador to Japan, received $1,000. About fifty bequests ranging from $1,000 to $10,000 were left to relatives and friends, while the residuary estate goes to Mrs. Lincoln, Miss Tyler and Miss Helen Schauffler, the last named another relative, and in addition they also received $50,000 outright. John C. Stevens, another relative is left $25,000. Mrs. Lincoln, Miss Tyler and Mrs. Schauffler were cousins of Mrs. Evans.

Under the auspices of the Womans Auxiliary of Muhlenberg Hospital, the last big dance of the season will be held tonight at Columbus Hall, for the benefit of the hospital. Everything possible will be done to make the evening a pleasant one. The Knights of Columbus have given the use of the entire ground floor of their building for the comfort and convenience of the guests, so that there will be smoking and lounging rooms for those who do not care to dance all the time. Mueller's orchestra has been engaged, and music will be continued until 1:30, and as a special feature Edward LaPorte and Miss Ethel Hudson have offered to give an exhibition of the Maxixe, at a quarter before eleven. At 11:15 a particularly pleasing exhibition will be that given by Rex Shoemaker and Mrs. Morris J. Dumont, who will show some of the newest dances, including the Maurice Tango.

Ice cream, cake, lemonade, cigars and cigarettes will be on sale. Tickets at one dollar may be obtained at the door.

P. H. S. ORGANIZATION PLANS BIG MOVEMENT

High School Club Will Cooperate with Civic and Commercial Organization.

Students taking the commercial course of study in the Plainfield High School met this morning, and affected the organization of a Commercial Club, which in the future will be a permanent department of the school's work. The objects of the newly formed club are to cultivate an acquaintance with the Alumni so that the latter body may assist students in securing positions; to learn modern office requirements, study current trade conditions and to prepare to fill positions acceptably; to get in contact with local civic and commercial bodies in order to learn their functions and methods; to investigate the advantage of higher education (both literary and commercial); to study the literature of commercial work and to cultivate a fraternal spirit and devise plans of mutual helpfulness.

The following officers were elected, President, Miss Lottie Mendel; vice president, Miss Helen McKillop; secretary, Miss Margaret Keating; corresponding secretary, Miss Bessie Levine; treasurer, Miss Hilda Lane; membership committee, the Misses Rose Davidson, Annie Murphy, Ruth Delehunt and Violet Sutton; committee on constitution and by-laws, the Misses Jane Brower, Margaret Combs, Margaret Peterson, Ada Nole. Twenty-eight names were entered as charter members of the club.

It was decided to get into communication at once with various local civic organizations, such as the Board of Trade and Chamber of Commerce. Business men will be invited to file their office requirements through this organization so that High School pupils will be better able to fill positions upon being graduated from the institution.

YOUTHFUL BURGLARS AT SO. PLAINFIELD

Joseph Harrington and Thomas Flannington, both of Newark, were arraigned before Justice P. F. Kaine, at South Plainfield, this morning, on a charge of entering the home of William Miller, on Hancock avenue, yesterday, taking a quantity of eatables and a sweater belonging to Mr. Miller's daughter, and leaving the house in disorder. After an examination, Justice Kaine turned the prisoners over to the Newark authorities, who informed the justice that the boys had bad records.

Harrington is ten years old and Flannington four years his senior. Mrs. Miller went to Perth Amboy at 8:30 o'clock yesterday morning, leaving the key to the house in an old kid glove in the back entrance way. Her daughter was away at school, leaving the house vacated. On coming home to dinner, members of the family discovered everything inside the house in disorder and reported the matter to Mr. Miller, who is an engineer on the Lehigh Valley Railroad. He in turn reported the matter to the South Plainfield authorities and Detective Everhardt of the railroad company, set out in search of the burglars. The two lads were found some distance away along the railroad and brought back to the village. They made a confession before Justice Kaine, explaining that they had given the sweater to an Italian.

PETITION GRATIFYING TO STREET COMMITTEE

Councilmen Believe That it Marks the Beginning of Permanent Pavement.

The Councilmanic street committee met last night when several matters of importance were discussed. The committe expressed its gratification over the receipt of a petition from residents of West Third street, between Plainfield avenue and Liberty street, asking that a permanent pavement be laid there. The committee believes that this will be an incentive for other property-owners to take a similar step, assisting in the proposed work of extending permanent pavements throughout the city. The councilmen believe that the example set will be a good one.

The petition calls attention to the fact that West Third street is rapidly becoming a business thoroughfare, and cites the fact that the cost of the improvement will be less if done now than if it is delayed. These names appear on the petition. Abram Kunzman, S. F. Kline, Nathan Gershenson, Thomas Cantor, Louis Fay, Isaac Srager, A. Rosenthal, Morris Rabinowitz, I. Levine, Morris Farbman, Morris Velinsky, Nathan Lewis, Ognatz Trenbovatsky, Harry and Annie Siegel.

The committee also conferred with representatives from the plumbers union regarding house conections for sewers, and a petition from residents of East Second street, asking for sidewalks was also received.

MISS ALPHERETTA BIRD SUCCUMBS TO LONG ILLNESS

Miss Alpheretta C. Bird, aged 20 years, eldest daughter of Mrs. Mary Bird, of 140 West Front street, died early this morning, following a long illness. She was an active member of Grace M. E. church and Sunday-school, and a devout Christian. The home is doubly saddened by reason of the fact that the young woman's mother recently returned from Muhlenberg Hospital, where she underwent treatment, and her condition has been made worse by the recent bereavement.

Besides her mother, Miss Bird is survived by two sisters, the Misses Geraldine and Marian Bird, and a brother, Charles E. Bird. Announcement of the funeral will be made later.

STAMP THIEF HELD IN BAIL FOR TRIAL

Sleuthing on the part of Detective Sergeant Flynn got Charles Hankerson, a nineteen-year-old colored youth, into some more trouble yesterday afternoon, and the boy is now held a prisoner in the county jail awaiting the action of the Grand Jury as the result of an order made by City Judge W. G. DeMeza, before whom he was arraigned in the city court this morning. Hankerson has been under police surveillance as a "born crook" for the past two years and the climax to his career of crime came yesterday afternoon, when he was apprehended by Flynn.

During the past few weeks, Albert Levine, proprietor of the Sanitary Cleaning Company on West Fourth street, has been missing hundreds of trading stamps from his place of business and so informed the police several days ago. Inquiry on the part of Flynn revealed the fact that Hankerson was employed there as an errand boy and he immediately placed the youth under arrest. Cross-examining on the part of Flynn brought a confession from the youth in which he gave the whereabouts of 5,900 green trading stamps marked with Levine's identification mark.

The boy was arraigned before Judge DeMeza on a charge of petty larceny and held in $100 bonds to await the action of the Grand Jury. He has been in the toils on several previous occasions for robbery, his last arrest having been the result of a year's work on the part of Flynn when he was placed on parole.

EARLY DANCES MORE POPULAR THAN NEW

So Decides Audience That Witnessed Demonstration in Hartridge Auditorium.

A large and fashionable audience attended the annual entertainment held under the auspices of the Monday Afternoon Club, in the Hartridge Auditorium, last night, and witnessed a clever exhibition of the twentieth century favorites, the Tango, One-step and Maxixe. Professional dancers, who have made a careful study of the most popular features of the social whirl, demonstrated the old and the new numbers and the audience of critics were given an excellent opportunity to contrast and compare the terpsichorian numbers.

Max Jacobs, an exponent of the dancing art, presented several different numbers which were enthusiastically received and these were intermingled with demonstrations in costume by Mr. and Mrs. J. Murray Anderson. Popular opinion garnered from the audience at the conclusion of the affair seemed to favor the dances of 1580 in preference to the Tango, Maxixe and One-step of the present century. Among the old dances given were the Minuet de la Couer and Valse Crinoline, symbolic of the type popular to the French in the eighteenth century and the early Victorian age. The latter were executed to the accompaniment of the human voice.

The reception committee in charge of last night's affair included Mrs. Orton G. Dale, Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. Henry L. Hall, Mrs. Mayburry B. Mellor and Mrs. Robert B. Strong. Mrs. Harry G. Runkle was in charge of the refreshment committee and Mrs. J. M. Charles had charge of the decorations. The interior of the auditorium was elaborately decorated, the colors used being pink, yellow and green.

MISSIONARIES TO SPEAK.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ade, returned missionaries from Africa, will address the services of the Christian and Missionary Alliance at the German Reformed church this afternoon at 3 o'clock and 7:45 in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Ade will leave for another visit to the field of their labors on Saturday morning.

STIGMAN ARRESTED ON SERIOUS CHARGE

Arrested by Detective-Sergeant Flynn, at 131 East Front street, last night, on a bench warrant sworn out before Judge Haight, of the United States District Court, Louis Stigman, a clothing merchant, was taken to Newark, this morning, by United States Deputy Marshal A. L. Denny, where he will be arraigned today. He is held on two warrants charging him with the concealment of assets when he went into bankruptcy a short time ago. Charles Stigman, a brother of the prisoner, is also wanted in the case and he will be arrested as soon as the authorities can ascertain his present whereabouts.

The indictments allege that Louis Stigman, who conducted the "Surprise Store" on West Front street, purchased a quantity of stock costing several thousands of dollars, which "went in the front door and out the back," being taken to the store of his brother in New Brunswick. Charles Stigman, proprietor of the latter store, in the meantime was conducting fire sales and disposing of his brother's stock at cut prices. The frauds are alleged to have been committed last September and the apprehension of Stigman was brought about as the result of action on the part of the creditors who are represented by Reed & Hetfield and William A. Newcorn, of this city.

AMATEUR STARS IN 'THE ARRIVAL OF KITTY'

Miss McGee and Miss Browne Display Talent in Comedy Club Play.

The presentation of "The Arrival of Kitty," by the Comedy Club of Plainfield on the evenings of April 30 and May 1, will bring before the public two amateur actresses of a talent equal to that of the amateur stars of other years. They are Miss Elizabeth McGee and Miss Eva Gregg Browne.

The roles are of about equal importance, but call for strikingly different talents. Miss Browne takes the part of "Jane," an ingenue, who has accepted "Billy Baxter," Brown Rolston, but is prevented from marrying him because of the plotting of a mercenary uncle (Alson Abbott).

Miss McGee plays the title role, that of a celebrated light opera star, flashy, brilliant, gay. They have caught the spirit of the play, spectators of rehearsals say. Both have had experience before. Miss Browne has taken leading parts in the plays of the Girls' College Club, of Plainfield, and so cleverly that the managers of the Comedy Club gave her this leading part with full confidence which has been more than justified.

Miss McGee has often carried the audience away with her contagious spirit in various parts before Park Club audiences. Their active participation in the Comedy Club plays greatly enlarges its range of talent. Tickets for "The Arrival of Kitty" are now on sale at the Plainfield Theatre and are selling rapidly.

ACCIDENTAL DISCHARGE OF REVOLVER INJURES TWO

Mrs Edward Shuerwig, of South Plainfield, is detained at her home there as the result of an accident in New York a few days ago, where she went to meet her husband, who is chef on the Berlin of the Hamburg-American line. Upon leaving her husband to return home, Mrs. Shuerwig requested her husband to let her have one of two revolvers he had, explaining that it would afford some protection to herself and children during his absence.

Mr. Shuerwig in instructing his wife how to use the revolver, which he thought was empty, accidentaaly discharged it. The bullet just grazed Mrs. Shuerwig's temple and inflicted a painful wound in her husband's finger. The wounds were promptly dressed. Mrs. Shuerwig is now under the care of a physician.

REFUGEES REACH VERA CRUZ FROM MEXICO CITY; VILLA FRIENDLY

Rebel Chieftain Said to Have Reassured Americans—Rioting In Mexico City Results in Death of Two Americans.

Two Americans were killed in anti-American riots in Mexico City this morning. The British subjects are uniting to defend themselves.

General Villa is reported friendly in telegram received at Washington, and said to have stated that United States "need have no care."

Charge O'Shaughnessey is expected to arrive in Vera Cruz this afternoon.

Vera Cruz has assumed aspect of city waking from a dream. People throng streets and bands are playing.

No volunteers called as yet.

Battleship Louisiana has arrived at Vera Cruz and landed 700 men and two aeroplanes. By tomorrow a force of 6,500 men will be on shore.

250 wounded Mexicans are in one hospital.

American dead now number 17.

Washington, April 24.—Further confirmation of the friendly attitude of General Villa was conveyed to General Scott, assistant chief of staff of the army, in a telegram from Dr. C. E. Husk, manager of a big American mining interest in Mexico. The telegram read: "Just had interview with Villa. Wishes to saluate you affectionately and says you need have no care."

A conference report on the bill for the organization of volunteer forces in time of war or threatened war was adopted by the Senate today, without a debate.

Washington, D. C., April 24.—President Wilson is expected to appeal to Congress again within the next few days to ask it for even broader powers than have been conferred on him. This, it is conceded in official circles, would mean actual war, stripped of all quibbles and with the foolish diplomatic mask that only partially conceals the real state of affairs removed.

The temper of Congress today is such that the permission will be quickly forthcoming to employ all the force and wealth of the United States in teaching Mexico that its long series of insults, outrages and contemptuous treatment of this government and its citizens must end. In the future the southern republic will be held strictly accountable. The lesson to be taught it will be such that it never may forget. The killing of more Americans in Vera Cruz has aroused the country, according to advices reaching the government from every section. If a call for volunteers were issued today fully a million men could be rallied to the colors in an incredibly short time. The southwestern states alone, it was said, could furnish more than half this number.

The decision of the administration to shut off the exportation of arms and to dispatch troops to the aid of the marines and bluejackets came like a bolt from the blue last night. It was regarded today as being virtually a unofficial declaration of war, for the ordering of the army to foreign soil can be construed as nothing short of an opening of actual hostilities. Employment of the Navy and the use of landing parties of marines can be explained on the ground that an emergency existed; the ordering in of troops is an acknowledgement that the breaking point has arrived.

General A. L. Mills, chief of the military division of the War Department, was an early caller at the War Department today. He reported that the adjutant generals of the various States were hurrying in their reports as to strength, availability and readiness of the militia. That a call will be issued, probably today, for the militiamen to stand in readiness for an immediate call was evident. Enlistments in the National Guard are being rushed, and General Mills expressed the opinion that full complement in the regiments of all the States would be the result.

The order calling out the militia will probably not be issued until President Wilson goes to Congress with his request for permission to take off the velvet glove and use the mailed fist in earnest. But warnings that such a call from the duty is imminent will be sent immediately to all the States. The situation existing with reference to the constitutionalists is causing the State Department anxiety. Whether the ancient feud and long time hatred existing between the Carranzaists and General Huerta will be strong enough to prevent a coalition of the two factions, is a question that Secretary Bryan would like to have answered. Until this relationship is established, the situation will be more or les nebulous.

President Wilson is showing plainly the effects of the severe strain under which he is laboring. Secretary Bryan is a sick man, and his friends are making no effort to conceal their

Vera Cruz, April 24 (From A. J. Rourke, correspondent of Central News)—It was officially stated today that the number of dead among the American forces in the fighting here is now seventeen. The condition of three of the wounded is critical and the conditions of two grave. It is estimated that the number of dead among the Mexicans is one hundred and fifty and the number wounded is placed at three hundred.

(By Albert J. Rouke, Correspondent of the Central News.)

Vera Cruz, April 24.—Reports received from Mexico City indicate that violent demonstrations have started there against the Americans who still remain and that the United States flag was trailed in the dust this morning, in the streets and trampled on by the infuriated Mexicans, who are being urged to do so by men and women making inflammatory speeches on the street. Two American were killed during the rioting, according to reports.

So bad have the conditions become that it is reported that the British subjects in Mexico City have combined for mutual protection and have erected a strong compound around the consulate, arming themselves and preparing to resist any effort to attack them.

Communication with Mexico City is still much interrupted, and messages are delayed for hours.

Anxiety regarding the safety of Americans in Mexico City was relieved here by the arrival of two trains containing refugees bound for the United States. One train contained five hundred passengers, and the other three hundred. The latter left Mexico City on Wednesday night, and after frequent delays occasioned by being held up by Federal troops in search of two American newspaper men, finally reached this city at 6 o'clock this morning. The other train got in during the night.

Charge of Affairs O'Shaughnessy was not on either of these trains, but is expected to arrive here tonight.

Vera Cruz is like a city waking from a dream. Realization that the Americans do not intend to follow the custom of the Mexicans and kill and destroy property has given almost a gala aspect to things, and bands are playing on the streets, which are thronged with people.

Every seat and berth in the ten coaches and sleepers was occupied, chiefly by Americans, anxious to return to the United States in the transports provided by the government which await them in the harbor.

Persons aboard the train said even two days ago the attitude of Mexican populace in the capitol was menacing, and that United States troops are necessary to protect American citizens and property.

"La Opinion" publishes this morning a six page description of the fighting in the streets and the bombardment by the guns of the vessels, entitled "Vera Cruz's Tragedy."

Senor Jose Tousi, agent for the Ward Line, has arrived here from Tampico. He reports that all was quiet there when he left, with the war ships of the United States covering the town and harbor with their guns.

The train carrying 500 refugees which arrived here last night was held up several times en route by Mexican Federal troops. The soldiers said they were searching for two American newspaper corespondents whom they thought were aboard.

The correspondents were not found. The refugees were English, Americans and Germans. They report that when they left the capitol conditions there were alarming. Crowds were parading the streets crying "Down with the Americans." They were in momentary danger, they believe, of attack and possible massacre. Another train is due to leave

VILLA'S POSITION A FRIENDLY ONE

"Mexico Has Enough Trouble," Says Rebel Leader.

FIRM STAND AGAINST WAR

Break With Carranza Reported—He Does Not Admit It, but His Aid Confirms the Border Belief — Wants Friendly Relations.

NOT SEEKING WAR, SAYS GENERAL VILLA.

Juarez, Mexico, April 24.—When Pancho Villa arrived here he made this statement:

Mexico has trouble enough of her own and is not seeking a war with any foreign country, certainly not with the United States. I have come to the border for the purpose of conferring and seeking the advice of some of my good American friends, and I believe that my visit to the border at this time will mean more friendly relations between the Mexican people and the American people.

Say for me that we want no war, are seeking no war and wish only the closest and most friendly relations with our neighbors of the north.

Juarez, April 24.—Pancho Villa arrived in Juarez and immediately announced that he wanted no war with the United States or any foreign country.

"Mexico has troubles enough of her own," said Villa, "without seeking a war with a foreign country, especially the United States. I have come to the border for the purpose of conferring and seeking the advice of some of my good American friends, and I believe that my visit to the border at this time will mean more friendly relations between the Mexican people and the American people. Say for me that we want no war, are seeking no war and wish only the closest and most friendly relations with our neighbors of the north."

Villa's presence here and his statements, which have been issued without qualification and with absolute frankness in contradiction of Carranza's position, have caused the belief that he and Carranza have at last broken over matters of policy and that Villa has taken the destiny of his revolution in his own hands. It is believed that he has come to the border to learn the facts, to talk with his American friends and to let the American people know just how he feels without the use of diplomatic messages.

Break In Rebel Camp.

A man who is closer to Villa than any other member of his staff is authority for the statement that Villa and Carranza have at last broken and that Villa has taken charge of the revolutionary affairs as the first chief and commander in chief. This could not be confirmed, as no one dares to approach Villa on the subject in Juarez, and he has repeatedly declined to discuss the relations of himself and Carranza. In a supplementary statement issued Villa he said:

"It is inconceivable that two nations which have been as friendly as the United States of America and the United States of Mexico should go to war over the irresponsible acts of a drunkard. Should such a calamity occur the Constitutionalist forces will give Americans every guarantee, and I will see to it personally that all are escorted to the border and are not molested en route. I hope the American people will not think for a minute that the drunkard usurper Huerta is in any sense the Mexican people or their representative, and I am here to dispel any such thought. We had great times at Torreon and San Pedro, but we are going to have bigger ones yet."

Villa would neither affirm nor deny the reported movement of rebel troops from Chihuahua to Juarez. He brought fifty men in his bodyguard.

WANT $142,000,000 AT ONCE.

Daniels' Request Indicates That Long Conflict Is Expected.

Washington, April 24.—That the government is convinced that the present operations will be extended, and probably continued indefinitely, is indicated in the determination of the leaders to make immediately available the entire appropriation of $142,000,000, carried in the pending naval appropriation bill. This bill in its present form provides for expenditure on July 1. At the instance of the secretary of the navy, Chariman Padgett of the naval committee has decided to ask that the appropriation become available at once. It is likely that as a result of the war movements the measure will be rushed through.

REBELS CAPTURE MONTEREY

Take Hundreds of Prisoners—Dynamite Business Buildings.

Matamoras, Mexico, April 24.—Dispatches from Monterey say General Pablo Gonzales and his force of Constitutionalists obtained complete possession of the city. Several hundred federals were captured. Hand to hand fighting went on all day in the heart of the town.

Many of the principal business buildings were wrecked by dynamite.

GOVERNOR AMMONS.

RAID UNITED STATES EMBASSY

Mexican Troops Seize All the War Munitions.

Mexico City, April 24.—A military guard of men from the Ninth cavalry regiment has been placed on duty at the American embassy.

As a result the arms and ammunition that were stored at the embassy were removed, as with a military guard they were regarded as unnecessary.

Machine guns and ammunition have been stored at the American embassy by this government for use in the event of an attack by a Mexican mob.

The Ninth cavalry is a Mexican regiment, and the seizure of the arms and ammunition by the Huerta troops carries much significance in view of the large number of Americans still left at the Mexican capital and exposed to attack by Mexican mobs.

CITY OF CHURCH GOERS.

Plainfield takes a pride in the large proportion of church goers in the city, especially on Sunday mornings. Probably no other community in the State has so large a number of regular communicants in all denominations. Everything tending to stimulate large congregations is a benefit to the city, and is bound to promote a civic pride in religious activities. In fact the Daily Press believes Plainfield would rank with the topmost if it were possible to learn what city in the State or in the country has the greatest average church attendance in comparison with its population.

With all its many other activities—in business, beauty, welfare and comforts for its citizens—this city would feel a great pride in holding the crowded church record for the State. It would be a title that would be a recognized tribute to the churches, to the pastors and to the citizens. It would attract attention and be a drawing power to win the envy of cities, both pagan and religious.

A church-going city is a good and substantial community. It is a proof of aggressive church methods as well as proof of good citizenship. It means that churches and sermons are attractive and are doing good; that they are a factor in the community not only in religious but in material activities.

It takes aggressive, business-like methods to fill a church just as it takes such methods to fill a mercantile store or a factory. Only by such methods was church attendance stimulated on "Go to Church" Sundays over the country recently. These methods included church advertising and it is not strange that, once having tried this method of publicity, many of the cities continued their religious ads.

CLEAN UP AND PAINT UP.

In a number of cities throughout the country "Clean-up and Paint-up" campaigns are being waged at this time of the year. While Plainfield is perhaps not in need of such a campaign, it might be well for every householder to perform this work on his own initiative, and in his own neighborhood.

The slogan has a fine, healthy sound to anyone who is interested in making the city better and pleasanter to live in, and it should claim the attention of every well-meaning citizen. Here are some of the things which everyone can do in little personal clean-up campaigns:

Exterminate the mosquito.

Swat the fly.

Clean streets and alleys.

Clean basements and cellars.

Eliminate weeds.

Make yards beautiful.

Paint houses, garages, barns and fences.

This is a matter for the attention of every householder. It isn't just a thing for others to have sort that "George can do it," but it is up to every individual to get behind the movement and push. There is no way to estimate the good that can be accomplished for Plainfield. Every citizen should do his little bit to make his neighborhood more beautiful.

For activity in spreading their propoganda the men politicians must take off their hats to the women on both sides of the suffrage question. If there is anything on either side of the question which the average person does not know, it is because they have not taken the trouble to read the papers, or attend the meetings which have been held, not only in this city, but everywhere else. Next week the local suffragists are going to be on the job every day, ending up by publishing the edition of the Daily Press on Saturday. Not to be outdone the anti-suffragists will publish a supplement to this paper on Saturday, May 23.

Dr. Raphael Yood has written the editorial for tomorrow night's Daily Press. In it he contrasts health rulings in the city and borough, and shows why it would be much better to have a standard system for both places. It gives another angle of the advantages to be gained by consolidation.

THE FORUM.

There is a growing sentiment in favor of Saturday half holidays for workers, especially during the summer months. Already the men in most of the trades have acquired this boon—the painters, plumbers, masons, carpenters, tinners, as well as the men employed in offices. In factories the half holiday is almost universal, even where the employes are women not protected by the unions. Naturally the stores have been slower to join this general movement, although in New York and Newark and the larger cities, the custom is generally observed. Even in Plainfield some of the merchants close their stores at noon on Saturdays during the summer, and others are willing to do so during August if the plan could be generally adopted.

The proposed plan is that, during August, the stores should close at noon on Saturdays, keeping open on Friday evenings instead of Saturday evenings. At a recent meeting of the "People's Forum" in the Washington School, the plan was warmly endorsed by many of the leading merchants of Plainfield, who expressed themselves heartily in favor of trying the experiment provided it was generally adopted.

Petitions are being circulated, asking the merchants to try the plan this year, and pledging the signers to assist in making it possible by doing their shopping, as far as they can, on Fridays during August.

What do the readers of the Daily Press think of the scheme? Is it an experiment that deserves the support of the citizens of Plainfield? A frank discussion in the columns of this paper will do much to indicate the general feeling in this matter, and will help to arouse public opinion.

Very truly,
KATHARINE F. BALL,
April 23, 1914.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

In reply to the criticism of Muhlenberg Hospital, contained in a letter signed by Mr. W. H. Rogers, of Watchung, published in the Press of April 23, I wish to assure Mr. Rogers that the Governors of Muhlenberg Hospital are most regretful that the hospital is not prepared to meet every demand upon it, and certainly deplore the fact that he had the distressing experience which he described, and which could have been avoided had he or Dr. McGrath, of Stirling, taken the precaution of telephoning to the hospital or to any of the Plainfield physicians connected with the hospital, before taking his sick child on the three mile journey to Plainfield.

Many hospitals, similar to ours, have no facilities to care for contagious cases. "Old Muhlenberg" had no such facilities. At present there is one isolation pavilion capable of caring for infectious disease at a time. When Mr. Rogers asked to have his child admitted three cases of scarlet fever were in the isolation pavilion; their declining to admit this patient suffering from diphtheria was due to a condition over which the management of the hospital had no control. Had the child with diphtheria been taken into the ward with the three cases of scarlet fever, further infection to the child might have resulted.

Your readers will, I am sure, see the justice and wisdom of a rule which made it necessary to decline Mr. Rogers' request.

GEORGE P. MELLICK,
President, Muhlenberg Hospital.
Plainfield, N. J., April 24, 1914.

WILL RETIRE AFTER LONG POLICE SERVICE

Captain Frederickson and Wife Plan to Spend Summer in Denmark.

Captain Christian Frederickson, who has been connected with the local police department for the past twenty-four years, has informed the Councilmanic police board that he intends to retire May 1 under the State pension law. The fact that Police Chief Kiely is now in the West having gone to Chicago for "Ice Wagon" Connors, who is believed to have robbed Ernest R. Ackerman's home, will probably delay the captain's retirement until his return.

Captain Frederickson came to Plainfield forty-two years ago and for ninefeen years he was employed at Jimmerson's brick yards in the Netherwood section. He made most of the brick used in the construction of the Netherwood Hotel. In May, 1890, he was appointed to the local police department as a patrolman, and a few laters was made captain. Two years after entering the police service the captain narrowly escaped being killed in capturing a burglar. He got his man.

The captain holds probably the best record of any man in the department. Not once during his long service has any charges ever been preferred against him. He and his wife are now planning to spend the summer at the former's native home in Denmark, and when they return will live in retirement, the captain devoting his spare time to his chickens and fruit-growing industry.

ASSOCIATION ELECTS OFFICERS FOR YEAR

North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Organization Winds up the School Term.

The annual meeting of the North Plainfield Parent-Teacher Association was held yesterday afternoon, the yearly election of officers taking place at that time. The following were chosen to serve during the ensuing year: President, Mrs. Matthew H. Ewart; second vice president, Mrs. Allen Laing; secretary, Mrs. William L. aylor treasurer, Mrs. Judd Stuart. The first vice president, according to the constitution, is the supervising principal of the North Plainfield High School. Mr. Vosseller's ratirement will necessitate the appointment of a successor in the fall.

The meeting yesterday was the final one of the school term, the association having adjourned until September. During the last session the organization awarded the monthly attendance banner to Miss Helen K. Ray's class in the borough High School, that division having maintained the best mark during March. The association organized one year ago with sixty mmbers, has now increased its roster to 150, according to reports submitted at the meeting yesterday, and all departments are in a flourishing condition. The retiring officers were given a vote of thanks following the installation of the new board.

anxiety. Secretary Daniels also is giving evidence of the pressure to which he is subjected, and his chief trouble is that he cannot sleep. He spent the night in his office in the Navy Department, catching such sleep as he could on a sofa wrapped up in an army blanket.

Washington, April 24.—Orders for the charter of two additional ships at Galveston, to be immediately fitted with stalls for horses of field artillery, were given by Secretary Garrison today. This may delay the sailing of the brigade already embarked at Galveston, as it is planned to have all of the ships leave together. The two new transports will be fitted to sail before midnight.

The administration is anxious to avoid a call for volunteers until Gen. Villa's attitude is officially known.

Representative Fitzgerald, chairman of the House Committee on appropriations, was a caller at the White House today, and consulted with the President regarding probable methods for raising funds.

President Wilson, on recommendation of Secretary Lane, today withdrew approximately 18,700 acres of land from Utah for use of the Utah National Guard.

The Treasury Department has wired collectors of customs to hold until further orders all arms and munitions of war passing through their ports, destined to points in Mexico. This is in furtherance of the embargo on arms which was announced last night.

Washington, April 24.—By ordering the first division of the torpedo flotilla division to convoy the six transports at Galveston to Vera Cruz, the naval strength on the East coast of Mexico is increased by five destroyers. These ships have been in reserve at Galveston, but have quietly been preparing for service. Sentiment expressed today by Secretary Daniels, thought to reflect the attitude of the administration, were strongly proconstitutionalistic in character.

The War Department today estimated the Mexican Federal soldiers in Mexico at 42,701. At Tampico there are 5,800 and at Vera Cruz only 900.

Washington, April 24.—$200,000 for immediate use of the New Orleans Navy Yard will be voted by the House following a conference today, between Chairman Padgett, of the Naval Affairs Committee, and Secretary of the Navy Daniels.

Washington, April 24.—President Wilson today told Chairman Fitzgerald, of the House Committee on Appropriations, that no war funds were required for the present. In discussing the general situation with callers the President explained that no aggressive act to aggravate the status of affairs would be taken by the American government.

Tokio, April 24.—Major General J. Franklin Bell, who retired recently as commander of the Philippine division of the United States Army, sailed today for the United States, aboard the Asia, instead of waiting for the transport Guthrie. The Asia will land General Bell at Van Couver.

Berlin, April 24.—Rumors were current here today that Porifirio Diaz, former President of Mexico, has left Berlin incognito, and is now en route for Havana.

Smart Clothes at Sensible Prices

No man or woman should buy clothes on the sole consideration of price, but there is wisdom in buying clothes at modest prices that have both style and economy to commend them.

Adelberg clothes are very reasonable in price, but we do not advocate their purchase on that account.

We recommend Adelberg clothes primarily because they offer you the simple elegance of lines that are easy and a style that is easy to behold.

Just as no sensible woman marries for money (although there is no harm in loving where the money is) so, too, no sane person buys clothes just because they are cheap, but is wise enuf to demand WITH THE PRICE "STYLE, LINES, FIT and POISE."

THESE ARE ADELBERG QUALITIES—PRICES VERY SENSIBLE.

The group at $29.50 is most surprising.

The group at $32.50 offers many models of rich distinction.

FORMER PET LINEUP IN OPENING GAME

Cliff Randolph May Twirl for Driscoll at Brunswick Saturday Afternoon.

When Dave Driscoll's New Brunswick team lines up against the T. A. B. nine, of Elizabeth, on the Recreation Park diamond in the opening game of the season next Sunday afternoon, the aggregation will have a number of former local players in the lineup and the array of material is very similar to that which represented Plainfield here two years ago in the Central New Jersey League race.

Included in the array of talent that the wiley leader has gathered together is Eddie Stallings, playing the left garden; with Joe Harter in centre and Wally Cosgrove in right. Dave will grave the initial sack, Eddie Craig will perform at the midway, Lou Hartman is down for short, and Dalton will cavort around the difficult corner. Cliff Randolph, Andy Coakley and Jimmy Clinton are the twirlers mentioned by Driscoll as possible workers in the opener with the local boy a popular choice.

CONNIE MACK AFTER PETS' STAR PITCHER

Harry Jennings the young college prenom who got his first foothold in semi-professional baseball while a member of the Plainfield Club of the Central New Jersey League last fall, is being sought by Connie Mack, of the Philadelphia Athletics, as the result of the remarkable feat he turned last Saturday, in shutting out a rival nine without a hit or run.

Sam Kennedy, veteran scout for Connie Mack, has been trailing the youngster since his great performance and it is understood that he made him an offer in Philadelphia, Thursday, following the Rutgers-Penn contest.

During the coming summer Jennings intends to twirl for a team in the New Brunswick Factory League, but overtures on the part of a big league manager such as Connie Mack will probably cause him to change his mind. He is a junior at Rutgers and if he keeps up his present record he will no doubt be one of the leading twirlers during the coming season. He made his debut as a pitcher last season at Rutgers, where he was the second string slab artist. After the college closed for the summer recess he took up semi-professional ball and pitched a number of games in this city and Brunswick.

JENNINGS WILL TRY TO DUPLICATE FEAT

Tommorow afternoon the second home baseball game of the season will be staged in New Brunswick when Rutgers meets Union on Neilson Field. Although defeated by the University of Pennsylvania, Wednesday, the Rutgers nine played excellent ball and held Pennsylvania to two scattered hits. Harry Jennings, the Scarlet pitcher, gained a notch in the hall of fame last week by twirling a no-hit, no-run games against R. P. I., and will work against Union. Jennings shows promise of developing into the best slabman that ever represented Rutgers and has proved an engima to visiting batsmen.

It is probable that Twing, the first baseman and star hitter of the team, will be eligible Saturday. Twing has been unable to play because of scholastic deficiencies but will take a special examination this week. In case he is permitted to don a uniform, Browning will go behind the bat and Acken will be shifted to right field.

Woodbridge High School Yields Three Out of Five Matches.

The Plainfield High School tennis team opened its season with a victory yesterday afternoon over Woodbridge High School by three matches to two. Woodbridge defeated Plainfield in one of the singles, but lost the doubles and the other singles.

Dall easily defeated G. Throckmorton in his first set, but had to play hard to win his second. Van Deventer won his first set in easy style from H. Trockmorton, but lost the next two by close margins. Only one set was played in the doubles and Plainfield won that in easy fashion.

Summary: C. Dall defeated G. Throckmorton, 6-3, 7-5; H. Throckmorton defeated P. Van Deventer, 6-3, 4-6, 7-5; C. Van Deventer and C. Goodrich defeated H. Throckmorton and C. Brown, 6-3.

JEFFERSONIANS WILL PLAY HOPE CHAPEL LEAGUE TEAM

Hope Chapel will open its baseball season tomorrow afternoon on its new field when the Jefferson Democratic Club will try conclusions with the Sunday-school ball tossers. The "HomeRulers" have an unusually fine array of talent to pit against the leaguers and the Hope Chapel crew will probably be extended to the limit in order to come out on top.

Laskoski, who held the Monroes to two bingles last week, will work for the Jeffersonians with Joe Morley on the receiving end. Hope Chapel will probably have Dick Schott in the box with Luthman doing the catching.

RETURN BOWLING MATCH SCHEDULED FOR TONIGHT

The Elks' bowling team and the pinners representing the Park Club will meet in the second match of their inter-club series on the latter's alleys tonight. The first game, rolled on the Elks' alleys, was won by the Park Club woodsplitters and the antlered tribe is primed to even up matters in the three-part series.

A large crowd of rooters, in which will be intermingled many of the feminine shouters, will view the engagement tonight, both clubs having instilled a large amount of interest in the camps of their cohorts.

The Elks team will have to make a change in its lineup, as Chief Kiely will be out of the city, and Ed Laing will take his place. The lineup of the two teams will be as follows: Elks—Biatz, Laing, Stout, Nash and Campbell; Parks—Barlow, Long, Lyman, Mulford and Ball.

ROD AND REEL

There is good reason for having the closed season on black bass in the spring. Bass do most of their spawning in April and early May, and at that time of year are lying close inshore, especially in lakes, where they seek beds of rushes in which to lay their eggs. As the female fish are ravenously hungry at this time of year, and are also so near inshore, it is a very simple matter for the caster, standing on the land, to catch numbers of bass if the water it at all stocked. It is manifestly taking the fish at a tremendous disadvantage, and were there no law, conditions would mean the destruction of many millions of unlaid spawn. Also the fish are at spawning time of rather poor quality for food.

Conditions at Moosehead Lake indicate a rather late opening of the fishing season there, the ice in the lake at Kineo being now 28 inches, solid and blue, on top of which is a blanket of snow varying in depth from three to five feet, which must disappear before the ice begins to waste or weaken. The usual opening date at Moosehead is May 10, but the fishermen there expect the season to be a week or more later this year. It is said that a late opening means better fishing.

Flounders, two and three at a trip, to the number of four hundred, were taken last week at Duck Point, Jamaica Bay, by fishermen, fishing at high tide with bloodworm bait.

It is now unlawful for any person to place, for the purpose of decoying water fowl to be killed, any wild rice or other grain on the waters of any bay or stream or on any feeding grounds where wild water fowl can be killed. Senator William Read, of Camden, introduced and passed the bill in the interest of conservation, as he knows from experience that such methods are unsportsmanlike and should be stopped. The senator is a prominent gunner and knows the situation from experinece. Then, to help the good cause along, Senator Read passed a bill, which is now a law, prohibiting person or persons from drawing any seine under the ice for fish. In many of the waters of South Jersey the perch gather in schools of thousands under the ice, and fishermen, by an ingenious net arrangement, draw them out at a time when they are preparing to spawn. Still wishing to help the sportsmen, Senator Read introduced and passed a law that permits the hunters to again train their dogs prior to the hunting season.

CARLSTROM PLAYS FIRST.

Albin Carlstrom, who played shortstop for the Plainfield team in the championship race last fall and who was purchased by the Boston Red Sox and later turned over to the Montreal team of the international League, is performing at the first station for the latter nine at the present time. In yesterday's game with the Jersey City Skeeters he cracked out two hits and accepted nine putouts and two assists without a slip.

HARRY SMITH A CANDIDATE.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Baseball will reign in its full glory hereabouts tomorrow afternoon, the first complete program of the season being ushered in by local and suburban managers. Plenty of the diamond sport is on tap in every section of the city and baseball galore will take possession of the sporting situation at that time. While we have Sunday school, public school and factory teams cavorting about the lots Plainfield is still without a representative combination and present circumstances indicate that the city will be unrepresented for some time to come. Baseball performances of every calibre are on tap tomorrow afternoon and the lover of the popular outdoor pastime will be able to get his first real taste of America's National pastime.

One thing looks pretty certain in baseball at the present time in this section and that is that there will be no Sunday exhibitions around these diggin's. Scotch Plains enthusiasts appear to have breathed their last in the Sunday sport and without this burg as a baseball resort we need look no further for that particular brand of competition. Several of those who have kept the sport alive in that village for the past decade have passed their age of usefulness and they have at last consented to take a back seat and give someone else a chance to pick up the managerial reins. There is no one visible at the present time, however, who wants to promote the Sunday pastime and we hold out no hopes for the lover of this phase of the game.

In VanDeventer the Plainfield High School baseball faction has certainly unearthed the "find" of the season. The left gardener has established a reputation for himself as a fly capturer and swatsmith. Heretofore his fellow schoolmates were willing to acknowledge that they "didn't know it was in him," but since being given a regular berth he has more than proven his worth to the aggregation. In two games he has smashed out hits that were double deckers and has also made some wonderful catches.

Tomorrow afternoon on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, the University of Pennsylvania will stage one of the most wonderful athletic carnivals ever seen in this country. Here will be seen in action on one field 2,500 athletes from as far west as California and as far east as London, England—grammar school boys to world's champions. The competitions will start at 1:25 p. m. with the grammar school relays. At 1:25 the high school boys will go on, and one hour and five minutes later the preparatory schools will have their fling. At 3:30 the "class" events for college teams will get under way, and the one, two, and four-mile intercollegiate championship races will be run after 4:20 p. m.

The presence of the Oxford University team in the four-mile race will be enough in itself to pack the stands that surround Franklin Field. Here will be seen for the first time in America Arnold N. S. Jackson, the long striding Briton, who upset the Yankee milers at Stockholm in 1912. The four-mile title looks easy for the Oxford quartet, the members of which in form should average 4.25. The one and two-mile championships, howeve, are going to furnish desperate racing, and there's no such thing as forecasting the winner in either of these races.

Queries, Comment and Answers

Sporting Editor:

TENNIS COURTS IN SHAPE.

J. F. Schumaker, cockswain, Florida.

D. A. Haggerty, private, Utah, Eighth company.

E. H. Frohlichstein, ordinary seaman.
E. C. Fisher, ordinary seaman.

Washington, April 24. — The Fifth brigade at Texas City was ordered aboard transports to proceed to Vera Cruz at once. These are the first United States army troops sent to Mexico.

Three regiments were ordered from San Francisco to the Mexican border.

President Wilson is expected to go before congress within forty-eight hours and ask for authorization to call 400,000 volunteers.

The situation is so serious it is feared the regular force of the United States will be inadequate to cope with it.

President Wilson issued a proclamation restoring the embargo on arms and ammunition intended for all forces in Mexico. Collector of the Port Zack Cobb of El Paso seized a consignment of ammunition intended for Francisco Villa.

Late reports from Rear Admiral Badger announced that three more sailors were killed and twenty-three wounded in the desultory fighting of the last twenty-four hours at Vera Cruz. That brings the total of Americans killed in the three days to fifteen and the number of wounded to sixty-eight.

Tampico Situation Grave.

The situation at Tampico is causing the gravest anxiety. Federals and Constitutionalists are reported to have combined.

The transport Hancock has been ordered to return to that port at all speed.

President Wilson would not reply directly to General Carranza's threat to begin war if American troops were not withdrawn from Mexican soil, but orders of great significance were issued at Washington.

Secretary of the Navy Daniels announced the formation of a special squadron to be comanded by Rear Admiral Winslow. This will be made up of light draft war vessels capable of going close inshore. It will leave New York on Sunday.

Senor Algara, the Mexican charge at Washington, received his passports from Secretary Bryan.

Announcement was made that Charge O'Shaughnessy will leave Mexico City as soon as possible. He has turned American interests over to Brazil. Where Brazil has no consular representative France will act.

The Hamburg Nachrichten, semi-official paper of the German government, editorially attacks President Wilson with great bitterness. It accuses him of hypocrisy in veiling a desire for territorial aggrandizement under a pretense of altruism.

War is on, and yet there is no war. Diplomatic relations between Mexico and the United States have been severed, and the regular troops have been ordered to Vera Cruz to back up the bluejackets and marines on Mexican soil. But in the technical language of diplomacy merely "a condition of hostilities exists." The fine distinction between war and "a condition of hostilities" is that war does not end until a treaty of peace has been concluded.

At night President Wilson, yielding to the urgent importunities of military and naval advisers, consented with seeming reluctance to the dispatch of a part of the regular army from Galveston to Vera Cruz.

The embargo against the shipment of arms and ammunition into Mexican territory has been put in force again, but without the issuance of a presidential proclamation. More troops have been ordered to the border for the reasons officially given of allaying apprehension and "to relieve the tension."

The government is momentarily expecting news of a declaration of war by President Huerta and the Mexican congress. Huerta's action in directing that Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the American charge d'affaires in the City of Mexico, receive his passports forthwith is believed to be preliminary to such action. But President Wilson still insists that the hostile movement ordered by him affects only General Huerta "within the territory he controls" and that "the feeling and intention of the government" are based upon "a genuine friendship for the Mexican people and a profound interest in the re-establishment of their constitutional system." The quotations are from a statement issued by the president in the course of the day.

Bluejackets Guard Roads.

Vera Cruz, April 24.—As a precaution against night attacks large bodies of marines and bluejackets have been sent into the sand hills surrounding Vera Cruz.

The marines have intrenched themselves, and field guns have been placed in position in preparation for any attack that might be made. Major Smedley Butler is in command of the marines posted at the outskirts of the city. It is not believed that the Mexicans will attack.

General Maas is reported to be awaiting orders from General Blanquet, secretary of war, before taking any action in regard to the developments at Vera Cruz.

"Snipers" continue firing from different parts of the city despite the efforts of the marines and bluejackets to clear them from the housetops.

Paymaster Kimber of Admiral Cradock's British fleet was slightly wounded by a Mexican sharpshooter. Kimber was on the deck of the Essex, the admiral's flagship, at the time. His wound is not serious.

Flag Lieutenant McCandless of Admiral Badger's staff captured a Mexican gunboat attempting to take 250 soldiers off a transport which had just arrived outside the harbor. McCandless accomplished the task with nothing but the launch of the battleship Arkansas, which is armed with one one-pounder gun.

When the launch in charge of McCandless appeared near the gunboat the Mexican soldiers lined the rail armed with rifles. These were pointed at the approaching launch, but it kept right on until McCandless, disregarding the rifles and the command to halt, climbed to the deck of the gunboat and placed it under American control.

The Ward liners Mexico, Guantanamo and Esperanza are ready here to take off American refugees from Vera Cruz. It was expected that some of the Mexican prisoners would be placed on one of the boats kept here for that purpose.

REFUGEES REACH VERA CRUZ

the capitol this morning with more refugees.

Secretary Mohler, of the British Embassy in Mexico City, acompanied the train from the capitol, which flew the British flag all the way from Mexico City. The refugees report that all along the route of the railroad Federal troops cheered the flag. Mr. Mohler will return to Mexico City this evening, but not before the refugees whom he accompanied from the Mexican capitol have presented him with a gold cigarette case, for which a subscription was raised on the train. All the refugees unite in praise for Mr. Mohler during the trying ride. The train was entered frequently by Federal troops, but Mr. Mohler prevented the soldiers from taking people from the train as they wished. The train, they were informed, was a British refuge and must not be invaded for any purpose whatever.

A detachment of British blue jackets and marines went out from this city to meet the train. They boarded it and manned it until it reached this city. Consul Hutchinson accompanied the detachment.

The British subjects in Mexico City, the refugees say, have armed themselves and constructed a compound around the British legation, which they are prepared to defend in case of attack. The Federals have taken possession of the cable office and control the wire leading out from there.

The British cruiser Lancaster and the French cruiser Conde have arrived at Tampico, Puerto Mexico. Rear-Admiral Mayos is caring for refugees at Tampico, but conditions there are quiet. American State Department despatches are bing censored at Puerto Mexico.

Admiral Sir Christopher Craddock of the British navy, as senior officer has divided the day into wireless periods in order to prevent confusion. The American and British warships are to have the use of the apparatus for four hours daily and the remainder of the time has been alloted to newspaper correspondents and others. The relation between Admiral Craddock and Admiral Badger are most cordial. There were no untoward incident during the night. The collier Jason is caring for refugees at Tuxpan.

O'SHAUGHNESSY ARRIVES.

Vera Cruz, April 24 (from A. J. Rorke, correspondent of Central News).—Nelson O Shaughnessy will arrive here this afternoon on a special train escorted by a personal guard of General Huerta's troops. Rear Admiral Fletcher and his staff will receive Mr. O'Shaughnessy. Rear Admirals Badger and Fletcher have received messages of congratulation from Washington.

Vera Cruz, April 24.—The battleship Louisiana arrived today and immediately landed detachments of marines and bluejackets. The Mississippi also prepared to send ashore 700 marines and a battalion of bluejackets as well as two aeroplanes. By tomorrow it is probable that the total United States force on shore will reach 6,500 men. The outposts have been equipped with twelve machine guns and several three inch field pieces, which were taken to the front today.

More than 250 Mexicans, sick and wounded, were found in the San Sebastain Hospital when it was inspected today by a navy surgeon.

Commander H. O. Stickney, of the Prairie, was today appointed commander of the port of Vera Cruz and began the administration of the custom house.

SENATORS OFFER SERVICES.

Washington, April 24.—Senators Fall, of New Mexico, and Sheppard, of Texas, have offered their services to the President in the campaign against Mexico. Senator Fall has written that he will resign from the Senate and go to the front if necessary. All such offers are being forwarded to the War Department.

WINSLOW IN NEW YORK.

New York, April 24.—Rear Admiral Winslow arrived at the New York Navy Yard, today, to take command of the special squadron to augment the Atlantic fleet now in Mexican waters. The warships include dreadoughts New York, Texas, Arkansas, Utah, Wyoming and Florida and North Dakota. The admiral found the turrets and sights on the New York have been fixed, the crew and artisans having worked day and night to repair them. The last case of ammunition was put aboard the New York shortly before noon. Admiral Winslow will leave this port, aboard the New York, Sunday at the latest.

Los Angeles, April 24—3,000 regulars left today over the Southern Pacific to El paso, and 25 companies of coast artillery are also going to Texas.

SHOT UP TOWN WITH GLASS.

Alexandria, Va., April 24—This usually sleepy town is picking the glass out of itself today as the result of a visit from four "joy riders" who "shot up" the business street in wild west style early this morning. Two of the four men in a big touring car were captured; two made their escape. The party swept through the town with drawn revolvers, firing at store windows and the electric street lights in joyous abandon. They left behind them a trail of broken glass and one wounded woman, a colored laundress who got in the way of a glancing bullet and received a slight injury. The party from Washington and the two men under arrest will be araigned in court today.

KAISER WON'T SEND SHIPS.

German Paper Also Says Japan Will "Keep Hands Off."

Berlin, April 24.—Reports that the German government is contemplating ordering additional warships to Mexico were semiofficially denied here.

The Lokal Anzeiger published a statement believed to emanate from the Japanese embassy declaring that, though there is undoubtedly great sympathy in Japan for Mexico, that nation will keep its hands off, especially since President Wilson has held out the prospect of a settlement satisfactory to Japan.

Charles Heckel, of Mountainside, sought a reduction of $700 on the assessment on twenty-nine acres of land in Mountainside. The only individual appeal from Middlesex county came from Charles Straub, who sought a reduction of $5,700 on a $9,000 assessment for 115 acres of land in Sayreville. Decisions in the appeals are expected next Tuesday, when the board members confer.

LATENT TALENT TO BE DISPLAYED AT CIRCUS

Plainfielders will undoubtedly be much surprised when they learn of all the local talent, of the kind that makes circus stars, that is to be found in this city. There will be a chance given everyone to see just what skillful acrobats and riders the city posseses, however, when the circus is given on May 4 for the benefit of the open air school. Unfortunately most of the young men who are to take part are very modest about having their names used, and insist upon traveling under non-de-plumes. That is why it is only possible to announce at this time that Professor Bombistino, the greatest bareback rider in the world, is really a resident of this city, and will positively appear only twice this season, once at the matinee and once at the evening performance for the benefit of the open air school.

Professor Bombistino does stunts that no one else ever attempted, and probably never will attempt again. He challenges anyone to equal the tricks which he will perform on May 4, and which he probably cannot duplicate again himself. He has kindly consented to let his real name be known, at a later date, so that the Plainfield public will not be kept in continual darkness as to its local talent.

Tickets are being sold by the members of the school committee, and reserved seats can be procured at the Daily Press office. The boxes are about gone, but a few are still available for both afternoon and evening performances. While the show is not the greatest on earth, it will be the greatest that Plainfield has ever had, because of the local participants.

Thirty-four years of success as an amusement purveyor to the American public is a record of which any man might well be proud, and that is the record of Frank A. Robbins, who will bring his "All-Feature Show" here for the school benefit. Starting while yet a very young man, with the smallest kind of a wagon show, he has gradually developed his business until today he is putting on the road a show, which while not the largest, is fully up to any in the features presented. Every year for thirty-four he has improved his equipment, and searched all over the country for star acts, and those which will be seen this year eclipse any in the past. It has always been the custom of this successful circus man to give the public just what he advertises that he will, and his reputation for keeping his word has become so great that he is able to return to the same town year after year, a thing which has been found impossible by other circuses. In addition to strengthening his show he has increased his menagerie and parade this year.

MEAT CAUSE OF KIDNEY TROUBLE

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys if Back Hurts or Bladder Bothers.

If you must have your meat every day, eat it, but flush your kidneys with salts occasionally, says a noted authority who tells us that meat forms uric acid which almost paralyzes the kidneys in their efforts to expel it from the blood. They become sluggish and weaken, then you suffer with a dull misery in the kidney region, sharp pains in the back or sick headache, dizziness, your stomach sours, tongue is coated and when the weather is bad you have rheumatic twinges. The urine gets cloudy, full of sediment, the channels often get sore and irritated, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night.

To neutralize these irritating acids to cleanse the kidneys and flush off the body's urinous waste get four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy here; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate sluggish kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine, so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder weakness.

Of Interest to Women and the Home

NEEDLEWORK

A well made hand-embroidered nightgown is often a luxury for the average person, for they are very expensive when bought ready to wear, but the woman who is handy with a needle may have any number of them. A slip-over nightgown is very easy to make, having only a seam under each arm. This may be made of batiste, nainsook, long cloth cotton crepon, China silk or crêpe de chine. A gown made of any of these materials may be embroidered with pattern No. 14271, which may be developed in heavily padded solid work and eyelets. The scalloped edge should be well padded, so as to keep its shape when laundered, and the material should not be cut away from the scallops until after this has been done. This prevents the material from shrinking up inside of the scallops, which would cause the latter to pull away from the gown. Mercerized cotton should be used for embroidering the cotton materials, and filo silk for the crêpe de chine or China silk. By omitting the bow-knot in the front, this design may be adapted to a front-closing nightgown.

By Alice Gibson

In children's clothing the tendency is to keep them simple, to have them hang easily from the shoulders so that there shall be nothing to hamper the freedom of action, and at the same time to have them as pleasing as possible. There is nothing that makes a child, especially a girl, more self conscious or unhappy than the knowledge that her frock is ill fitting or ugly.

No. 6909 is a pretty, long waisted design with a plaited skirt, a set-in sleeve and an attractive collar in bib effect which may be used or omitted as desired. Serge, wool crepe, or one of the heavier cottons or linen may be used with this design.

To make this dress for a child of eight it requires 2¾ yards of 42 inch material.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

USES FOR COLD CHICKEN.

SUPPER MENU
Cream Chicken Patties.
Rolls.
Canned Peaches.
Sponge Cake.
Tea.

COLD chicken can be converted into many delicious dishes for luncheon or supper. Some hints are as follows:

Cream Chicken Patties.—Cut cold chicken into pieces and mix it with a cream sauce. Make biscuits, adding twice the usual amount of butter. Cut with a doughnut cutter, bake the rings and the centers. Serve the creamed chicken over the rings, with the centers on top. Garnish with sprigs of parsley.

With Plenty of Seasoning.

Blanquette of Chicken.—Cut the meat of a cooked chicken in small pieces and put in a double boiler with one cupful of drawn butter sauce to every pint of meat. When hot add one tablespoonful of chopped parsley, two tablespoonfuls of cream and the beaten yolks of two eggs. Let it stand where it will be very hot for three minutes, but do not let it cook. Serve in a border of boiled rice or with rice croquettes.

Combined With Potatoes.

Chicken Savory.—Cut into dice two medium sized raw potatoes. Put into frying pan two tablespoonfuls olive oil and when hot add the potato dice. Stir to keep from burning and cook five minutes. Then add a dash of paprika, a cupful of boiling water, a crushed clove of garlic, a cupful of cold cooked chicken and salt to taste. Cover and cook until the potatoes are done, stirring frequently. This makes a nice luncheon dish.

Served With Sauce.

Chicken a la Mode.—Take one cupful of cold cooked chicken cut in strips, three cold boiled potatoes cut in one-third inch slices, one truffle cut in strips, three tablespoonfuls of butter, three tablespoonfuls of flour, one and one-half cupful of scalded milk, salt, pepper. Make a sauce of butter, flour and milk. Add the chicken, potatoes and truffle and as soon as heated add seasoning.

A Delicious Dish.

Shirred Chicken With Oysters.—Take one-quarter cupful butter, one-quarter cupful flour, one-half teaspoonful salt, one-eighth teaspoonful pepper, two cupfuls cream, two cupfuls cold cooked chicken cut in dices, one pint oysters, cleaned and drained, one-third cupful finely chopped celery. Make a sauce of first five ingredients, cooking until thick. Add diced chicken and oysters. Cook until oysters are plump. Dish and sprinkle with chopped celery. Serve at once. This may be served on toast if you prefer.

The Scotch Lassie Was Much Admired.

The Fairies' Beautiful Big Masquerade Ball.

"YOU haven't told us a story about the fairies for ever so long, daddy," said Evelyn.

"Yes; that's true," agreed Jack. "Won't you please tell us one this evening?"

"Let me think," said daddy. "Did I ever tell you about the masquerade ball they gave?"

"No," said Evelyn. "Do tell us about it."

"You know," continued daddy, "a masquerade ball is a very special kind of ball, for at it every one dresses up in fancy costume so that no one will know who it is.

"The fairies thought it would be such fun to have a masquerade ball. They spoke to the fairy queen about it, and she was just as enthusiastic.

"'I think it would be splendid,' she said. 'Let's have it tomorrow evening at 8 sharp.'

"The next night promptly at 8 all the fairies gathered together. And such costumes as there were! There were witches, wiseacres, dunces, dominoes, Japs, jesters, milkmaids, mermaids, clowns, cowboys, princes, kings, queens, soldiers, etc. They were to wear masks till supper time.

"But one fairy seemed to be the center of admiration. She was a little Scotch lassie. She wore a velvet jacket and a plaited plaid skirt. Her little legs were bare, and on her feet were black velvet slippers with shiny buckles on them.

"The fairies talked to one another in queer disguised voices, so no one would be able to recognize them by their voices. The little Scotch lassie didn't speak at all, but she danced the highland fling, and it completely fascinated all the fairies.

"At last supper time came, and they all eagerly watched to see who every one was, and especially the little Scotch lassie. And who do you suppose it was?"

"Could it have been the queen?" asked Evelyn.

"Yes, indeed; that is just who it was. They all at once said, 'Fairy queen, you've taken the prize.'

"'But I can't accept my own prize,' said she.

"'You must,' said all the fairies, 'for you are perfectly marvelous.'

"'Well, that's a funny thing to offer a prize and then to keep it. But, anyway, I can divide it, as it is a box of sugar plums.'

"'Goodie!' they all cried."

BY KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

Author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"

CHAPTER IX.

A June Sunday.

IT was Sunday in June, and almost the whole population of Riverboro and Edgewood was walking or driving in the direction of the meeting house on Tory hill.

Church toilets, you may well believe, were difficult of attainment by Deacon Baxter's daughters, as they had been by his respective helpmates in years gone by. When Waitstill's mother first asked her husband to buy her a new dress, and that was two years after marriage, he simply said: "You look well enough. What do you want to waste money on finery for, these hard times? If other folks are extravagant that ain't any reason you should be. You ain't obliged to take your neighbors for an example, take 'em for a warnin'!"

"But, Foxwell, my Sunday dress is worn completely to threads," urged the second Mrs. Baxter.

"That's what women always say. They're all alike, no more idea o' savin' anything than a skunk blackbird! I can't spare any money for gewgaws, and you might as well understand it first as last. Go up attic and open the hair trunk by the winder, you'll find plenty there to last you for years to come."

The second Mrs. Baxter visited the attic as commanded, and in turning over the clothes in the old trunk knew by instinct that they had belonged to her predecessor in office. Some of the dresses were neat, though terribly worn and faded, but all were fortunately far too short and small for a person of her fine proportions. Besides, her very soul shrank from wearing them, and her spirit revolted both from the insult to herself and to the poor dead woman she had succeeded, so she came downstairs to darn and mend and patch again her shabby wardrobe.

Waitstill had gone through the same experience as her mother before her, but in despair when she was seventeen she began to cut over the old garments for herself and Patty. Mercifully there were very few of them, and they had long since been discarded. At eighteen she had learned to dye yarns with yellow oak or maple bark and to make purples from elder and sumac berries; she could spin and knit as well as any old "aunt" of the village and cut and shape a garment as deftly as the Edgewood tailoress, but the task of making bricks without straw was a hard one indeed.

She wore a white cotton frock on this particular Sunday. It was starched and ironed with a beautiful gloss, while a touch of distinction was given to her costume by a little black sleeveless "roundabout" made out of the covering of an old silk umbrella. Her flat hat had a single wreath of coarse daisies around the crown, and her mitts were darned in many places. Nevertheless you could not entirely spoil her; God had used a liberal hand in making her, and her father's parsimony was a sort of boomerang that flew back chiefly upon himself.

As for Patty, her style of beauty, like Cephas Cole's ell, had to be toned down rather than up to be effective, but circumstances had been cruelly unrelenting in this process of late. Deacon Baxter had given the girls three or four shopworn pieces of faded yellow calico that had been repudiated by the village housewives as not fast enough in color to bear the test of proper washing. This had made frocks, aprons, petticoats and even underclothes for two full years, and Patty's weekly objurgations when she removed her everlasting yellow dress from the nail where it hang were not such as should have fallen from the lips of a deacon's daughter. Waitstill had taken a piece of the same yellow material, starched and ironed it, cut a curving, circular brim from it, sewed in a plaited crown, and, lo, a hat for Patty! What inspired Patty to put on a waist ribbon of deepest wine color, with a little band of the same on the pale yellow hat, no one could say.

"It looks all right on the columbines in the Indian cellar," replied Patty, turning and twisting the hat on her head. "If we can't get a peek at the Boston fashions we must just find our styles where we can."

The various roads to Tory hill were alive with vehicles on this bright Sunday morning. Uncle Bert and Abel Day, with their respective wives on the back seat of the Cole's double wagon, were passed by Deacon Baxter and his daughters, Waitstill being due at meeting earlier than others by reason of her singing in the choir. The deacon's one horse, two wheeled "shay" could hold three persons with comfort on its broad seat, and the twenty-year-old mare, although she was always as hollow as a gourd, could generally do the mile, uphill all the way, in half an hour if urged continually, and the deacon, be it said, if not good at feeding was unsurpassed at urging.

Aunt Abby Cole could get only a passing glimpse of Patty in the depths of the "shay," but a glimpse was always enough for her, as her opinion of the girl's charms was considerably affected by the forlorn condition of her son, Cephas, whom she suspected of being hopelessly in love with the young person aforesaid, to whom she commonly alluded as "that red headed baggage."

"Patience Baxter's got the kind of looks that might do well enough at a tavern dance or a husking, but they're entirely unsuited to the Sabbath day or the meetin' house," so Aunt Abby remarked to Mrs. Day in the way of back seat confidence. "It's unfortunate that a deacon's daughter should be afflicted with that bold style of beauty. Her hair's all but red. In fact, you might as well call it red when the sun shines on it. But if she'd ever smack it down with bear's grease she might darken it some, or anyhow she'd make it lay slicker. But it's the kind of hair that just matches that kind of a girl—sort of up an' comin'. Then her skin's so white and her cheeks so pink and her eyes so snappy that she'd attract attention without half tryin', though I guess she ain't above makin' an effort."

"She's innocent as a kitten," observed Mrs. Day impartially.

"Oh, yes, she's innocent enough an' I hope she'll keep so. Waitstill 's a sight han'somer, if the truth was told, but she's the sort of girl that's made for one man and the rest of 'em never look at her. The other one's cut out for the crowd, the more the merrier. She's a kind of mantrap, that girl is! Do urge the horse a little mite, Bartholomew! It makes me kind o' hot to be passed by Deacon Baxter. It's missionary Sunday, too, when he gen'ally has rheumatism too bad to come out."

"I wonder if he ever puts anything into the plate?" said Mrs. Day. "No one ever saw him that I know of."

"The deacon keeps the Thou Shalt Not commandments pretty well," was Aunt Abby's terse response. "I guess he don't put nothin' into the plate, but I s'pose we'd ought to be thankful he don't take nothin' out. The Baptists are gettin' ahead faster than they'd ought to up to the Mills. Our minister ain't no kind of a proselyter. Seems as if he didn't care how folks got to heaven so long as they got there. The other church is havin' a service this afternoon side o' the river, an' I'd kind o' like to go, except it would please 'em too much to have a crowd there to see the immersion. They tell me, but I don't know how true, that that Tillson widder woman that come here from somewheres in Vermont wanted to be baptized today, but the other converts declared they wouldn't be if she was."

"Jed Morrill said they'd have to hold her under water quite a spell to do any good," chuckled Uncle Bart from the front seat.

"Well, I wouldn't repeat it, Bartholomew, on the Sabbath day, not if he did say it. Jed Morrill's responsible for more blasphemious jokes than any man in Edgewood. I don't approve of makin' light of anybody's religious observances if they're ever so foolish," said Aunt Abby, somewhat enigmatically. "Our minister keeps remindin' us that the Baptists and Methodists are our brethren, but I wish he'd be a little more anxious to have our s'ciety keep ahead of the others."

"Jed's 'bout right in sizin' up the Widder Tillson," was Mr. Day's timid contribution to the argument. "I ain't a readin' man, but from what folks report I should think she was one o' them critters that set on rocks bewilderin' an' bedevilin' men folks out o' their senses—syreens, I think they call 'em—a reg'lar syreen is what that woman is, I guess!"

"There, there, Abel, you wouldn't know a syreen if you found one in your baked beans, so don't take away a woman's character on hearsay." And Mrs. Day, having shut up her husband as was her bounden duty as a wife and a Christian, tied her bonnet strings a little tighter and looked distinctly pleased with herself.

"Abel ain't startin' any new gossip," was Aunt Abby's opinion, as she sprang to his rescue. "One or two more holes in a colander don't make much dif'rence—Bartholomew, we're certainly goin' to be late this mornin'; we're about the last team on the road," and Aunt Abby glanced nervously behind. "Elder Boone ain't begun the openin' prayer, though, or we should know it. You can hear him pray a mile away, when the wind's right. I do hate to be late to meetin'. The elder allers takes notice; the folks in the wing pews allers gapes an' stares, and the choir peeks through the curtain, takin' notes of everything you've got on your back. I hope to the land they'll chord and keep together a little mite better'n they've done lately, that's all I can say. If the Lord is right in our midst, as the Bible says, he can't think much of our singers this summer!"

"They're improvin', now that Pliny Waterhouse plays his fiddle," Mrs. Day remarked pacifically. "There was times in the anthem when they kept together consid'able well last Sunday. They didn't always chord, but there, they chorded some! We're most there now, Abby, don't forget! Cephas won't ring the last bell till he knows his own folks is crossin' the common!"

Those were days of conscientious churchgoing, and every pew in the house was crowded. The pulpit was built on pillars that raised it six feet higher than the floor. The top was cushioned and covered with red velvet, surmounted by a huge gilt edged Bible. There was a window in the tower through which Cephas Cole could look into the church and while tolling the bell could keep watch for the minister. Always exactly on time, he would come in, walk slowly up the right hand aisle, mount the pulpit stairs, enter and close the door after him. Then Cephas would give one tremendous pull to warn loiterers on the steps, a pull that meant, "Parson's in the pulpit!" and was acted upon accordingly. Opening the big Bible, the minister raised his right hand impressively, and, saying, "Let us pray," the whole congregation rose in their pews with a great rustling and bowed their heads devoutly for the invocation.

Next came the hymn, generally at that day one of Isaac Watts'. The singers, fifteen or twenty in number, sat in a raised gallery opposite the pulpit, and there was a rod in front hung with red curtains to hide them when sitting down. Any one was free to join, which perhaps accounted for Aunt Abby's strictures as to time and tune. Jed Morrill, "blasphemious" as he was considered by that acrimonious lady, was the leader, and a good one too. There would be a great whispering and buzzing when Deacon Sumner, with his big fiddle, and Pliny Waterhouse, with his smaller one, would try to get in accord with Humphrey Baker and his clarionet. All went well when Humphrey was there to give the sure keynote, but in his absence Jed Morrill would use his tuning fork. When the key was finally secured by all concerned Jed would raise his stick, beat one measure to set the time, and all joined in or fell in, according to their several abilities. It was not always a perfect thing in the way of a start, but they were well together at the end of the first line, and when, as now, the choir numbered a goodly number of voices and there were 300 or 400 in the pews nothing more inspiring in its peculiar way was ever heard than the congregational singing of such splendid hymns as "Old Hundred," "Duke Street" or "Coronation."

Waitstill led the trebles, and Ivory was at the far end of the choir in the basses, but each was conscious of the other's presence. This morning he could hear her noble voice rising a little above, or, perhaps, from its quality, separating itself somehow, ever so little, from the others. How full of strength and hope it was, her voice! How steadfast to the pitch! How golden its color! How moving in its crescendos! How the words flowed from her lips, not as if they had been written years ago, but as if they were the expression of her own faith! There were many in the congregation who were stirred, they knew not why, when there chanced to be only a few "carrying the air" and they could really hear Waitstill Baxter singing some dear old hymn, full of sacred memories, like—

While thee I seek, protecting Power,
Be my vain wishes stilled,
And may this consecrated hour
With better hopes be filled.

"There may be them in Boston that can sing louder, and they may be able to run up a little higher than Waitstill, but the question is, could any of 'em make Aunt Abby Cole shed tears?" This was Jed Morrill's tribute to his best soprano.

There were Sunday evening prayer meetings, too, held at "early candlelight," when Waitstill and Lucy Morrill would make a duet of "By cool Siloam's shady rill," or the favorite "Naomi," and the two fresh young voices, rising and falling in the tender thirds of the old tunes, melted all hearts to new willingness of sacrifice.

Father, whate'er of earthly bliss
Thy sov'reign will denies,
Accepted at thy throne of grace
Let this petition rise.

Give me a calm, a thankful heart,
From every murmur free.
The blessing of thy grace impart,
And let me live to thee.

How Ivory loved to hear Waitstill sing these lines! How they eased his burden as they were easing hers, falling on his impatient, longing heart like evening dew on thirsty grass!

NEW JERSEY'S OPPORTUNITIES

Dr. W. L. Saunders Addresses the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce.

VALUE OF EDUCATION

Harbor Commissioner Tells of State's Interest in Water Front Development In and About Hudson County.

"New Jersey's Interest in Water Front Developments in and About Hudson County," was the topic of an interesting address made by Dr. William L. Saunders, of North Plainfield, before the Jersey City Chamber of Commerce, last night. Dr. Saunders is now a member of the New Jersey Harbor Commission, and having made a close study of conditions in and around New York harbor, which affects Jersey City and adjacent territory, his remarks last night were timely and well received. Dr. Saunders said:

"There is no subject of such great importance to the future industrial welfare of New Jersey as the development of its waterways. No other State than ours is so richly endowed by nature in the things that give opportunity for industrial progress along the lines of manufacturing and transportation.

"A station or nation becomes great in proportion as its people are educated and enlightened. It becomes rich and prosperous in proportion as its people take advantage of that which Nature has laid out before them for use, by culture and development. Our sister State, Pennsylvania, is strong and prosperous because its people at an early date saw the importance of developing its internal resources, its coal and iron mines and its manufactures which grow and prosper around places where raw material and transportation are at hand. Michigan has its mines of copper and iron, Illinois its great coal fields, its farms and its waterways, Southern California its climate and its oil fields, Alabama its marvelous deposits of coal, iron and limestone, located practically in the same spot; Florida has its orange groves and its winter resorts, and New Jersey has its natural waterways and its railroads.

"Out State is very small in area, one of the smallest in the Union, and yet there are only half a dozen States that produce more in manufactured products than we do, and I am told that the last census shows that with one exception New Jersey grew more in manufactures than any other State.

"There can be no doubt about the value of every State and Nation of its manufactures. England became the most powerful nation of the world through the wealth of her mines which built up works, the productions of which were loaded on her ships and transported to every country in the world. We must not forget that the English merchant marine is the direct result of her strength and volume in manufactured products. Having the goods to sell, and with her works located at or near tide water, she naturally built ships and through those ships created an exchange of trade which gave her influence, power and wealth.

"New Jersey is to the United States what Liverpool, Sheffield and Manchester are to England, and Hudson county, it seems to me, is in its natural advantages and its opportunities the greatest county in the State.

"Let us see about this: Hudson county has a waterfront on upper New York Bay and the Hudson River of about 15 miles on a straight line, it has a waterfront on Newark Bay of about 7 miles, about 3 miles on the Kills, 9 miles on the Hackensack River and 7 miles on the Passaic River. It is the eastern terminus of practically all the great western railways, having terminal facilities on its waterfront for nine railroads, the aggregate extent of which is nearly thirty thousand miles. In addition to this there are seven steamship lines running into the territory of this county. I doubt that any State or any country in the world can show such opportunities. I use the word opportunities advisedly because it seems plain that the conditions in and about Hudson county for manufacturing and transportation developments are ripe for enormous progress.

"When we realize that nearly 50 per cent. of the American shipping commerce is done in the port of New York and that our exports of manufactured products have now reached the enormous figure of nearly one thousand five hundred million dollars per annum and that just in proportion as we find foreign markets for our goods shall we need terminal facilities and that manufacturers always try to locate their shops near their greatest markets, one may easily prophesy that the land of New Jersey, and particularly that in and about Hudson county, is from every standpoint of efficiency the best for manufacturing industries.

"We seldom realize that water transportation is the cheapest transportation in the world, that in the world's commerce the cost of transportation is next in importance to the cost of manufacturing. We have here a great labor market, we are connected by rail and by water with the main sources of raw materials and supplies, and if our rivers and harbors are conserved and improved to accommodate both the railroads and the manufacturers we shall see a condition of industrial activity in this neighborhood such as exists today in no part of the world.

"We have given, it seems to me, too much thought in our struggle for the world's markets to the question of the price of labor and too little thought to other things of greater importance. My observation in travel has convinced me that in those countries where labor is cheapest we find the lowest efficiency and the least growth. The Japanese, with all their skill and ability, have never been able to compete in the cost of manufactures. China and India are not, and probably never will be, great manufacturing centers. You may say that this is because they are too far away, yet they have ocean transportation, which is the cheapest kind of transportation, for it is a fact that a ton of freight may be carried across the Atlantic Ocean for the same cost as we transport it now from New York to Newark Bay by wagon or from New York to Baltimore by steam railroad.

"The opening of the Panama Canal is going to do many things, but there is one thing which it will surely do and that is open up the gateways of commerce for American products in Central and South America. Just as the prosperity of the English industries created ships are we likely to develop this highly efficient means of transportation, and if the rivers, harbors and shore lines in and about Hudson county are put in proper condition New Jersey will receive the full measure of profit and prosperity from those resources with which she has been so richly endowed by Nature."

TWENTY MORE DIE IN COLORADO RIOTS

Miners Marching to Attack Militiamen.

Trinidad, Colo., April 24.—One thousand strikers, who swept over the southern coal fields from Delagua to Rouse, leaving the smoking ruins of eight great coal properties in their wake and adding possibly an additional score to the present death list of twenty-six, are preparing for battle with the 350 militiamen being hurried into the war zone from Denver.

The troop train is due in Trinidad early. The town is in a furore of excitement.

The fate of the district in effect hangs in the balance. Carried away by a sense of power and by lust for revenge, the strikers have interposed themselves along the lines of the Colorado Southern and Denver and Rio Grande railroads and are awaiting the approach of the troops.

Campfires gleam along the ridges, and at Aguilar, scene of the burning of the Empire mine property, 500 men are gathered for what it is supposed will be the first concerted attack. By virtue of the fighting the strikers hold possession of all the country between Ludlow, where 100 men and two machine guns under Major Hamrock are stationed, and the coal camp at Rouse, twelve miles south of Walsenburg, to which fugitives from the burning camps taken by the strikers have fled.

At a late hour Rouse was reported to be completely surrounded, and 200 men who hold the camp with their rifles and a machine gun were preparing for an immediate attack.

BRAZIL TO REPRESENT U. S.

South American Envoy Will Be In Charge of Embassy.

Washington, April 24.—Secretary of State Bryan announced that at the request of this government the Brazilian legation at Mexico City should take charge of the archives and effects of the American embassy in that city and represent the United States there diplomatically. Also in such sections of Mexico as seem necessary the Brazilian government will assume charge of the archives and effects as well as the duties of the consular representatives of the United States. In cities or towns where Brazil has not consular representatives France will act for this government.

Secretary Bryan acknowledged, however, that no definition had yet been made as to which consular offices would be turned over to Brazil and which American consuls would remain in Mexico.

ORDER REBEL ARMS HELD UP

El Paso Will Halt Shipment of 150,000 Rounds of Ammunition.

El Paso, Tex., April 24.—Acting on instructions from Washington, Colonel C. S. P. Hatfield, commanding the Second cavalry brigade at Fort Bliss, notified Collector of Customs Zach L. Cobb to prohibit the exportation of arms and ammunition to Constitutionalists or other persons through the El Paso port to Juarez or through the El Paso customs district at any point.

The Constitutionalists have a shipment of 150,000 rounds of ammunition due to arrive and also have orders for 1,500,000 cartridges en route to El Paso from a factory.

THE DAILY PRESS IN SOMERVILLE will be found on sale or delivered to any address every afternoon after 4:30 by Jacob Gernert, the Main street newsdealer and stationer.

ALMOST SEVERED HIS HAND WITH AN AXE

Wadsworth Johnson, of Berkeley Heights, who is tax collector for New Providence township, almost severed his left hand in an accident at his home, yesterday morning. He was chopping wood with an unusually keen axe and a sudden slip caused the blade to catch him on the back of the hand. The deep gash inflicted severed an artery which spurted great quantities of blood until Mrs. Johnson applied a tourniquet.

Dr. McGrath, of Stirling, was called and found it necessary to insert ten stitches to close the wound. Although Mr. Johnson will be unable to use the hand for many weeks, no serious results are anticipated.

DECLARES 300,885 WILL BE JERSEY CITY'S POPULATION

Jersey City, April 24—That Jersey City has, or will have July 1, a population of more than 300,000, was the assertion of Clerk James S. Lynch, of the Hudson county Board of Health, yesterday. The latest figures given out by the government census bureau, showing its estimate of the Jersey City population to be 293,000, led the county health board to give out its figures for publication.

Mr. Lynch, on behalf of the board, gives the estimated population as of July 1, 1914, at 300,885. The population of the city, according to the national census taken in 1910, was 267,779. Incidentally the population of the county is estimated by the county health board to be 620,121, as against 537,226 for 1910.

This is made up of the 300,885 in Jersey City, and the following figures for the other towns and cities in the county: Bayonne, 67,513; Hoboken, 75,253; West Hoboken, 42,206; Weehawken, 14,619; Union Hill, 24,876; West New York, 19,851; North Bergen, 19,030; Guttenberg, 6,604; Kearney, 23,430; East Newark, 3,490; Harrison, 16,000; Secaucus, 6,364.

RAHWAY VALLEY RAILROAD LEASE APPROVED BY BOARD

Trenton, April 24—Subject to the correction of a clerical error, the Board of Public Utility Commissioners has signified its approval of the proposed lease of the line of the Rahway Valley Railroad Company to the Rahway Valley Company, from March 1 last to March 1, 1917. This is, in effect, although upon somewhat different terms, a continuation of the present lease, which has been in effect since February 27, 1909.

Under the existing lease, the Rahway Valley Company paid $16,000 to the Rahway Valley Railroad Company last year, in addition to all taxes, assessments and rates charged against the leased property. Under the extended lease it is proposed that instead of a fixed sum the lessor company is to receive all the net earnings of the valley company. In computing these, all taxes, assessments and rates paid are to be considered a part of the operating expenses.

In approving the proposed lease the board distinguished clearly between the conditions existing between the two companies and those between the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company and the West Jersey and Seashore Railroad and their prospective lessees, to which sanction was refused.

In the present case both companies are New Jersey corporations; the proposed lease is for a limited term not involving an attempt to effect a sale under the guise of a lease; sanction of the lease will not lay the basis for a claim that the State's power of regulation has been impaired, and no ground is provided for the contention that approval of the lease is tantamount to a determination that the lessee is entitled to exact rates to meet a fixed rental.

BREATHE FREEYL! OPEN NOSTRILS AND STUFFED HEAD---END CATARRH

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely, dullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleasing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. Adv.

TO ISSUE PERMITS FOR SHORE IMPROVEMENTS

New Jersey Harbor Commission Makes That Decision at Special Meeting.

The big industrial developments upon the shore front at Camden, Bayonne, and the northern end of Hudson county, reported to the New Jersey Harbor Commission caused the commissioners to have a special meeting at the State House yesterday to complete plans for the issuance of permits for all shore front improvement.

Under the law creating the Harbor Commission, which was signed by Governor Fielder two weeks ago, no development of any kind can be undertaken upon any navigable stream within the borders of New Jersey unless plans and specifications for the improvement have first been filed with the harbor commissioners and approved by them. Inquiry has already been made of the commissioners by several shore front owners who have in contemplation the erection of large industrial plants upon the Delaware river, upon the New York Bay and upon the Hudson river.

Two large concerns had let contracts for improvements before the signing of the Harbor Commission Act, and the commisioners will undoubtedly approve of the plans and permit the construction work to proceed as soon as application for permits is made. The plans already having been approved by local authorities. Chief Engineer B. F. Cresson, Jr., submitted to the commission a comprehensive program for the filing of applications and issuance of permits, which he had worked out with President J. Spencer Smith and Secretary E. A. Ramson, Jr. Suggestions for strengthening the plan were made by Commissioner Charles S. Boyer and W. Parker Runyon and were adopted.

All shore front owners applying for permission to construct improvements upon navigable waters must under the ruling of the commission file with their application an abstract of their title to the land which they seek to improve and also proof of the fact that they have secured riparian grants from the State. The officials of any municipality in which a private improvement is contemplated will be notified of the application for a permit, and will be given ample opportunity to be heard if there be objection to the character of the improvement or its location. The commission has provided ample safeguards to prevent the seizure of public lands at street ends or elsewhere by private interest.

The commissioners carefully considered the question of the possible necessity for hasty action in case of emergency and provided for the issuance by any one commissioner, such permits to be good only until the next meeting of the commissioner by which time plans and application in regular form must be filed with the commission.

all your ideas of buying clothes, hats and shoes on credit are wrong. Perhaps you have a false impression that if you trade with us the terms will be hard, that prices will be too high and that you will be treated without due courtesy.

All such ideas are entirely groundless as far as our establishment is concerned, though we are sorry to say many credit concerns have not yet waked up to the fact that fair treatment and right prices pay better than the old ways of discourtesy and overcharging.

TRUST COMPANY'S BID IS ACCEPTED

ONLY TWO APPLICANTS

Perth Amboy Savings Bank Makes Offer for $9,000 Short Term Certificates—Scarcity of Bidders Caused by Mexican War.

Bids for the issue of $300,000 in bonds for joint trunk sewer expenses were received at the special meeting of the North Plainfield Council held last night, there being but two bidders, the Plainfield Trust Company and the Perth Amboy Savings Bank. A New York firm sent representatives to this city yesterday for the purpose of bidding on the bonds, but there was a misunderstanding concerning the rate of interest and as a result no bid was entered at the meeting.

The New York representative stated that there was possibility at the present time of the United States government issuing bonds for Mexican war purposes and that the Metropolitan firms prefer to deal in government securities. This latter fact is probably responsible for the scarcity of bids, the government being given preference to the small municipality of North Plainfield.

The bid of the Plainfield Trust Company, $30,351.70, for the whole issue, was accepted by the Council. The Perth Amboy Savings Bank bid for $9,000 worth of the short term bonds, its figures being $9,022.50. At the last meeting of the Borough Council $250,000 was authorized for the sewer construction. One hundred thousand of this amount being for the joint trunk line system, and $150,000 for the collecting system of sewers. The $30,000 in bonds let out by the Council last night was a portion of the trunk sewer expenses. The bonds were advertised for at a rate not to exceed 6 per cent., but it was not the original intention of the body to pay the maximum amount of interest on the bonds. This rate was fixed as the limit and since it is customary to pay from 4 to 4½ per cent. the margin of 6 per cent. put the Council in a position to meet the demands of the money market. The Plainfield Trust Company's bid was on a 4⅜ per cent. basis, which is considered unusually fair to the borough and it is a source of gratification that a local bank got the whole issue.

ANTI-SALOON MEN TO INVADE PLAINFIELD

Under the joint auspices of the local Federation of Men's Bible Classes and the New Jersey Anti-Saloon League, a local option and anti-saloon meeting for men only will be held at the Plainfield theatre tomorrow afternoon at 4 o'clock. Rev. Dr. James K. Shields, State superintendent of the State league, will be the speaker of the occasion and will deliver an address on "New Jersey's Liquor Problem and Its Solution." Dr. Shields has been several years superintendent of the Illinois League, and was largely responsible for the passing of the local option laws in that State. The Dutch Arms Band will be in attendance and play several selections.

THE TEMPERATURE.

The temperature report from The State Trust Company today is as follows: 9 a. m., 49 degrees; 11 a. m., 50 degrees; 12:30 p. m., 50 degrees.

—All city bills must be in by next Tuesday night.

—Tickets now on sale for the Baroness Von Turk-Rohn-Spietler musical recital, Columbus Hall, April 29, at 8:15 p. m., at L. W. Randolph's and T. S. Armstrong's drug stores.—Adv. 4 25 3 ***

HOSPITAL DANCE A CHARMING AFFAIR

One of the most successful social functions of the season was the dance given at the Columbus Auditorium, last night, under the auspices of the Women's Auxiliary of the board of governors of Muhlenberg Hospital, for the benefit of the hospital. The large auditorium was thronged throughout the evening until 2 o'clock this morning with merry dancers.

One of the features was the music by Mueller's orchestra. The musicians gave one of their most popular programs, including all the latest dances with which the guests seemed to be very familiar. Encores were repeatedly given after each dance, and the orchestra was exceedingly generous, the music being practically almost continuous during the evening.

The guests enjoyed two clever exhibitions of the latest dances, the first being given by Miss Ethel Hunson and Edward LaPorte. They portrayed the "Maxixe," one of the most difficult dances, in a graceful manner, going through the various steps and motions perfectly. They were given an encore and repeated part of their first dance.

The second exhibition was given by Mrs. Morris J. Dumont and Rex Schoonmaker, and their presentation of what is known as the "Maurice Tango" won for them long and continued applause. The various intricate steps were executed in a way that won admiration from all present. The spotlight was used throughout the specialty dancing making it more effective.

While the dancing was in progress, refreshments were served on the stage, which was attractively decorated by members of the committee with spring flowers, adding much to the enjoyment of the occasion. Some of the guests found this a good point of vantage to witness the specialty dancing and at the same time enjoy their refreshments.

Those in charge of the various details of the dance comprised the following: Mrs. Edward H. Ladd, Jr., Mrs. Charles A. Reed, Mrs. R. Story Rowland, Mrs. Walter L. Righter, Mrs. Frederick Goddard, Mrs. Henry C. Irons, Mrs. J. C. Gilbert, Mrs. C. D. Borrowe, Mrs. C. E. Lipscomb, Miss S. R. DuBois, Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, Mrs. J. Hartley Mellick, Mrs. J. Whitney Baker, Miss Juliet Weber, Mrs. W. M. Wherry, Jr., Mrs. Frank C. Ard, Mrs. C. B. Tyler, Mrs. T. M. Day, Mrs. Isaac Schwed, and E. H. Ladd, Jr., S. D. Lounsbery, J. Hartley Mellick, R. Story Rowland, Walter L. Righter, A. L. Otterson, George L. Babcock and Thomas M. Day.

BRIGHTSIDE CIRCLE, KING'S DAUGHTERS ELECT OFFICERS

The Brightside Circle of The King's Daughters held its annual meeting, last night, at the home of Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux, followed by a social hour, with musical selections on a phonograph, and refreshments. The members discussed the question of its annual pledge of the city union work and also approved the final payment of last year's pledge.

These officers were elected for the coming year: President, Mrs. F. W. Jones; vice president, Mrs. Emma Cory; secretary, Mrs. A. C. LaBoyteaux; treasurer, Mrs. Daniel Clawson.

The funeral service of David E. Titsworth was held at the late home on Madison avenue, at 2:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon, being largely attended by relatives and friends; also many business associates, including the employes of the Potter Printing Press Works, of which Mr. Titsworth was secretary and general manager for many years. There were many beautiful floral tributes from relatives, friends, as well as the various societies of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, employes of the Potter shop and Plainfield Council, No. 711, Royal Arcanum, bearing silent testimony to the high regard in which Mr. Titsworth was held by those who knew him in church and business.

Rev. Edwin Shaw, pastor of the Seventh-Day Baptist church, of which Mr. Titsworth was an active member for more than forty years, conducted the service, offering prayer and making an address of eulogy in which he recounted the life of sacrifice and devotion to church and home. During the service the Lotus Glee Club, of New York, sang several selections.

The burial was in Hillside cemetery and the bearers were Dr. Henry M. Maxson, Frank J. Hubbard, William C. Hubbard, Dr. Truman Saunders, Arthur L. Titsworth and Charles Dunham, all of whom being closely associated with Mr. Titsworth.

MAY ABOLISH FREE LUNCHES IN COUNTY

Saloon Proprietors Advocate This Step at Meeting Held in Elizabeth.

Members of the Union County Liquor Dealers' Association met in Elizabeth, Thursday, and passed a resolution to advocate the abolition of the free lunch counter in saloons throughout the county. Those at the head of the movement claim that the counters at which the saloon patrons are served are unsanitary and a menace to the health of those who frequent the places. A careful study has been made of the question by those interested in the plans and it has been found that a majority of the saloon proprietors have been running this feature at a "dead" loss.

In advocating the step the members of the association claim that competition in the retail liquor business has become too keen during the last few years to warrant the continuation of free lunches any longer. The health authorities in several cities have taken a hand in the proposed reforms and the association is preparing to send out suggestions to the health officers in every municipality in the county. As yet Health Officer Chandler, of this city, has not been approached, but is prepared to take action that may seem advisable in this direction.

EPWORTHIANS ELECT.

The Epworth League of the Scotch Plains M. E. church elected the following officers at their annual meeting held on Thursday evening: President, Miss M. Clarke; second vice president, Miss R. DeMott; third vice president, Miss M. Hull; fourth vice president, Miss F. Wade; secretary, Miss T. Kuchn; treasurer, Miss H. Reeder; organist, Miss F. Wade; assistant organist, Miss M. Clarke. Reports of the various officers were also received.

DANCE AND MUSICALE.

In honor of their guets, Mrs. Martha Philpott, of Inwood, L. I., Mr. and Mrs. David R. Conover, of Jackson avenue, the borough, gave a reception at their home, last evening, the house being prettily decorated with yellow and white. Vocal and instrumental music, together with dancing, formed the features of the evening. Refreshments were served at a late hour.

—Smalley Brothers are offering the most seasonable lines and best cuts of meat that are procurable. One of their specialties just now is their own make of lard, which is unequaled. Jersey spring lamb is at its best, while roasting chickens, ducks, capons, broilers and fowls are among the offerings in their excellent poultry department. Only the very finest grades of meat are handled at this well known North avenue butcher shop, which has been established and catered to the best trade in the city for so many years.—Adv. ***

SCHOOL PLAYERS SCORED BIG HIT

North Plainfield Athletic Association Presented "All Tangled Up."

MANY ATTEND AFFAIR

Dance Followed Play—Humor and Pathos Lent Interest to the Production—Cast of Characters—Presentation to Miss Ray.

Before an audience of two hundred and fity people, the Boys' Athletic Association of the North Plainfield High School, presented its fourth annual play entitled, "All Tangled Up" at the Park Club last night. The production itself was a huge success and upheld the dramatic reputation of the school in every respect. Miss Helen K. Ray, English teacher in the Somerset School, was the coach and she deserves much credit for the way in which she trained the cast. It was the best array of talent that could be picked from the High Shcool and many of those who took part last night have been seen before. The play was full of exciting and complicated instances but they all come out right in the end.

Atwood Giddings, as "Major Halliday," has his troubles throughout the entire performance and is caught by his wife in the midst of many lies and finally starts a quarrel with his partner. Giddings took this part of the old man to perfection. Ashley Burner, his young partner, comes to the rescue many times and in a very clever way gets out of many perplexing situations. Duclos VanMater, as a young lover and military man is charged with having three wives and branded a bigamist before the affair is finally straightened out and he marries the major's daughter. Everytime that Charles Beckman entered the stage the audience went wild and his actions alone kept the crowd in hysterics. He took the part of the undertaker who was mistaken for a French duelist. Edson Day as O'Toole the family treasure, was the hit of the evening and with his Irish dialect and his actions drew a laugh at every word.

Lucille Ewart, who is well known as one of the borough schools best performers, took the part of Clara Halliday and was not wanting in any respect. Her acting was exceedingly graceful and she received much applause. Mary Martin proved to be a fine lady of fifty and took her part in her usual fine way, while Katherine Giddings was fine in the part of the undertaker's daughter.

Between the second and third acts, the president of the Boys' Athletic Association presented Miss Ray with a handsome leather writing set in appreciation for her services in the preparation of the entertainment. Several bunches of flowers were also presented to the actors. After the performance there was dancing until two a. m., with music by Halfoebster's orchestra, of Elizabeth. The play was also a fine success from a financial standpoint. The complete cast and list of managers follows:

OBSERVE SILVER WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Harris Mark the Event in a Quiet Way.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur M. Harris, of Central avenue, are today observing the twenty-fifth aniversary of their wedding. Although no special celebration was planned for the day, they gave a dinner party at their home last night, the guests including a few old friends of the family.

Mr. and Mrs. Harris were married at Madison, Ohio, and since then have lived in the East, with the exception of time spent in travel. Prior to coming to Plainfield five years ago, the couple lived on Staten Island. During their residence here they have been prominent in church work and social functions. Mr. Harris is superintendent of the First Baptist Bible school, a deacon of the church; also an officer of the New Jersey State Sunday-School Association as well as the Federation of Men's Church Clubs of this city, in all of which he takes an active part.

Mr. Harris is a member of the well known New York banking firm of Harris, Forbes & Co. Both he and his wife enjoy the high esteem and regard of a host of friends and acquaintances not only in this city, but in other parts of the country. They have three children, the Misses Rae and Constance Harris and Dwight Harris.

RECRUITING OFFICERS INTERVIEW LOCAL MEN

Recruiting officers representing the United States Army are in Plainfield today making a canvas of the city for men between the ages of eighteen and forty years to enlist for service in the army. The officers cover this section of the State from the Newark recruiting station and spent the day in Fanwood and Westfield yesterday.

The officers established their headquarters in the central portion of the town where unemployed youths and men are known to congregate and several hundred of the possible applicants were interviewed by the officers who explained the advantages offered to recruits by the United States War Department and the conditions required for enlistment. Although no definite announcement was made in Plainfield today it is understood that a score of local youths signified their intention of taking the tests provided by the war department and they will visit Newark during the coming week to take the necessary examination at the recruiting station in that city.

In Scotch Plains there is one rendezvous for the unemployed youths which is frequented by the same crowd each day and hearing of this rendezvous the recruiting officers asked to be directed to the place yesterday upon their arrival in that village. The presence of the authorities soon became heralded broadcast, however, and when they visited the meeting place it was deserted. It was said today, on good authority, that no recruits were signed from Scotch Plains or Fanwood during the canvas yesterday. The possibility of further trouble with Mexico has stirred the war department to activity and the nation's scouts are looking for able bodied men to enter military service.

AT GOVERNOR'S ISLAND.

New York, April 25.—Active emergency preparations marked today's work at Governor's Island, although no official orders regarding a movement of the troops have as yet been received from Washington. Col. Haan, chief of staff, said that he thought any movement involving the National Guard would come at the same time that the regular troops would be mobilized for transportation to the front. At the army building on Whitehall street, it was said by officials that no orders regarding the transportation of any troops had been received.

WALTER JENNINGS.

Walter Jennings, aged 41 years, of Warrenville, died yesterday afternoon, after a short illness. Mr. Jennings is survived by a mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Jennings, and a brother, Alfred. The funeral will be held tomorrow afternoon from the home of his mother at 2:30. Interment will be made at the Springdale cemetery.

125 AMERICANS IN GRAVE PERIL; FIGHTING AT TAMPICO REPORTED

O'Shaughnessy arrived in Vera Cruz yesterday.

Tampico attacked by Mexican rebels.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, April 25.—The administration awoke today to a realization that some definite policy soon will have to be taken in the existing situation in Mexico. Foreign governments are said to have inquired pointedly through their embassies and legations as to the policy of the United States—whether it is going to declare war on Mexico or whether it proposes to maintain its present anamolous attitude which thus far has succeeded in rendering conditions in the revolution-torn republic more chaotic than before.

Foreign warships are gathering in ever increasing numbers in Mexican waters to "observe" the trend of events. It is not thought for a moment that their presence is indicative of further hostility, but their presence is significant. The world appears to be waiting for some word from Washington as to what it actually intends to do.

Protesting that no state of war exists between the United States and its neighbor to the South, the administration still is pressing its activities. Up to date the record of events in the peaceful representations made to Mexico have been: Seizure of Vera Cruz, with an attendant loss of 17 Americans killed and 75 wounded and 126 Mexicans killed and 195 wounded. Massing of a great fleet on the Atlantic and Pacifis coasts of Mexico.

Breaking off of diplomatic relations between the two governments.

Dispatch of United States troops to invade Mexican soil.

"While friendly nations are not disposed to press the United States for an avowal of its intentions in Mexico," said a high diplomat today, "they are entitled to know what the government's general plans are. The interests of the world today are so interlocked that such explanation becomes virtually a duty on any nation that may have in hand plans for the disturbance of the harmony of the great family of nations."

In the present situation the administration finds comfort in the continued neutrality of the constitutionalists. Secretary Bryan still maintains his belief that Generals Carranza and Villa will not side with Huerta. Even in the face of the defiant note the "First chief" of the revolutionary movement sent to Washington, the Secretary of State insists that no trouble is to be feared from that quarter and that the Carranzaists will make no effort to oppose this government's efforts to deal with Huerta.

Major General W. W. Wotherspoon who succeeds Major General Leonard Wood, as chief of staff of the army, said today that never in the history of military movements was one executed with such rapidity and completeness as was the embarkation of the 4,000 troops at Galveston yesterday. The infantry and artillery were ordered aboard transports by a telegram sent at 10 o'clock Thursday night, they were on the vessel and under way to Vera Cruz at 4:30 Friday afternoon.

The question of getting safely out of the country such Americans as remain there is the problem that is worrying the State and Navy Departemnts. Many Americans have been prevented from leaving Mexico City, it is reported, because of a report, that the United States authorities in Vera Cruz had declined to permit the departure of Mexicans from that town. Overtures have been made for the re-establishment of train service between the two cities until the citizens of both nations have been restored to their own lines. Several thousand Americans are at the ports along the Atlantic coast. These are being taken off by naval vessels and others chartered by Rear Admiral

Washington, April 25.—Grave fears are entertained here for the safety of 125 American men, women and children who were refused permission to leave various towns on the train which brought Charge O'Shaughnessy to Vera Cruz. The officials here fear that they have been killed or are being held as hostages at Orizaba and Cordova and several other towns along the line of the railroad, and will be slaughtered in case the Americans start for Mexico City.

Reports from Mexico City, much delayed, indicate that mobs are in control there, and Huerta cannot hold them in check. He is said to have executed thirty Mexicans, not because they were making an anti-American demonstration, but because they took advantage of the disorder to make anti-Huerta demonstrations. Huerta is drafting all the men he can get hold of for the army, many of them being of the material which would not be considered fit for the fighting forces under any circumstances if regular enlistment was required.

19 AMERICANS EXECUTED.

Washington, April 25.—United States Consul Canada has reported to the State Department that it is reported that nineteen Americans and one British subject have been executed by Mexican Federals in Orizaba. There has been no confimration of the rumor, but Secretary Bryan has instructed Mr. Canada to make a complete investigation and report at the earliest possible moment. The Consul's message was vague. It did not indicate whether the men had been shot, were to be shot or had undergone a court martial. The nature of their alleged crimes is not specified.

REBELS ATTACK TAMPICO.

Washington, April 25—Rear Admiral Badger sends the following to the Navy Department: "Admiral Mayo reports by wireless that the Rebels attacked Tampico yesterday. The Federal gunboats are defending the city with their guns."

New York, April 25—A large commercial house, which has extensive interests in Mexico received a report today that General Carranza has been made a prisoner by General Villa and has been put in a military prison at Chihuahua. This report is not confirmed from any official source.

AMERICAN MARINES LAND.

Vera Cruz, April 25—It is reported that American marines have been landed at Tampico to protect the 2,000 American refugees there during the expected battle between the opposing Mexican forces for possession of the city.

Vera Cruz, April 25 (From A. J. Rourke, Central News Correspondent).—The Yankton, the Mississippi and the Nashville have arrived here. The Mississippi has landed 500 marines and two hydro aeroplanes, which will be used in reconnoitering. It is thought that with the planes the location of General Maass and his forces, together with any others that may have been brought towards this city, can be ascertained.

The British Consul here is very anxious about the safety of a hundred British subjects who are believed to be held prisoners by the Mexicans, having been taken from trains while on their way to Vera Cruz from Soledad to seek refuge here.

A relief train started from here at 10 o'clock this morning under a flag of truce to try and find out where the prisoners have been taken.

The American Consul at Tuxpan will leave his post in that city at once and come to Vera Cruz since it is no longer safe for him to remain

About Buying at Home

A dollar spent out of town does not benefit Plainfield. It tends to weaken the commercial activity of the town, and, carried out to the fullest extent, would pauperize the community.

It is not goot citizenship to spend your money with the merchants of other cities. When you spend your money here you are helping yourself as well as your city.

All of this talk would not sound so well if you could not get practically everything you want at home. Our merchants can immediately fill your needs, or in a few hours' time can get anything you want that they do not happen to have in stock.

MINERS IN BATTLE WITH STATE TROOPS

Desperate Fighting Going on In Colorado.

Trinidad, Colo., April 25.—Fighting between state troops and armed strikers began at Bunker Hill, a short distance south of Monson, according to reports just received here. The strikers are reported to have captured two troop trains. The cavalrymen at once turned their horses loose and began entrenching.

The soldiers have two field pieces in action, and the miners, who are 1,000 strong, are using a machine gun. The strikers had laid in wait for the troops and as soon as the trains bearing them arrived made the attack that marked the renewal of the bloody conflict, which up to date has cost probably two score lives.

All branches of the militia were represented in the battle, the cavalry taking the leading part.

Two field pieces were detrained at Monson and immediately brought into action. General Chase has established communication with Rouse, which is near Bunker Hill, where the attack was made, and has received several messages concerning the location of the attacking parties.

A later report from Rouse says: "At 11:35 o'clock seventy cavalrymen at full gallop have just passed Rouse with the artillery."

The two messages indicate that a second troop which detrained at Monson has executed a flank attack on the band of strikers which is said to have attacked the scouting party.

The skirmish between the militia and strikers near Bunker Hill resulted in a victory for the guardsmen, according to reports. A message to General Chase reads:

"Strikers have split. Half gone up Curtis canon; other half gone south."

Mr. Mitchel had it put in a tiny jewel case for presentation purposes. Mr. Polk expects to leave New York hospital today. He will rest two weeks up state before going back to work.

Barr, a watchman, thirty-seven years old, of 166 Washington street, who was indicted by the federal grand jury for sending an obscene letter to President Wilson, was locked up at police headquarters. He will have a hearing before United States Commissioner Semple.

Federal officers arrested Barr about six weeks ago, but he was paroled in the custody of his counsel until the grand jury acted.

This monogram stands for all you can ask in a motor car

Is Your New Car Going to Be An Investment or a Gamble?

It is sure to be one of the two. And it is for you to decide which.

This year, pretty nearly all cars over $1500 are "Sixes." Thirty-seven of the forty-two leading manufacturers in this country build "Sixes."

If you are going to pay over $1500 for a car, buy a "Six." When you buy a "Six" you buy with a rising market. If you buy a "four" you go with a declining market.

So any high priced "four" is a gamble.

A Real "Six;" Not a Near "Six"

The Chalmers Master "Six" at $2175 is a real "Six," not an imitation. It is the latest product of one of the biggest factories and best companies in America. It is the newest style.

It took two years of hard work to produce the Master "Six" motor. And even now, only Chalmers quantity production and most efficient manufacturing makes possible such a car at $2175. If the Master "Six" was built in hundreds instead of thousands, its price would be from $3000 to $3500.

No other type of car can equal the smoothness, flexibility and luxury of the Master "Six." These qualities are built into the Chalmers design. No other car within $500 of its price can equal the value of the Master "Six." Chalmers quality is due to big production and painstaking workmanship.

The Chalmers Master "Six" is a safe investment.

Added Value in the Chalmers

And the Chalmers is truly a manufactured car.

That is the only kind you will want to buy. For any "assembled car," its parts built by the lowest bidder, is a gamble.

Practically every part of the Master "Six" is built complete in Chalmers Shops. That means that one company—and none is stronger than the Chalmers—guarantees the whole car. It means most careful workmanship and rigid inspection. It means quality that assures years of extra wear.

Manufacturing Chalmers cars complete enables the Chalmers Company to eliminate many part makers' profits. The saving goes to you in added value in the car.

Whatever you buy, get a manufactured car. And protect your motor car investment.

Let us show you why a Chalmers Master "Six" is the best investment among motor cars. Let us take you on the Chalmers Test ride, which proves every claim we make for this great car.

MAAS PREPARING FOR NEW ATTACK

Mexican General Now Menaces Vera Cruz.

PLAN TO RETAKE THE CITY

Safety Zone Is Mapped Out and Everything Made Ready For a Possible Siege—"Take It In Fifteen Days," Says Mexican Commander.

AMERICAN CAPTIVES IN VERA CRUZ.

Vera Cruz, April 25.—Seven Americans, prisoners of Mexican soldiers, are being held at Cordoba or Orizaba, on the line of the Mexican railway between here and the capital, four of whom at least are threatened with summary death, it is officially reported here.

Four of the Americans were taken from a train on the Vera Cruz Isthmus line at Tierra Blanca, and further along, at Motzolongo station, three other Americans and an Englishman were seized.

Those captured are W. A. Mangan, superintendent of the railroad; Elliott, an engineer, and Riley and Hart, conductors.

At Motzolongo Edward Weunch, his son Sidney, A. M. Thomas and Mr. Boyd, a Britisher, were arrested by the federals.

The belief that the federals intended to kill at least four of the prisoners was gained from the conversation of the soldiers, whose conversation was overheard by passengers on the train.

The prisoners were taken to Cordova and, it is believed, were later transferred to Orizaba, a point near the capital.

Vera Cruz, April 25. — Nelson O'Shaughnessy, the United States charge d'affaires in Mexico City, who received his passports from President Huerta Wednesday night, arrived here.

The charge was accompanied by his wife and seven-year-old son and the members of the embassy staff. Consul General Shanklin and the attaches of his office were also on the train.

In an interview Mr. O'Shaughnessy said that so far as he knew the international situation was the same as when the passports were handed to him. He went on:

"I got my papers and left. That is all. There is no war so far as I know unless such action constitutes it.

"There was no hostile demonstrations at the station when I left, although the anti-American demonstrations continued in the city."

Vice Consul Price said:

"Last night they tore down the Washington monument. I saw Huerta's son place a rope around the neck of the head of the statue.

Huerta refused to let American women and children leave unless Mr. O'Shaughnessy, Consul General Shanklin and their staffs came through on their train."

Captain W. A. Burnside, the American military attache, says that a train full of American refugees was turned back some distance from the city yesterday. According to him, President Huerta has refused to guarantee the protection of foreigners.

Maas Promises to Retake City.

The refugees bring the report that General Rubio Navarett, the confidential man of President Huerta, has been commissioned to arrange for the destruction of the railroad bridges between Vera Cruz and Mexico City. General Navarette left Mexico City Tuesday night with dynamite to carry out this plan.

It is also reported here that General Maas has sent this message to Huerta:

"I will recapture Vera Cruz in fifteen days."

General Maas was said to be encamped fifteen miles out with 5,000 men.

City Quiet, Bands Are Playing.

With the street cars again in operation, the stores and other business houses all open and the bands from the United States battleships playing in the plaza to listening crowds of Mexicans, this captured port assumed a comparatively calm aspect.

But for the presence at all strategic points in the city and on the outskirts of marines and bluejackets and an occasional addition to the casualty list as the result of occasional sniping one would hardly imagine that a state of virtual war prevailed here.

In the absence of civil employees the American forces were obliged to undertake the repairing of the telephone lines and trolley wires and the putting of other public utilities in operation.

Admiral Fletcher appointed Commander G. C. Stickney of the Prairie as collector of the port, Fleet Surgeon L. W. Spratling as sanitary officer and Lieutenant Guy W. S. Castle as provost marshal of the city.

There has been a noticeable improvement in the general conditions. Firing from the house tops and windows is becoming infrequent. Many of the populace are returning to the houses from which they fled.

Official List of Dead Now Seventeen.

Washington, April 25.—Two marines killed in the fighting at Vera Cruz not heretofore listed were reported to the navy department by Admiral Badger. This makes the total casualties at Vera Cruz up to date seventeen killed and seventy wounded.

PLAINFIELD, NEW JERSEY, APRIL 25, 1914.

On Saturdays the editorial columns of the Daily Press are conducted by citizens who are free to express their own views. The contributing editor for today is Dr. Raphael Yood.

ONE REASON FOR CONSOLIDATION.

Great impetus has recently been given to the movement for consolidating Plainfield with North Plainfield. The question has been ably dealt with from various points of view by prominent citizens.

As a physician, I will deal with the public health aspect of the problem. We have a Board of Health in Plainfield and also one not far from it on the other side of the brook.

1. The Plainfield Board examines the milk supply of all the local milk dealers including those living in the borough. The North Plainfield Board, therefore, thinks it unnecessary to examine milk samples, and is contented with the published monthly results of the Plainfield Board.

2. The City Board offers gratis the services of a bacteriologist to those living within the city limits, so that in suspected cases of diphtheria, typhoid and tuberculosis, an immediate examination of the specimen can be made, and the result ascertained with a minimum loss of time, and no charge whatsoever. The North Plainfield Board does not offer the services of a bacteriologist, and a resident from the other side of the brook has to send his specimen to the State Board of Health at Trenton for examination. This means a considerable loss of time and in the case of diphtheria is of far-reaching importance both to the patient and the other members of the family.

3. The mere routine work of inspection could easily be done by the inspecting officers of one Board, especially since the city has placed an automobile at the service of its Health Officer.

4. By uniting Plainfield with North Plainfield there would not only be a considerable saving of money in the running of the combined department, but, what is of greater importance, the borough residents would be able to have their diphtheria, typhoid and tuberculosis specimens examined locally and not have to wait for a reply from Trenton.

5. The combined Board of Health, without an extra cent of appropriation, could easily supply free tuberculin for testing and detecting early cases of tuberculosis. This would mean an increase in the number of home cures as well as a diminution in the number of advanced cases. The latter very frequently become public charges, when they are obliged to pass the rest of their unfortunate lives in a sanatorium.

6. Were the two municipalities private business concerns, conducting their affairs on business principles of efficiency, economy and service, I am sure they would long since have realized the advantages to be derived from amalgamation.

A slight fire scare occurred about 5:30 last night in the brick row belonging to John Filak, on Colfax street, caused by the soot in the chimney catching fire. This fell from a hole in the flue to a bed on the ground floor, setting fire to the bedclothes, and causing a panic to the occupants of the house. One of the cooler headed occupants gathered up the burning bedclothes and threw them out of the window, thus removing all danger before the arrival of the firemen, who had been summoned by the fire alarm. The blaze in the chimney was also quickly extinguished.

NO U. S. TROOPS TO COLORADO

Washington, April 25.—It was said that so far President Wilson has taken no personal hand in the civil war in Colorado. Some time ago he directed the federal mediation board to try to settle the conflict, but its efforts were unsuccessful.

"The governor of Colorado has not asked for troops," said Secretary Tumulty. "Unless he does ask the president has no authority to interfere in a situation over which state authorities have exclusive jurisdiction."

The Colorado strike occupied much of the attention of the cabinet meeting. President Wilson and his advisers discussed the strike and its causes in a vain effort to find some way whereby the government could interfere. They reluctantly concluded, however, that so long as the governor of Colorado refrains from asking the federal government to send its armed forces into the coal regions the administration must remain passive.

WAR NEWS

Badger and are being returned to the United States through Galveston. Admiral Badger reported that the British naval force now in Mexican waters was rendering valuable assistance.

Washington, April 25.—One member of the official family of President Wilson and soon to become even more closely connected, has doubts as to the peaceful settlement of the Mexican imbroglio. This is Secretary McAdoo. Today he issued the following order, directed to "heads" of bureaus and chiefs of divisions:

"It s hereby ordered and directed that the efficiency record of employes of the deparement shall not be adversely affected by reason of leave of absence from departmental work incident to duty or field service with the organized militia."

It is expected that the heads of other departments of the government will follow his example.

HELD WAR CONFERENCE.

Washington, April 25. A lengthy conference in the early hours today, between Secretary of War Garrison, Chief of Staff General Wotherspoon, Major General Wood and other officers was the culmination of a night of bustling activity at the War Department. Strict secrecy was maintained as to the conference, but conditions on the Texas border and the movement of the troops to Vera Cruz were said to have been considered.

PRESIDENT FEELING BETTER.

Washington, April 25.—President Wilson for the first time in a week enjoyed a night of unbroken rest and was up and around early today. He had a hearty breakfast and despite an overcast sky and occasional spurts of rain, left the White House for a drive at 9:30 o'clock. The President is showing the effects of the strain of incessant conferences, interrupted sleep and lack of exercise.

Columbus, Ga., April 25.—More than twenty women have applied to the local recruiting officers to be sent as nurses to Mexico if they should be needed.

On the other hand, if the commission decides the roads have established the necessity for additional income, the commission will proceed immediately to determine how the additional income should be raised.

DAVID DUNN, AGED 19 YEARS, ON TRIAL FOR MURDER

Corning, N. Y., April 25.—David Dunn, the 19-year-old youth who on February 23 murdered Harry Edwards, night cashier of an express company here, is to be placed on trial Monday. A desire to steal $10,000 in currency which had arrived at the express office during the night and was to have been shipped the following day furnished the motive for the murder.

Edwards, the murdered clerk, had given Dunn permission to sleep in the express office for the night when the latter told him he could find no place of shelter. Dunn waited until he believed Edwards to be asleep and then attempted to open the safe. When Edwards suddenly awakened and found Dunn at work on the safe the robber shot and instantly killed him. After assuring himself that Edwards was dead Dunn made an attempt to blow the safe. The operator in the telephone exchange heard the report and notified the police. The latter thereupon called up the express office. Dunn coolly answered the telephone, impersonating the dead cashier, and assured the police that there was nothing wrong.

Dunn worked on the safe the greater part of the night but failed to open it. He was arrested on suspicion the next morning and according to the police made a complete confession of the murder. It is believed that his counsel will try to establish a defense of insanity.

AN OLD RECIPE TO DARKEN HAIR

Almost everyone knows that Sage Tea and Sulphur, properly compounded, brings back the natural color and lustre to the hair when faded, streaked or gray; also ends dandruff, itching scalp and stops falling hair. Years ago the only way to get this mixture was to make it at home, which is mussy and troublesome.

Nowadays we simply ask at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." You will get a large bottle for about 50 cents. Everybody uses this old, famous recipe, because no one can possibly tell that you darkened your hair, as it does it so naturally and evenly. You dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, thick and glossy and you look years younger.—Adv.

RUTGERS PREP. HERE.

After a lay-off of a week, due to postponements and rainy weather, the North Plainfield High School baseball team will get into action next Monday afternoon, when the team from Rutgers Prep. will make its first appearance on Hyde Oval. This team was scheduled to come here earlier in the season, but the game was put off because of the Easter vacation of that school.

WESTFIELD ELECTS CAPTAIN.

At a meeting of the twelve players selected as regulars for the 1914 Westfield High School nine held yesterday, Daniel Gilmartin was elected to act as captain during the season. He is taking a post-graduate course in the institution and plays second base, being strong both as a hitter and a fielder.

BOY ATHLETES TO PRESENT GIRL CHAMPS WITH MEDALS

Although the basketball season is far in the past the members of the Plainfield High School girls' basketball team have not been forgotten, and they will again be brought together next Saturday night, when the Girls' Athletic Association will hold a reception in the corridors of the High School building. The members of the High School faculty and the boys' basketball team will be invited and there will be dancing in the long halls of the first floor.

This affair is being arranged as a sort of an after season social, and also to give the boys a chance to present the girls' championship team with their medals. The school has no opening exercises in the morning and therefore the honors could not be presented at that time as is customary. The medals are solid gold and a pretty wreath on the front and also a fine engraved P. H. S. monogram.

The back of each medal is suitably engraved with the winner's name. They are given by the Boys' Athletic Association and the money for them was raised by a subscription. Those who will receive the medals are the Misses Esther Philips, captain; Bessie Morris, manager; Dorothy Crane, Irma Good, captain-elect; Sadie Rothberg, Marjorie Beidleman and Margaret Mortimer.

B. S. S. AGGREGATION BEAT P. B. B. C. BY ONE TALLY

In a close and exciting baseball game, the B. S. S. nine defeated their old rivals, the P. B. C., this morning, by a score of 16 to 15. The scoring was close throughout the entire contest and it was not until the last few innings that the B. S. S. clouted the ball for a number of runs that brought victory. Stewart and Blake were the opposing pitchers and the former had a little edge on his opponent.

The winners scored seven tallies in the lucky seventh and blanked their opponents in their last three times at bat. The heavy hitters for the B. S. S. were B. Ball, VanMater and Morrison, each pounding out a two-bagger that meant runs. Blake and Searlis were the main points for the losers. This is the first of a series of games that has been arranged between these two clubs.

The lineup:

SOLDIERS SAIL FOR VERA CRUZ

Funston Off With Van of His Brigade.

NOT READY FOR INVASION

Secretary Garrison Explains War Department's Refusal to Allow General Bliss to Seize the International Bridge at Laredo, Tex.

Washington, April 25.—Although the belief is growing that the trouble between the Huerta government and the United States will call for extensive military operations, the administration hesitates about giving any additional orders that may be interpreted as being warlike.

The disposition was to confine army movements to sending General Funston's brigade to Mexico to re-enforce the marines and bluejackets in the event of attack. High army officials have been counseling more vigorous action, but the administration was reluctant to allow them to go fully ahead.

Meanwhile the war department was very active. The Fifth brigade of infantry sailed for Vera Cruz. The expedition is expected to reach Vera Cruz Monday afternoon. When Funston's entire expedition reaches Vera Cruz he will have about 6,500 men, including infantry, artillery and possibly cavalry, bringing the total of American forces on shore at Vera Cruz up to 10,000 or 11,000.

Not Ready For Invasion.

"We are not prepared to invade Mexico under present conditions," was Secretary Garrison's explanation of the war department's refusal to authorize General Bliss to seize the international bridges at Laredo, El Paso and other points on the Rio Grande.

In the secretary's opinion such an invasion of Mexico would be an act of war, although this view was strictly limited by the phrase "under present conditions."

An old decision of the law officers of the war department holds that such exchanges of shots as those at Laredo are not acts of war. There have been several such exchanges across the Rio Grande, beginning as far back as the Madero revolution, which did not disturb the theoretically peaceful relations of the two countries.

DEVELOPMENTS IN MEXICAN SITUATION.

Four regiments of United States troops sail from Galveston, Tex., for Vera Cruz, stripped for fighting, under command of Brigadier General Frederick Funston.

"Death to the Americans!" shouted in Mexico City. Thousands of women offer their services for active defense of Huerta.

Mexican federals enter Nuevo Laredo and after setting fire to the town turn guns on Americans across border.

War college in Washington has a plan for the capture of Huerta and Mexico City.

Carranza advised by Constitutionalist agents in Washington to keep hands off.

The first official estimate of Mexican casualties at Vera Cruz cabled to the navy department by Rear Admiral Fletcher places the dead at 126 and the wounded at 195.

Laredo, Tex., April 25.—Mexican federal soldiers of Nuevo Laredo, across the river from here, fired several fusillades into Laredo, dynamited every large building in Nuevo Laredo, set fire to the town in scores of places and then sought to blow up the International railroad bridge. American soldiers stationed at the bridge returned the fire. A sharp interchange of shots occurred. The number of Mexican federals killed is reported as high as eleven, and a number were wounded.

Two Mexicans are known to have been killed by the United States troops, and several were seen to fall when the troops brought their guns into action. Several brisk skirmishes between the Americans and Mexicans were fought in quick succession as the Mexicans, their troop trains ready to pull out of the burning city, began an indiscriminate fire across the international boundary, but there was no evidence that their shooting had been effective.

Property damage in Nuevo Laredo will reach $500,000. Among the buildings destroyed were the United States consulate, municipal building, postoffice, theater, the flour mill, one of the largest railroad shops of the Mexican National railway, and other smaller structures.

Big Property Damage.

The fire is still burning, with no chance that it will be controlled until everything inflammable has been wiped out. Kerosene and other combustibles, liberally used, adds to the wreckage, which otherwise would not have been great, owing to the adobe construction largely used.

There was no property loss in Laredo. Both international bridges are safe, though efforts to dynamite them resulted in the death of two men engaged in the undertaking. One Mexican was shot by a sharpshooter from the top of the water tower. The Mexican was trying to reach the end of the international foot and wagon bridge. Another was killed when he tried to blow up the American railroad bridge. Americans were constantly at the American side to prevent such an attempt.

When the Mexican soldiers finally departed order was quickly restored in Laredo, but strong guards remain throughout the city. A serious problem is before the immigration and city authorities in the presence here of hundreds of refugees from the burning city, to whom food and shelter had to be furnished.

Frank Scoville, manager of the Laredo Street Railway company, who witnessed the fight at the bridge and the looting and burning of Neuvo Laredo, said:

"The federals left for the south, but had to turn back because of a destroyed bridge at Rodriguez. The first we knew of their presence in Neuvo Laredo again was the sound of promiscuous firing, accompanied by detonations of dynamite.

"A party of one hundred or more federals began at the custom house, blew it up and set it on fire and continued right up the main street, dynamiting and firing the customs agent's house, the American consulate, the postoffice, city hall and every large building."

Americans Insulted.

Vera Cruz, April 25.—Eight hundred Americans are still in Mexico City at the mercy of the dictator Huerta. Anti-American demonstrations are constantly in progress.

Blind with anger, Huerta has instructed the police and soldiers not to molest mobs which have rioted in front of the American club, torn the coat of arms from the door of the consulate and stoned and insulted Americans brave enough to appear on the streets.

The American club has been abandoned and was later looted by Mexicans. The American hotel has also been deserted.

Every interview between O'Shaughnessy and General Huerta increased the blind anger of the dictator.

The last report heard was that Huerta planned to strip the embassy of its guns in retaliation for the taking of Vera Cruz. He had already seized the railroads and the cable and refused to permit O'Shaughnessy, Consul General Shanklin or Captain Burnsides, the military attache, to send messages of any description.

"All I want is to get the embassy staff out of here," was the statement of O'Shaughnessy to me the last time I saw him.

Members of the house of deputies led the mob which rioted in front of the American club after the news of the taking of Vera Cruz was received.

The news of the landing of the marines reached the people through extra editions of the newspapers. The dictator seemed to do everything possible to inflame the crowds. He was successful. They stormed through the streets, driving Americans before them, and then swept on toward the embassy.

O'Shaughnessy had no word from Washington as to the action that had been taken, as messages to him were withheld.

At the request of Ambassador Carden a guard of forty police was sent by Huerta, but throughout Tuesday and Wednesday night the embassy was surrounded by hooting, jeering crowds.

Huerta Seeks to Gain Sympathy.

Huerta's action in permitting the crowds to vent their anger against Americans was obviously in an effort to gain sympathy. If the dictator finds that the followers of Carranza and Zapata, the bandit chief of the south, are anti-American he may even permit violence in an effort to consolidate the divided factions of the country.

Washington, April 25.—After a conference at the state department with Mr. Bryan representatives of the Constitutionalists telegraphed General Carranza advising that he maintain a neutral attitude toward the United States.

The message contained virtually the reply of the United States to General Carranza's note protesting against the occupation of Vera Cruz. The Constitutionalists were assured that as soon as the United States obtained reparation from Huerta the Vera Cruz custom house would be turned back to the Mexican authorities.

Judge Gonzales, in Neuvo Laredo, was quoted as announcing that he had received word from Mexico City that General Huerta had resigned as provisional president of Mexico, placed Portillo y Rojas, formerly minister of foreign affairs, at the head of the government and that Huerta had put himself at the head of the federal troops to take the field against the United States. This report could not be confirmed.

Washington, April 25.—To guard the entire Mexican border with the Texas National Guard is the plan proposed to the War Department today by Governor Colquitt through Representative Garner, of Texas. This would relieve the demand for Federal troops. The Governor declares that there are distressing appeals from cities and towns all along the Rio Grande and that he has ordered twelve companies of the State troops to Brownsville. The regulars he said are entirely adequate to handle the situation, owing to their small numbers.

JERSEY TROOPS GETTING READY

Jersey City, April 25.—The New Jersey militia is arranging with all speed to put itself in full preparation for a call to service in the field. The Fourth Regiment is filling up its rosters to the peace limit and enrolling prospective recruits so as to muster in all full war strength at the shortest possible notice.

The Signal Corps has added ten recruits, which brings it up to full strength. The new radio outfit will be tried out today. Since this is the only signal corps in the Eighth Militia Division, the men expect that they will see as much real service as the guardsmen.

Captain Edwards, of Company L, Fourth Regiment, says he has received 200 applications for enlistment in the last three days.

Madrid, April 25.—The Spanish premier, it is reported, has received a Mexican despatch which states that Generals Carranza and Villa have decided to unite with General Huerta against the United States.

PENN. TROOPS READY.

Harrisburg, April 25.—Adjutant General Thomas J. Stewart, of the Pennsylvania National Guard, today issued a general letter of instructions to the commanders of the various regiments ordering them to be in readiness for instant call for service in Mexico.

APPEAL FOR TROOPS.

Washington, April 25.—An appeal for troops to protect the Arizona border from depredations by the Mexicans has reached Senator Ashurst, of Arizona. Telegrams from the border towns received by him have been turned over to the War Department.

OFFERS 500 BURROS.

Washington, April 25.—Representative "Alfalfa Bill" Murray, of Oklahoma, today offered the Secretary of War 500 burros which are now on the ranch of J. G. Miller at Marfa, Texas.

DIAZ NOT GOING BACK.

Monte Carlo, April 25.—Gen Porfiro Diaz, who is staying here, denied the reports that he purposes to return to Mexico.

TROOPS REACH BROWNSVILLE.

Brownsville, Texas, April 25.—Two troops of United States Cavalry have arrived here from Fort Sam Houston, immediately detraining and going into camp at Fort Brown. The total military strength on the lower border now is 800.

Y. M. H. A. OFFERS SERVICES FOR WAR

Secretary Tumulty Presents Matter to Secretary of War.

The prevalence of patriotism due to Mexican war talk pervaded the ranks of the Young Mens Hebrew Association, at a meeting Thursday night, and the members decided to offer their services in the event of troops being needed. A resolution was signed by sixty young men and the gist of it was forwarded by telegraph to President Wilson. The following reply came from Washington today, signed by Secretary Joseph P. Tumulty:

THE WHITE HOUSE
Washington
April 24, 1914.

My dear Mr. Block:

The President directs me to acknowledge the receipt of your telegram of April 23, and to thank you for your patriotic spirit. He is bringing it to the attention of the Secretary of War.

Sincerely yours,
J. P. TUMULTY,
Secretary to the President.

Mr. M. B. Block,
229 West Front Street,
Plainfield, New Jersey.

The volunteer members are in earnest and have taken up drills under the supervision of Maurice Block and Abe Schwartz, both of whom are Spanish War veterans. They will be prepared to mobilize within a few hours notice. The enlistment proceedure and preparations for call are in charge of a committee composed of the following officers: Irving Kuntzman, president; Henry Rosenbaum, vice-president; H. Shraeger, secretary; L. Rothberg, treasurer; M. L. Abrams, sergeant-at-arms.

James H. Hallett, aged 65 years, a resident of New Market for the past thirty-two years, and well-known in that section, died yesterday at his home, following a long illness. Mr. Hallett was a photo-engraver by trade and for many years was foreman for a large concern in New York.

There survives a wife, one son and a daughter. The funeral will be held at the late home, tomorrow afternoon aat 2 o'clock, and the burial will be on Monday and will be private.

A Japanese Garden in the Heart of New York

One of the joys of a Japanese Garden is the inevitable little stray path which begins—nobody knows why, and leads nobody knows where. In this particular Japanese Garden the little stray path entices you through a rustic gate and leads you up over a curving bridge, where morning glories and climbing roses cling to the rough hickory bark.

With a sense of infinite relief at being so far away from the commonplace, you linger to watch the gold-fish frisking in the peaceful little stream and to make the acquaintance of the fluffy young ducklings flirting their funny tails and clacking a friendly welcome. In the inviting shadow of a rustic pergola, where purple wistaria and luxuriant grape vines are running riot, you stop to look about you and marvel at the pink, blushing beauty of the Japanese cherry tree, the growing plants and ferns and the Old World atmosphere of the little corner enclosed by the rustic fence.

Then, all at once, you realize that you yourself may be the happy possessor of as much of this Garden as you please, or as your purse permits. For this is not a real garden in the out-of-doors, owned by somebody who has put a price of admission upon its beauties, but a "made" garden, built by skilled hands, controlled by artistic minds, and it flourishes in the heart of a big store, where big ideas seem to grow as naturally as roses grow on rose bushes.

On the sixth floor of the Wanamaker Store, where Summer already reigns supreme, all manner of rustic hickory furnishings have been tastefully arranged for your greater pleasure in selecting your lawn and garden furniture. There are gates and fences and bridges and pergolas and lawn seats with canopies, benches and chairs of every size, arbors, flower boxes and jardinieres, all of tough old hickory with the bark still on.

Lighted by electric lamps with wicker shades which spread a soft, sunny, golden glow, and surrounded by Japanese paintings which hide the walls, the effect is of a perfect miniature garden on a summer day, picked up from some quaint Japanese estate across the seas and set down in the heart of the New World. A picture worth stowing away in some nook of your memory-box, to be recalled with relief on many a tired day when you're tramping the inartistic streets of New York Town.

Outside the Japanese Garden—for there is an interesting outside to it, too—you will find all manner of porch and lawn furniture of all your favorite varieties, from little ninety cent rockers up to whatever the "height of affluence" may demand. Not forgetting the camp needfuls, so light and so inexpensive, yet adding so much comfort to camp life.

And for the inside of your summer dwelling—whether a five-room bungalow on the shore, or a country chateau of imposing proportions, you just could not furnish it without a trip to the Wanamaker sixth floor. It's a veritable "seventh heaven" for the woman with a love for the homey things.

Fancy, for instance, a bedroom suite complete, including bed, dresser, dressing table, cheval glass, standard lamp, night stand, everything needed for sleepy-time comfort, all made of willow and finished in beautiful dull blue enamel. It is the most fascinating picture imaginable, and as sensible and durable as it is beautiful.

Next door to the blue bedroom suite are wonderful dining-room suites; one with a most complete buffet and a big round dining table with glass top over artistic flowered cretonne. Another quaint notion is a dining-table with the odd-shaped little chairs tucked unexpectedly away beneath the table's edge, requiring no space except when in actual use.

Of course, there are dozens of stunning quartered oak pieces; finished in silver gray or French gray enamel with cushioned backs and seats of soft Irish poplin in glowing rose or dull green. And the salesman does not merely tell you these designs are "new and different"—you see for yourself that they have an "air" all their own which fully justifies their "high-class" reputation.

Quite the most irresistible of all is a homey living room, furnished complete in natural willow. In one corner a willow reading-chair with foot rest and adjustable back, stretches its inviting length. Close by are armchairs and rockers, a desk, a bookcase, convenient tables and tabourettes, jardineres for your posey-pots and a muffin-stand which positively insists that you stay for tea. Summery cretonne cushions are cuddled into the arms of chairs and settees and the final touch of cosiness is given by the old-old-style braided rag rugs in the oval shapes of our great-grandmother's time. Not the least attractive feature of this super-attractive willow furniture is the ticket with the little price which is attached to every piece.

Among other handsome novelties are some imported "creations" of enameled French cane of the intricate design and delicate workmanship so obviously characteristic of the French workman. Next door, in marked contrast, is a display of German reed, showing on its face the sturdy quality, symmetrical designing and painstaking care which constitute the hallmark of the German maker. The reproductions of Swiss cane which follows are as charming as they are unique, showing cool color combinations of white and green, and uncommon comfort in the shaping.

A notable feature of the collection is the Pompeiian finished wicker, which is strikingly new and takes its consistent name from its appearance, which shows the coloring of old ruins, long buried under the ashes of a venomous mountain top. Some graceful designs in fine cultivated willow, finished in mellow old-ivory tones are a special joy, while to the woman who favors the trim, tidy look of all-white furnishings, the white enameled reed pieces will make strong appeal.

Then there are simple but elegant mission bungalow suites, shady green and restful brown crex pieces, and a hundred and one other treasures that we've unfortunately no space to enumerate but which make a visit to the Wanamaker sixth floor a thing to be remembered and greatly to be desired when Summer furniture takes its place on your shopping list.

IF BACK HURTS BEGIN ON SALTS

Flush Your Kidneys Occasionally If You Eat Meat Regularly.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which excites the kidneys, they become overworked from the strain, get sluggish and fail to filter the waste and poisons from the blood, then we get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, dizziness, sleeplessness and urinary disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, stop eating meat and get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast and in a few days your kidneys will act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush and stimulate the kidneys, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everyone should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and active and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

RAILROAD BRIDGE ONLY HAS CLEARANCE OF FIVE FEET

Metuchen, April 25.—Local people are expecting further complications between the Pennsylvania Railroad Company and the Borough Council. On Lake avenue the overhead bridge of the railroad company only has a clearance way of nine feet and as a consequence large vehicles cannot pass under it. Now the Pennsylvania is planning an extra track which will mean a five track bridge. This extra track will provide more room in the freight yard. Borough Attorney Pearse is of the opinion that the railroad company should raise the bridge.

MORE THAN $25,500 BID ON PROPERTIES

Elizabeth, April 25—In three vendue sales conducted by Sheriff Wright this week, more than $22,500 was bid on properties sold under mortgage foreclosure proceedings. Two of the parcels are in Plainfield. They were both bought by Margaret T. Richards. The other is in Rahway, and is known as the old Gordon Press factory, which twenty years ago housed one of the thriving industries of the State.

The Plainfield property is situated on Park avenue, and was sold in the action brought by Mary Pope Fritschy against the F. L. C. Martin Auto Company. The first tract brought $11,108 and the second $5,646.

Robert J. Frackleton was the buyer of the old Gordon Press Works. It went under the hammer for $6,000. He bought it as executor under the will of Harrison T. Chandler in the proceedings he brought against the New York Vacuum Cleaner Company, which had acquired the plant.

The Building and Loan Association Harmonia bought for $1,500 the property sold in the action brought against Samuel H. Phipps. It is in two parcels, one being in Delaware street and the other in Union.

The American Laundry Machinery Company paid $100 for the property formerly owned by Samuel A. Watkins in Third avenue, Roselle. The company brought the proceedings under which the property was sold.

CARDINAL GOES TO ROME.

New York, April 25—A large gathering of Catholic clergy and laity crowded the Hamburg-American line pier today to bid von voyage to Cardinal Farley, who was among the passengers sailing on the steamship Berlin for Naples. The Cardinal is going to Rome in accordance with the law of the church that necessitates the bishops paying periodical visits to the Holy See to report on the work of their respective dioceses. It is understood that Cardinal Farley's report of the church under his immediate jurisdiction will be supplemented by an important contribution to Peter's Pence. His Eminence is accompanied on the trip by the Rev Dr. Carroll, his secretary, as well as by a special party of clergymen of the diocese.

FRENCH ELECTIONS.

Paris, April 25—General elections to the Chamber of Deputies will take place tomorrow, with second ballots two weeks hence in constituencies where candidates fail to obtain the regulation majorities. The campaign which closed today with the last appeals of the candidates has attracted far more than ordinary attention. Of late years the French people have shown an increasing tendency to assign a smaller place in their lives to politics. But the home events of the past few months, particularly the Caillaux-Calmette tragedy and the investigation of the Rochette affair, have served to rouse the people from their apathy and in consequence a very heavy poll is expected tomorrow.

NEBRASKA CONFERENCE.

Omaha, Neb., April 25.—What promises to be the most notable annual meeting ever conducted by the Nebraska State Conference of Charities and Correction will open in this city tomorrow and continue its sessions until next Thursday. The program provides for the discussion of an unusually wide variety of topics. Prominent speakers from outside the State will include Dr. Katherine B. Davis, commissioner of corrections of New York city; Jacob Billikorp, director of public welfare of Kansas City, and W. J. Springhorn, director of public welfare of Cleveland. An interesting feature of the program will be a round table for sheriffs, wardens and county commissioners conducted by Warden Fenton, of the Nebraska penitentiary.

GIDEONS MEET IN HUTCHINSON.

Hutchinson, Kas., April 24.—A large attendance marked the opening here today of the annual State convention of the Gideons, or Christian traveling men. The convention was opened this afternoon with a reception at the Commercial Club. Tomorrow morning the pulpits of several of the local churches will be occupied by some of the delegates to the convention. In the afternoon there will be an open meeting at which the principal address will be delivered by A. D. T. Moore, of Oshkosh, Wis., the national president of the Gideons.

TROLLEY LINE PROMISES BOOM

Real estate men in this city are taking considerable interest in the proposed trolley line from this city to South Plainfield, as this improvement would mean a great increase in the values of property in many sections of the city. No doubt the line would be instrumental in bringing considerable business into the city, but the matter of increasing the value of property is another proposition. However, the "land men" must be heard.

In discussing this question with the writer, a real estate man stated that in his opinion a belt line taking in this city, South Plainfield and Metuchen would be the means of bringing this city into close contact with many who would reach Plainfield over the Lehigh and Pennsylvania roads. "Once the 'Queen City' is brought into easy access of these people," he said, "and the opportunity is presented to them to view the town without the touching of the purses for too much carfare for the trip, then comes the natural demand for homes and homesites, for Plainfield has every natural advantage needed for the best, most progressive, most up-to-date and modern home town east of the Mississippi. But the want of adequate transportation is the one great drawback to any hopes of reaching those people we desire to reach at the present time. Furthermore, in my opinion, the Public Service Company would not be the loser of any great amount of money by the establishment of the line."

JUST NOTES

The last of the three stores in the Mono building at Park avenue and West Fourth street is now undergoing alterations, an entire new front being the feature of the work.

A quarter of a million dollars recently passed hands for a villa and eight lots at Allenhurst, seems to indicate that money is not as tight as some would lead to believe. F. J. Arend was the purchaser of the property.

No marked change has occurred in the wholesale building material during the past few weeks. Buying was, if anything, a little slower, but the movement of common brick showed a continued strengthening stone. Portland cement moved in better demand and steel showed further signs of activity.

INDUSTRIAL FIELD NOTES

The Armour Company will erect a seven story structure on Atlantic avenue, Brooklyn, at a cost of $200,000, at the site of the old buildings of the packing concerns. Dividends must be good, even in dull times.

The W. M. Shinnick Company, recently located at New Brunswick, started operations yesterday, with a small force, but it is expected that this number will be increased within the course of a very short time. Extensive additions to the plant are expected to be ordered before long.

The big industrial developments upon the shore front at Camden, Bayonne, and the northern end of Hudson county, reported to the New Jersey Harbor Commission, caused the commissioners to have a special meeting at the State House, Wednesday, to complete plans for the issuance of permits for all shore front improvement. Under the law creating the Harbor Commission, which was signed by Governor Fielder two weeks ago, no development of any kind can be undertaken upon any navigable stream within the borders of New Jersey unless plans and specifications for the improvement have first been filed with the Harbor Commissioners and approved by them.

The coal trade is giving no indication of immediate improvement.

Says the Coal Age:

"The customary spring activity prevails in anthracite. Mines are working to the full, and nearly all the companies report more orders for April delivery than they will be able to fill. The movement has been heavy, and the cool weather has caused an unexpected consumption.

"Even in the face of an indefinite suspension bituminous quotations are under a severe test because of the effort to force coal on an already overstocked market.

"The general contraction in all lines continues, and coal is now shipped only on specific orders, the general market being too uncertain to risk demurrage."

S. P. Hemrick, of Fulton, N. Y., purchased the real and personal property of the Lincoln Water Proof Company at an auction held on Thursday. The purchase includes buildings, machinery, raw material, stock, railroad siding, and four acres of ground. The price paid was $8,700. About twenty business men attended the sale, which was conducted by Randolph Perkins, of Jersey City, trustee of bankruptcy.

BUILDING ESTIMATES ARE BEING SOUGHT

Locally, the progress of the building boom was held up as far as permits issued by Inspector T. O. Doane may be concerned. It should be kept in mind, however, that thus far this month, several contracts have been awarded which will keep quite a number of the building trades men busy for a short time. This fact, together with the knowledge that figures are still being asked for on many sides, should be an encouragement to the building contractors of the city.

But three permits have been granted during the past week, one for a garage, and two for extensions to dwellings. The First ward, which ran way ahead of the other wards during the preceding week as far as the expenditure of money is concerned, is left prostrate this week without a single contract.

Second Ward.

Permit issued to A. W. Ransome, of 923 Woodland avenue, to erect a two story, eight by sixteen foot, frame extension to the north side of his dwelling at the above address. The addition will be placed on brick piers, and will cost in the vicinity of $600. John S. Dahl is the contractor for both carpenter and mason work.

Third Ward.

Dr. F. J. Hughes will erect a one story, twelve by twenty foot, hollow terra cotta block garage on the southwest corner of West Seventh street and Park avenue at a cost of $900. The foundations will be of concrete, while the peak roof will be shingled. The structure will be heated with a gas heater. Wilder & White, of New York, are the architects. The contract for mason work has been awarded to Frank T. McInerney, while M. D. O'Keeffe will care for the carpentry work.

Fourth Ward.

John Kitchen, of 123 Lafayette place, will erect a twenty-four by twelve foot frame extension to his dwelling at a cost of $500. Howard D. Huff will do the mason work and H. H. Hoffman the carpenter work.

BUILDING RECORDS FOR MARCH GOOD

The boom in the building trades throughout the country show that the fever has struck the nation. According to the Construction News, the activities started during the month of March were confined to no one portion of the country, and no one city can claim a corner on the wave of prosperity which is now passing from one end of the continent to the other as far as building industry is concerned. During the month of March, permits were issued for the erection of 20,936 buildings, an increase of 1,643 over the same month of 1913, the figures being based on returns from eighty-three cities. While a greater number of buildings are now in the course of construction, the cost will be in the vicinity of a million dollars less. This falling off, however, is not to be considered as a disturbing element in any sense, as it is but a total decrease of a total of two per cent. of the total expenditure for the four-score cities taken into consideration.

The New Jersey cities taken into account are Passaic, Paterson, Newark and Elizabeth, where a decrease is shown in each case for the one case over the one month last year. Of these four towns, Elizabeth was the greater sufferer, where a drop of 74 per cent. was experienced, but this is due mainly to the fact that the permit for the new High School was issued in March of 1913. Newark is second with a loss of 72 per cent. Passaic shows a loss of 38 per cent. during March over the preceding March.

While the activities are fairly evenly distributed, the heaviest are reported to be to the south and east of New York. Both New York and Philadelphia show returns which are far from satisfactory. The former city reaurns indicate a drop of 47 per cent., while the Quaker City has experienced a drop in building operations to the extent of 16 per cent. Peculiar local conditions, no doubt, account for these conditions.

"This is a very satisfactory condition of affairs," says Construction News, "and taking into consideration that there were gains in forty-eight cities and losses in only thirty-three, one would be inclined to the belief that building operations for the year will parallel last year's construction, if not exceed it both in the number of structures and cost.

"Chicago leads in volume of building, permits having been taken out in March for 1,170 buildings, involving a total estimated cost of $8,111,550 as against 937 buildings involving $7,690,600 for the same month a year ago, a gain of 233 buildings and an increase of five per cent. in cost. New York and Philadelphia do not make such a satisfactory showing, the former having a loss of forty-seven per cent. and Philadelphia, sixteen."

In reviewing and comparing the activities of the past month in building circles, the Construction News says:

"There is a very satisfactory increase scattered generally throughout the entire country, while the cities in which there was a falling off are so remote from each other that it has practically no general significance. There were increases in Boston of 16 per cent., Cleveland 77, San Francisco 147, St. Paul 120, Minneapolis 177, Kansas City 66, Grand Rapids 571, Pittsburgh 33, Albany 136, Seattle 20, Indianapolis 3, Rochester 6, Milwaukee 7, Bridgeport 173, Columbus 113, Atlanta 29, Toledo 97, Peoria 370, Hartford 6, New Bedford 106, New Haven 47, Dayton 702, Omaha 21, Salt Lake City 146, Akron 23, Nashville 23, Pasadena 25, Savannah 19, San Antonio 5, Erie 62, Reading 41, Cedar Rapids 10, Youngstown 10, Schenectady 2, Tacoma 11, Davenport 160, Tampa 18, Chattanooga 68, Evansville 5, Stockton 26, East St. Louis 47, San Jose 25, Sprinfield, Ill., 94, South Bend 98, Hoboken 151, Pueblo 31. It will be seen by a perusal of the foregoing that the activity is pretty evenly distributed throughout the entire country.

"The decreases are scattered over a wide range, including Los Angeles 28, Dallas 23, Buffalo 61, Oakland 31, Springfield, Mass., 8, Richmond 12, Memphis 35, Worcester 25, Newarw 72, Berkeley 21, Duluth 81, San Diego 46, Birmingham 75, Sacramento 58, New Orleans 58, Elizabeth 74, Altoona 12, Paterson 26, Spokane 46, Portland, Me., 46, Scranton 42, St. Joseph, Mo., 43, Wilkes-Barre 73, Holyoke 84, Topeka 70, Saginaw 29, Troy 81, Colorado Springs 31.

PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB PROFESSIONAL TELLS HOW TENNIS COURTS WERE RESURFACED

By Marty O'Loughlin.

The courts, when first put down, were improperly built and after ten years of moderate use showed too much wear. I found it necessary to rip up the entire courts before I could even hope to produce satisfactory courts in their place.

After having my top surface ripped and ready for removal I put on a team and scooped my loose earth to my dumping ground, and by backlashing my scoop I found it was easy to remove the loose earth and still retain my given level to depth.

Many contractors in doing this make the big mistake of starting in at the wrong point for removal. It is absolutely necessary to start your removal at the right place, as by so doing you kep your ground in working condition at all stages. If, for instance, you start at a point where you have to drive your horses over the worked space indefinitely, you find that when you are ready to fill in that you will again have to loosen the earth, as it is imperative that your base be conditioned. This is as necessary in the building of good courts as it is in any reliable building contract, and is a point to be remembered by beginners.

To do this you will have to start at a given point and work your team and scoop in a circle or as near so as possible, using care to have all stones and bumps that appeared removed; be sure to do this at once, so as to avoid all unnecessary tramping on your trimmed ground. By adopting this course you will find that when you come to put on your road scraper you have saved over half your time, as it will need only a light scraping to put the court in condition for your clay body.

Before starting to haul my clay I drove my stakes on lines of about twenty feet apart all over the courts, making sure that the stake tops remained at a level, to the height of about twelve inches above ground. In driving your stakes you will find it necessary to make your meshing of various dimensions to conform to the nature of the soil in working.

You are now ready to put in your clay body. I found that by filling my farthest point first I did not experience any trouble in keeping my courts level; and furthermore, I did not have to drive over my filled-in ground. I put my men to work on the first load as soon as I dumped it, using long-toothed road rakes to remove all lumps and stones; by doing this, and continuing the same throughout your courts, you will find that when you have your last load dumped you will also have all stones and lumps removed and courts down to a level. This does away with all tramping over your courts and saves the trouble of having a heap for removal here and there all over your courts.

You are now ready for rolling, and this is where many make a big mistake by putting on a roller that is too heavy. Your roller for this should be say, a 100 or 150 pound roller. This should be used so that your clay will pack slowly and not be forced into place at once. If you put a heavy roller on first you will find that in the course of a few years Mother Nature has taken exception to your harsh treatment and returned it with interest. Keep rolling with a light roller first one way and then across, until your clay will not embed any further, and then put your men on with rakes to take off the lumps by scratching. Do not keep scratching one way, and fill all small gullies with back of rakes. Make a double operation of this, and you will have your courts leveled and in shape for heavy rolling when your second gang of men finish scratching.

Now I put on a roller weighing from four to five hundred pounds and rolled my courts again both ways, doing this until the body would take no impression. I then made a drag about four feet long and four feet wide by taking plank and nailing together and driving nails through so that points extended about one inch. This I weighted and worked with men the same as I had the previous rollers. This is done to bring up any small stones that may have come up or been skipped by the rakes.

I now go carefully over my courts and remove all small stones and fill all indentations and again roll into place using the same roller.

I now put on a two-ton roller and rolled into shape, and I was careful at all stages to make sure that the rolling was thoroughly done. The rolling has all been done by men, as I find that you cannot work horses and get the best results. After rolling to a finish with this roller I let my courts stand to dry out.

After the drying course I sprinkled lightly and dusted my sand over. On this I used my men with a cloth drag which levels out all small hummocks and fills all gullies. This drag is long enough so that it will show up all high and hard spots. These I scratch and remove with rakes and fill in or level as I find necessary. I now put on my five-ton roller and four horses and roll to a finish after which I once more dust with sand and drag and then reroll for the last time.

My courts were now ready for use, and I opened them for play and criticism. My ambitions were realized after a summer's play by some of the experts of our country, who praised the courts to the limit. I found that I had courts which had the cushion effect, and also retained the solidity without giving rise to the confusing clay and sand dust so much in evidence on many of our tennis courts.

In conclusion I would say that by following this formula the desired effect can be obtained, but the work must be done carefully and thoroughly watched, as one small mistake may mean a bad spot and this will condemn the whole court.—American Lawn Tennis.

WITH THE BOXERS

Eddi Campi, the Frisco crack, will make his Eastern debut in Philadelphia next week.

Jack Redmond has been barred from boxing in Wisconsin until June 1 because of alleged foul work in a bout last month.

Gilbert Gallant and Red Watson are going to clash again in a 20-round bout. Promoter Coffroth, of San Francisco, has matched the pair for May 1.

Jim Coffey, the Irish heavyweight now boxing in New York, has called off his match with Bombardier Wells, which was scheduled to take place next month in London.

MISSIONARY ADDRESS.

An interesting and profitable evening was enjoyed by those who attended the lecture given last evening at Grace M. E. church. The speaker was Miss Alice Linam,a returned missionary from Yenping, China. The service was held under the auspices of the missionary societies of the three Methodist churches of the city.

LOCAL BATTERY SELECTED.

Warry McLaughlin will pitch and "Nibs" Hand will do the backstop work for the Trentons against the Long Island City club at Recreation Park tomorow afternoon. The park is located near the Queensboro bridge plaza and this will be the first game of the season to be played on it.

DIRT TRACK HONORS BELONG TO DISBROW

Has Also Held Many of the Records He Established During 1912 Season.

When Louis Disbrow, head of the Case racing team, defeated Ralph DePalma in three straight heats at San Antonio, Texas, in the final dirt track race meet of the season, he again proved beyond the shadow of a doubt that the dirt track honors of America, which he won in 1912, rightfully belonged to him as far as competition goes.

In the record book Disbrow also stands as the premier honor man, having held throughout the past season the records he established in 1912. These are seven in number and more than all the other drivers put together hold.

Disbrow spent most of the season on the dirt tracks in the middle West and South. DePalma attended to the East and Bob Burman, Teddy Tetzlaf and Barney Oldfield shared the honors of the year on the dirt tracks of the far West and in Canada.

The only youngster who came to the front on the dirt ovals during the year was Eddie Rickenbacher, head of the Mason team. He met Disbrow in different races at three different meets and each time gave him a hard battle, finishing ahead of all other competitors except the champion.

Probably the biggest single dirt track event of the year was won by still another driver who has given very little of his time to the dirt ovals. The race was run off at Columbus, Ohio, and was won by Ralph Mulford in world's record time.

No driver in the history of dirt track competition has accomplished such phenomenal success as Disbrow. In two years he has started 132 times and won 101 firsts, 19 seconds and 6 thirds. He was unplaced just six times. His defeats have all taken place in handicap races or Australian pursuit contests, except on one occasion when he lost to the Mason car at Sioux City, Iowa, where his mechanaician forgot to turn on the gasoline after it had been turned off by Disbrow on account of a delay at the start of the contest.

In beach competition Disbrow also proved the premier driver both last year and the past season. He won the 300 mile event at Galveston, the most important race as far as the magnitude of the purse and the number of entries went during the season of 1913. In his career Disbrow has also won more distance events on beach courses than any other man driving a car today. He has to his credit overwhelming victories in the 300 mile race of the past season, the 200 mile race of the 1912 season and the famous 300 mile Pablo Beach race of 1911, in which he defeated Bob Burman. Disbrow also won two one hundred free-for-alls on beach courses.

"DOC" SCANLON TO PITCH.

"Doc" Scanlon, well-known hereabouts as a professional slab artist who has twirled for Plainfield on several different occasions, will make his first appearance in three years in Harlem, tomorrow afternoon, when he will twirl for the All-Stars against the Lincoln Stars. He was recently reinstated by the National Commission and it is said that he is negotiatiing with several of the National League clubs for a berth in organized baseball which he deserted two years ago when a member of the Brooklyn team.

LIDGATE BEHIND THE BAT.

Eugene Lidgate, the Fanwood youth, handled the shoots of "Bill" Russell, of the Baltimore International League team, yesterday afternoon, when that aggregation handed a 2 to 0 coat of whitewash to the Buffalo club. Lidgate rapped out a sacrifice bingle and handled four putouts and one assist with one slip to his credit.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Now that the American battery has registered two strikes on Captain Huerta followers of the National pastime are waiting for the final one to be shot from the mound.

Jack Martin, sometimes shortstop, sometimes third base, is getting another rest as the result of Charlie Deal's return to the lineup. Martin put up a clever fielding game while in action but displayed his old weakness with the wagon tongue.

Plainfield High School baseball tossers have certainly got the close decision habit. Another victory was snatched from their grasp yesterday afternoon because of the locals inability to put over the final punch with men hanging close to the cushions.

We note that Albin Carlstorm is still holding down the initial sack for the Montreal aggregation despite rumors of his going stale. In yesterday's game at Jersey City he duplicated his feat of the day before and smashed out a brace of bingles. Just to keep his mind occupied in the field he took advantage of thirteen chances failing to connect with a single error. 'Nuf sed.

We note that Lidgate is back on the job once more. Johnny Dunn must have decided that the best way to season the burly Fanwood youth is to put him to work in an Oriole uniform. He got a sacrifice hit out of his system in his first league game of the season.

Police Commissioner Woods yesterday announced that the police will not interfere with the Sunday semi-pro ball games tomorrow, as was done last Sunday. Under his instructions the police will permit all semi-pro teams to engage in Sunday games under the same system that was in vogue in the administration of the late Mayor Gaynor. He issued an order yesterday to his inspectors requesting them not to molest players or spectators.

Basil Zaharoff, principal proprietor of the newspaper Excelsior in Paris, today gave $100,000 to the French National Committee of Sports. The money will be used to defray the expense of training athletes to compete as representatives of France at the Olympic games to be held in Berlin in 1916.

To those that have there is always the chance to grab a little more; so you, therefore, readily can understand why Willie Ritchie, our modest lightweight champion, will never have to ask a "handout" when he separates himself from the crown. Willie has probably grabbed for himself about $60,000 since he capped himself with the royal diadem. And to assist him just a little more the Manhattan Sporting Club, of New York, is willing to slip Willum ten thousand more iron men if he will hasten this way and do a tango with Freddie Welsh or Johnny Dundee for ten rounds the early part of next month.

In a few days programs will be out for the annual amateur championship tournament of the Metropolitan Golf Association. This fixture, which is carded for the links of the Englewood Country Club May 20 to 24, will start with the usual qualifying round, with the top thirty-two earning the right to finish out at match play. All match rounds except the final will be eighteen holes. The new year book of the association will also be out early in May, but will contain no innovations.

The cup defender Resolute is near enough to completion to warrant her being launched at sunset today. She will be rigged speedily, and will go into commission for her first sail trial probably in ten days or about the time that the other two defenders are ready for launching. The Resolute will be launched in the fading twilight. As an additional precaution against revealing her lines, she will slide down greased ways like a battleship instead of being lowered into the water in a cradle.

The team representing New York, with a score of 1,809, won first honors; New Jersey, with 1,754, took second, and the Pennsylvanians, making 1,525, came third at Travers Island yesterday in the ninth annual trap shooters' amateur championship of America, held under the auspices of the New York Athletic Club.

Query—Kindly tell me the best way to pitch a curve ball to a batter. —C. M.

Answer—Since the day when scientists were willing to hazard the assertion there was no such thing as a curve ball, much has been learned about the odd jumps, stops and twistings which the leather sphere may be made to perform by a skillful pitcher. All the important pitchers have developed their own peculiar balls, some of which no other man has been able to throw in just exactly the inventor's style. There are, however, certain balls which are now recognized as necessary to a pitcher's education. For instance, there is the "slow ball." To throw this, the baseball is held in the palm of the hand. The thumb and little finger grip it lightly. The pitcher projects the ball overhand. Instead or revolving the ball wobbles from side to side. It rotates rapidly away from the pitcher, losing its force in a manner surprising to one who has not faced it. The rotation shoots the ball downward much faster than it otherwise would. The "fast ball" is pitched with great speed overhand or side arm. If the pitcher prefers an overhand delivery the ball is gripped with two fingers on top and the thumb underneath. It is delivered off the ends of the fingers, which grip the ball tightly at release. The ball revolves backward, traveling straight toward the batter until near him, then takes a lightning jump upward. When this ball is pitched side arm the grip is the same. But the back of the hand is turned, so fingers and thumb are horizontal. The ball then jumps in the direction of the gripping fingers. If a right-hander pitches this ball the jump is to the right.

BASEBALL MANAGERS.

Beginning tonight and lasting throughout the baseball season, the Plainfield Daily Press sporting department will be open evenings for the receipt of box scores and details of games played in the afternoon. Managers are invited to bring or 'phone the results of contests to this office between the hours of 7:00 and 10:30 each night.

During the coming five months of baseball special attention will be given to contests played by local teams and in order to insure the publication of satisfactory accounts managers and captains are urged to bring their box scores in as soon as possible after the games are completed.

BASEBALL WAR FAT FOR THE LAWYERS

$135,000 Is Asked for in Suits Now Pending as the Result of New League.

New York, April 25.—One hundred and thirty-five thousand dollars is asked for in the damage suits now pending between the National and Federal Leagues, resulting from the jumping of players. This stunt of the big league moguls in rushing into court with damage suits and injunction pleas is something new in baseball warfare. With the single exception of the Lajoie case, which was taken into court in Philadelphia, the war of a dozen years ago between the American and National Leagues produced no soft money in the way of fees for attorneys. The two old leagues kept out of the courts and used their coin as bait for players.

The present war among the big leagues is being fought along different lines. When a player does a flop his old manager loses no time in hot-footing into court with a plea for an injunction in one hand and papers for a damage suit in the other.

In connection with the numerous lawsuits already filed there surely are some strange and peculiar angles. To the trained lawyer they may not seem out of the ordinary, but to the everyday fan they look very much like the "bunk."

President Gaffney, of the Boston Braves, asks $25,000 damages from the Baltimore Federal League club on account of Pitcher Jack Quinn deserting the Braves and signing with Baltimore. Quinn's record shows that he did good work for Rochester after failing with the New York Yankees. He also showed up fairly well after joining the Braves last fall. But to declare that Quinn is worth $25,000 on his past performances seems like juggling figures to the limit.

The Federal League is seeking $15,000 damages from Killifer, of the Phillies, and Blanding and Kohler, of the Cleveland Naps. Ten thousand dollars is sought by the league from Baumgarder and Williams, of the St. Louis Browns, and $25,000 from Hamilton, of the same team. In these cases the players and not their clubs are the defendants. The claim of the Federals is based on the refusal of the players to live up to the contracts they are said to have signed with the new organization.

In the opinion of lawyers the Federals will have to establish that the defendant players have deprived the Federal League of extraordinary services, or in other words, services that could not be performed by others. If the Feds are compelled to make their claim good along this line they doubtless will center the fight on the case of Bill Killifer, who is the star of the whole outfit that has been drawn into court. Killifer is ranked as one of the leading catchers of the big show.

As a counter action to the suit of the Federals against Killifer, President Baker, of the Philadelphia Nationals, has filed two suits against the officials of the Chicago club, of the Federal League. Baker asks $25,000 damages and an injunction restraining the Federal League from interfering with the players of the Philadelphia club.

With Blanding, Kahler, Hamilton and Baumgardner, the other defendants in the damage suits filed by the Federal League, ranking nineteenth, twenty-ninth, thirty-first and thirty-fifth, respectively, in the 1913 records of American League pitchers, it is difficult to see how the Federal League can obtain any damages for the loss of their services.

With court decisions and three pennant races to follow the baseball fans will find plenty to keep them busy during the remainder of this season. And incidentally the lawyers will gather a nice bundle of change and learn more about the national pastime than they thought it possible to know.

BASEBALL NOTES

Second Baseman Steve Yerkes has been putting up the best all around game of any member of the Red Sox.

It is not to be denied that the Federal League teams have been furnishing classy contests with close scores.

They say that little Harold Hartley, the St. Louis Feds' pitcher who stands 6 feet 5 inches, has all the earmarks of a real slabster.

For the first time in the history of the Cincinnati club the sale of lager beer has been tabooed in the Red Birds' ball park.

Few players have anything on Moeller and Foster, the first two men in the Washington batting order, when it comes to putting over the hit-and-run play.

Third base looks to be the weak spot in the Boston Braves' outfit. If either Martin or Deal could catch the step the Braves' infield would be all to the mustard.

In the opening games no grass was set afire by either the Athletics or Giants. But pennants are not won in April and the two old battlers are still the favorites.

The failure of Larry Lajoie to make even a hit in the first four games of the season caused Cleveland fans to wonder if the great clouter had lost his batting eye.

Pat Flaherty, manager of the Lynn team in the New England League, claims he has discovered another Maranville in young Gillespie, a New York boy.

The early season work of Pitcher Atchinson, the former Newarker, is making good the prediction of the International Leaguers that he would prove a star with the Brooklyn Superbas.

Bill Sweeney is filling Johnny Evers' old place at the Cubs' second station in fine style. There seems little chance to doubt that Bill will prove a valuable man for Hank O'Day.

The Cleveland Naps have been hit hard through the injuries of several of their stars. With Manager Birmingham and Shortstop Chapman on the hospital list the Naps surely have a hard up-hill fight.

Tommy Daly, the hard-hitting youngster playing in the left garden for the White Sox, will be shifted to his regular position behind the plate when either Chappell or Fournier is able to return to the outfield.

MASTERFUL PITCHING BY DENIZER CAUSE OF RED AND BLUE BALLISTS' DOWNFALL

Errors at critical moments in the game and the failure to hit the ball in the pinches once more caused the downfall of the Plainfield High School baseball team, New Brunswick High School winning yesterday's game on Parker Field by the score of 4 to 3. With three men on base in the ninth inning and no outs, Denizer pitched himself out of the hole like a leaguer. Victorson flied out to Polinsky and Smith and Kyle each took three healthy swings at the ball. Neither team scored until the fourth inning, when O'Leary struck out and Hetfield walked, Peacock bunted, Hetfield going to third. Van Deventer struck out, but Rosenson singled, bringing in Hetfield and Peacock. Butler flied out to centre field. In the eighth inning Van Deventer pulled down a line drive from Keator that was a sure two-bagger and probably good for a circuit clout. The ball was hit on a line between left field and center, and Van Deventer, running at top speed, nailed it with one hand, losing his balance, but clinging to the pill.

New Brunswick scored two of their runs in the eighth inning. Polinsky hit through second base and took a big lead off first. Rosenson made a poor throw to first and Polinsky went to second and tried for third. Victorson heaved the ball over Hetfield's head, scoring the runner. Thomson and Miller flied out, but singles by Ringle and Denizer scored the other run.

BOGARDUS AND VOEHL WILL PRODUCE SPORT

After three futile attempts to get a sufficient number of the stockholders of the Dunellen Baseball Club together to hold a meeting, President George Voehl and Manager Bob Bogardus, the officials of last year's Dunellen club decided last evening, to take the responsibility of organizing a team to represent their club upon the diamond this year on their own shoulders.

They will see to it that the Dunellen team will be of a calibre sufficient to coupe with the teams of this vicinity and will appoint a capable man to manage it. It is understood that a wealth of home talent will make a try for the team.

POOR PINNING MARKS DOWNFALL OF ELKS

Park Club Takes Two out of Three in Second Evening of Competition.

With both contestants experiencing a decided off-night, the Park Club and Elks' Club bowling teams met in their second set of matches scheduled in the championship series on the former's chutes last night and the result was a second decision practically handed to the Park Club men. The contest resolved itself into a battle between the two foes, the object of which appeared to be poor, rather than winning pin splitting. The Elks managed to shoot a little worse than their rivals in the first and last matches, but the boroughites sneaked into prominence in the midway game by dropping two pins below the antlered tribe.

During the evening the "Canadians" missed twenty spares and the Elks' passed by twenty-nine of the same variety. Twenty-one splits were recorded for each of the teams during the series. Daniels slipped through a 208 in the initial combat which was preserved as the high score mark for individuals during the remaining games. The averages of the individuals who took part in the series, last night, were as follows: Barlow, 169.1; Lyman, 173.1; Daniels, 167.1; Long, 176.1; Ball, 158.1; Blatz, 155.2; Laing, 158.2; Stout, 152.1; Nash, 174.2, and Campbell, 163.1. N. P. H. S. BOYS HEAD RUTGERS 1914 TEAM

Harry Smith, Manager, and Harry Jackson His Assistant, in College Tennis.

Union county boys showed up well in the annual elections of the Rutgers College Athletic Association, Friday afternoon. W. C. Bowles, of Elizabeth, varsity track man, was chosen secretary of the association, his opponent being Harry Rockafeller, football and track man. Ralph Seiler, of Elizabeth, who was nominated for junior representative on the board of managers, withdrew his name just before the election. Elmer Bracher, of Rahway, who made an enviable record on the football field, was a candidate for sophomore representative on the board. Bracher ran against the most prominent men in the freshman class, and was one of the two candidates selected to be voted upon at a special election next week.

Raymond Austin, formerly of Rahway, was chosen assistant baseball manager, together with George Whistler, of Newark. Ralph Crane, a former Rahway boy, was defeated for the track managership by C. K. Martin, of Bloomfield, but Charles Hruby, of Elizabeth, a member of the baseball team, won out in the fight for assistant gymnasium manager. Harry B. Smith, of North Plainfield, gained an easy victory in the contest for manager of the tennis team, with Harry Jackson, of North Plainfield, his assistant.

PLAINFIELD TRYOUTS ON OR ABOUT MAY 9

Manager Dorflinger Will Once More Handle the Guiding Reins of Local Nine.

That Plainfield will have a representative baseball team this year is now a foregone conclusion, following announcements made by Manager Ernest Dorflinger, last night. The veteran local pilot intends to call for recruits within the next two weeks and will hold a tryout day for local talent. A wealth of excellent material, representing several of the fastest amateur clubs in the city, has signified its intention of trying out for the nine berths on the team and the popular local pilot expects little trouble in rounding together a combination that will be fit to stack up against the best on the market.

The announcement made today in another column of this issue that Dunellen would have a team this summer adds more interest to the organization of a Queen City delegation and as matters now stand it looks as though both combinations would be formed exclusively of local talent.

Plainfield's games will be staged on Parker Field and a weekly program of the national pastime will be mapped out by Dorflinger as soon as he can dispose of a number of pressing matters that are now being negotiated prior to the organization of the club.

No one has as yet been named for the pitching department but there are several local youngsters who bear promise of rounding into form that will make them valuable slab artists during the summer months and it is not thought that Dorflinger will have to wander far from the sand lots of Plainfield to pick up the necessary talent. Definite announcement of the tryout date will be made in this paper by Dorflinger several days prior to the time set and those desiring to be considered as aspirants for the vacant jobs should get in touch with the manager prior to that time.

S. S. BASEBALL CARD RATIFIED BY LEAGUE

Meeting Held Last Night to Launch Organization on Season's Trip.

Directors of the Sunday-School Baseball League met last night and adopted the 1914 playing schedule which includes dates for each aggregation. Leo Slonim, the local jeweler, who donated the 1913 trophy, has offered a similar one to inspire competition this season and the clubs will battle for another silver loving cup during the coming season. James D. Brown and George Symonds, two of the umpires of last year, have been chosen to act in this capacity during the 1914 playing schedule. The complete schedule follows:

May 16—Hope at Monroe, Trinity at First Baptist.

May 23—First Baptist at Hope, Monroe at Trinity.

Aug. 15—Hope at First Baptist, Trinity at Monroe.

DRISCOLL FAVORS AMBOY.

Although New Brunswick baseball fans have been anticipating having the Dave Driscoll baseball artists in that place on Sunday afternoons during the coming season, it is understood that the leader is negotiating with Perth Amboy authorities to place his club in that town during the coming season. Several games are now pending between Driscoll's nine and Billy Pfau's Atlantic Leaguers, of Perth Amboy, for which Cliff Randolph, of this city, is pitcher.

PREPARE FOR TENNIS.

Preparations are being made to open the tennis courts of the Monroe Avenue church by May 1. All members of the church tennis league who desire to make use of the court this season should communicate with Clarence Weber to Miss Anna Matthews, members of the tennis committee, regarding the enrollment and dates for playing.

Very simple indeed, and easy to embroider is this attractive design for a centerpiece. It should be developed in eyelets, although, if preferred, it may be carried out in heavily padded solid work. Firm, white, round-thread linen is best for making the centerpiece, and white mercerized cotton should be used for the embroidery. This design is twenty-two inches in diameter and may be used with the ten-inch plate doilies in pattern No. 14132.

SEASONABLE PUDDINGS.

PUDDINGS to suit all tastes are represented below. They are compounded with fruits and nuts and range from the comparatively simple everyday pudding to the elaborate kind for special occasions. They are suitable for dinner or luncheon.

Pineapple and Tapioca Pudding.—Take one-half cupful tapioca; wash and put in double boiler, with a scant quart cold water and a pinch of salt. Cook until as clear as starch. Stir often to prevent lumping. Remove from the fire, put into the dish in which you intend to serve it, add one-half cupful sugar and a can of shredded pineapple. When cold whip cream and spread on top.

Nut and Fruit Dessert.

Walnut and Banana Pudding.—Shell and peel three ounces walnuts; cut them into fine shreds. Peel also three to four ripe bananas and rub them through a fine sieve. Chop finely four ounces of beef suet free from skin. Put this into a mixing basin and add four ounces breadcrumbs, two ounces moist sugar, a pinch of salt, the juice and finely grated rind of half a lemon. Stir all well together and lastly mix with the walnuts and banana pulp; then stir in two well beaten eggs. Have ready a well buttered pudding mold, sprinkle the inside with finely crushed dried macaroons and breadcrumbs and fill up with the above preparation. Stand the mold in a pan containing a little hot water and bake the pudding in a moderately heated oven.

A Steamed Pudding.

Banana and Rhubarb Pudding.—Cream in a basin two ounces of butter with two ounces of powdered sugar; then spread the inside of a pudding dish or mold thickly with it. Now make a suet paste with half a pound of flour, quarter of a pound of finely chopped beef suet, half a teaspoonful of salt, half a teaspoonful of baking powder and sufficient cold water to make a stiff crust. Roll the paste out and line the prepared pudding dish, keeping a piece of paste to cover it. Fill the mold with bananas peeled and cut into slices; also with rhubarb cleaned and cut into inch lengths. Add about two tablespoonfuls of moist sugar and half a teaspoonful of ground ginger. Moisten with about half a cupful of water. Wet the edges of the paste and lay on the lid, pressing the ends firmly together. Tie a piece of greased white paper on a wetted pudding cloth on the top; then steam the pudding for two hours or bake in the oven for one and three-quarter hours. Turn out and serve hot.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Jolly Keeper and the Gloomy Gnu.

The Gnu Said He Was Bored.

"YOU know," said daddy, "that the gnu is a very gloomy animal. I heard the other day of a gnu who had to be kept all by himself in the zoo where he belonged because of his moody nature."

"Couldn't the other animals cheer him up?" inquired Evelyn.

"No," said daddy. "In fact, he made all the other animals so depressed that they became as moody as he was. First the keeper of the zoo, being very much worried over the gnu's gloominess, put him with the laughing hyenas. They think almost everything is funny, but when the gnu was put near them they stopped their habit of giggling. And it was a long time before they laughed again. Next he was put with the monkeys, for the keeper thought surely that their antics would amuse the gnu. But the monkeys became most sullen.

"Next the keeper tried the jackasses, but instead of their making the gnu feel merry he made them pine and droop, and when he sneezed they fell frightened and thought something dreadful had happened.

"The only thing that seemed to interest him at all was his food, and when he'd see that being brought to him he'd lean way over and look through the bars of his cage, pulling his whiskers.

"At last the keeper decided he must have indigestion, though he only fed him wet and dry hay, clover and bran mash, all of which is very good for the gnu. But the keeper thought that surely the gnu must be sick to act so queerly, and at last he had a long talk with him. Of course a gnu can't really talk—not even the way a parrot can—but a zoo keeper is so used to animal language that he can usually understand it.

"'The reason I seem so gloomy is because I'm terribly bored.'

"'Bored!' exclaimed the keeper. 'That's a strange thing for you to be. You're a fine animal, you have plenty of other animals to talk to, and you get all the food you want without having to hunt for it.'

"'That's just it,' said the gnu. 'I would rather get tired hunting for it than to have it given to me without any effort. And it does bore me so to have people stop and look at me.'

"'Well, they won't much longer,' replied the keeper, 'for you'll make them cry you're so sad looking, and people don't like to cry and have wet handkerchiefs.'

"'Oh, well, it seems so stupid,' said the gnu. 'I'm not a beautiful painting nor a lovely sunset. I'm nothing worth looking at. It's ridiculous, and it bores me.'

"'Take people as you find them and cheer up,' said the keeper."

ANTI-SUFFRAGE

Conducted by Plainfield Branch New Jersey Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage.

The Things Beyond.

Every now and then we have hints and intimations—and this from Suffrage source—of some of the things that lie beyond the demand for "Votes for Women."

Here is an interview with Judge Lindsey in the Cincinnati Commercial-Tribune of January 17, in which some light is thrown on the things beyond,—and behind—the cry of "votes for women:"

"Equal Suffrage has many admirable features, but the trouble is that women will not stop there. Other questions of sex are vexatious, and with which I heartily disagree. The one great argument of the feminist is that it will make better men. As I see it, it will make looser women. Here comes a feminist, who advocates woman choosing the father of her child. What piffle! In a single stroke she would break down the barriers that have protected the legitimacy of our children for centuries. .... If the ideas that these faddists continue to create grow and spread, the only thing I can see ahead is loose morals, and loose marriage laws. It is time to call a halt."

That Seattle Election.

The suffragists are having a hard time trying to explain how it came to pass that "Hi" Gill, whose recall as mayor of Seattle in 1911 was hailed as a great moral victory, and attributed to women's votes, was again elected on the third of March by a majority of about 14,000.

The Woman's Journal's explanation is that "the more desirable nominees all failed to get their names upon the official ballot,' that both of the candidates nominated were "unacceptable" to good citizens, but that they voted for Gill because the other man was worse. But that is not an explanation that really explains. How did it happen that both of the candidates who emerged from the primaries were "undesirable?" If the women who gloried in the recall of Gill had concentrated their efforts upon the nomination of a good man, could they not have got his name upon the ballot if they could not, their influence for municipal uplift has been greatly exaggerated. And if they could, but did not, what shall be said of them?

The New Paganism.

In a recent sermon, quoted in The Literary Digest of January 31, Cardinal O'Connell, of Boston, made the following earnest protest against the "new paganism" exemplified in recent tendencies:

"We need be neither prude nor Puritan to see and to realize that something is passing in the heart and mind of the women today which is leaving them hard and unwomanly, and that year by year this transformation goes on until, if it continues, there will be neither home nor family, nor normal womanly nature left.

"If this is the new woman, then God spare us from any further development of an abnormal creature. Certainly this is not the Catholic woman who is true to her faith and is not easily influenced by these modern fads of a new paganism. She has her standards and she stands by them unchanged."

Miss Alyse Gregory, one of the State organizers of the Connecticut Woman Suffrage Association, is reported by the Waterbury American of January 13, as saying, in a lecture at the headquarters of the Equal Franchise League, "that all women should be self-supporting though married, and that the State should recompense women for the service they do in bearing it citizens." This suggests the rapid spread of radical ideas of the things that "lie beyond suffrage."

Instructions For Women Voters.

Mr. Charles H Mitchell, attorney of the Chicago Board of Election Commissioners, has undertaken to answer the questions of new women voters. Here are some questions and answers from the Chicago Examiner of February 11:

"Question—How can I familiarize myself with matters of city government? I don't seem to get much out of books.

"Answer—The practical end is probably best for you. Attend meetings of City Council and listen attentively to the proceedings. You can also learn thereby the fidelity or lack of fidelity of the individual aldermen.

"Question—Does an alderman have the right to distribute city jobs?

"Answer—Each of the thirty-five wards in Chicago is a separate barony. Each of the two aldermen in each ward has the right—an unwritten law—to distribute one-half of the patronage of the ward.

"Question—Does an alderman have the right to get a man out of jail?

"Answer—Have a heart, dear lady. Strange things and weird are sometimes accomplished by aldermen. A little influence here, a little pressure there, and the results are surprising. There are some things you must learn by experience.

"Evidently; but does it promise to be an elevating experience?"

Still "In the Cesspool."

So long ago as the 25th of last October, The Boston Traveler, under the title, "In the Cesspool," said editorially:

"In the name of equal suffrage, the Pankhursttites in New York city attempted to sell copies of a publication that had been suppressed in London and that, appropriately enough, was published thereafter in Paris.

"In the name of equal suffrage young girls were detailed to sell that publication and girls and boys were among those who were permitted to buy and read freely until the New York police commissioner intervened and asked for warrants.

"In the name of equal suffrage, conditions have become such, as far as literature is concerned, that strict censorship must be established in every well-regulated home.

"Isn't it about time to take the suffrage cause out of the cesspool and place it where it belongs?"

This was a sensible appeal. But the influences which The Traveler deplored are even more rampant than they were six months ago, and the suffrage cause remains where The Traveler placed it.

"The Remonstrance."
Boston, April, 1914.

Such quotations as the above from reliable sources, are of great interest, most especially that from the suffragist, Judge Lindsey. He sees in feminism just that which is seen in it by all who study intelligently and impartially, its tenets and preachments as voiced by its leaders.

Of the Seattle election, there seem to be a variety of explanations, each more absurd than the other, though the one from the Woman's Journal is sufficiently so, to prove that there is no reasonable explanation.

A prominent N. Y. suffragist tells us—quite seriously—"that the women were instrumental in Gill's election, because, from experience with children, they felt that having been once punished, he was likely to be better than those men who never had been in disgrace." What a delicious and logical estimate of child nature.

The child who had done no wrong, therefore not been chastised, is not as reliable as the one who had required punishment!

Cardinal O'Connell voices the almost universal opinion of priests, prelates and laymen in that church, which even those who do not accept its theology, must admit—unless peculiarly prejudiced—always stands for home and family and for woman filling her appointed place in the world's work.

Miss Alyse Gregory excites in the properly womanly heart and mind, unspeakable scorn and disgust, and it is only an evidence of what the feminist can be that one woman can suggest—without being disowned by those of the same propaganda—to commercialize motherhood!

The Chicago women quoted evidently are anxious to maintain the customs and traditions of men predecessors, in any office to which they may be elected.

Of the unspeakable nastiness of the Pankhurst book, and the horror of its falling into the hands of the young, too much could not be said, but one of the most appaling features of the propaganda of the suffragists is the instilling into the minds of young people those things from which they were formerly protected.

They were taught to be good, to be pure and to be honorable, for the sake of goodness, honesty and purity, without having those things which they were to avoid thrust upon them.

Those young people whom the feminist suffragists declare were not taught enough to protect them and make them pure and honorable, are of the generations to which we and our parents belong.

Do we wish to accept the implied charges, or to pass them back to our parents?

R. A. LAWRENCE.

"ANTIS" PREFER TO LET MEN SETTLE WAR QUESTION

This resolution was unanimously adopted at a meeting of the board of directors of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage held on Wednesday at the headquarters in New York:

"Resolved, That we believe in leaving the decision of the policy of peace or war to the men of the nation, but in case of war we stand ready to render to the nation such service as American women have always rendered in like emergencies."

Among those present at the meeting was Mrs. Sherman B. Joost, president of the Plainfield branch of the association. Efforts were made to get the association to join in a peace movement, and the above resolution was the result.

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

CHAPTER X.

The Green Eyed Monster.

"WHILE Thee I Seek, Protecting Power," was the first hymn on this particular Sunday morning, and it usually held Patty's rather vagrant attention to the end, though it failed to do so today. The Baxters occupied one of the wing pews, a position always to be envied, as one could see the singers without turning around and also observe everybody in the congregation—their entrance, garments, behavior and especially their bonnets—without being in the least indiscreet or seeming to have a roving eye.

Lawyer Wilson's pew was the second in front of the Baxters in the same wing, and Patty, seated decorously but unwillingly beside her father, was impatiently awaiting the entrance of the family, knowing that Mark would be with them if he had returned from Boston. Timothy Grant, the parish clerk, had the pew in between and afforded a most edifying spectacle to the community, as there were seven young Grants of a churchgoing age, and the ladies of the congregation were always counting them, reckoning how many more were in their cradles at home and trying to guess from Mrs. Grant's lively or chastened countenance whether any new ones had been born since the Sunday before.

Patty settled herself comfortably and put her foot on the wooden "cricket," raising her buff calico a little on the congregation side, just enough to show an inch or two of petticoat. The petticoat was as modestly long as the frock itself, and disclosing a bit of it was nothing more heinous than a casual exhibition of good needlework. Deacon Baxter furnished only the unbleached muslin for his daughters' undergarments, but twelve little tucks laboriously done by hand, elaborate inch wide edging, crocheted from white spool cotton and days of bleaching on the grass in the sun will make a petticoat that can be shown in church with some justifiable pride.

The Wilsons came up the aisle a moment later than was their usual habit, just after the parson had ascended the pulpit. Mrs. Wilson always entered the pew first and sat in the far end. Patty had looked at her admiringly and with a certain feeling of proprietorship for several Sundays. There was obviously no such desirable mother-in-law in the meeting house. Her changeable silk dress was the latest mode, her shawl of black llama lace expressed wealth in every delicate mesh, and her bonnet had a distinction that could only have emanated from Portland or Boston. Ellen Wilson usually came next, with as much of a smile to Patty in passing as she dared venture in the deacon's presence, and after her sidled in her younger sister, Selina, commonly called "Silly," and with considerable reason.

Mark had come home! Patty dared not look up, but she felt his approach behind the others, although her eyes sought the floor and her cheeks hung out signals of abashed but certain welcome. She heard the family settle in their seats somewhat hastily, the click of the pew door and the sound of Lawyer Wilson's cane as he stood it in the corner; then the parson rose to pray, and Patty closed her eyes with the rest of the congregation.

Opening them when Elder Boone rose to announce the hymn, they fell—amazed, resentful, uncomprehending—on the spectacle of Mark Wilson finding the place in the book for a strange young woman who sat beside him. Mark himself had on a new suit and wore a seal ring that Patty had never observed before, while the dress, pelisse and hat of the unknown were of a nature that no girl in Patty's position, and particularly of Patty's disposition, could have regarded without a desire to tear them from her person and stamp them underfoot or, better still, flaunt them herself and show the world how they should be worn!

Mark found the place in the hymn book for the creature, shared it with her, and once, when the Grant twins wriggled and Patty secured a better view, once, Mark shifted his hand on the page so that his thumb touched that of his pretty neighbor, who did not remove hers as if she found the proximity either unpleasant or improper. Patty compared her own miserable attire with that of the hated rival in front, and also contrasted Lawyer Wilson's appearance with that of her father; the former, well dressed in the style of a gentleman of the time, in broadcloth, with fine linen, and a tall silk hat carefully placed on the floor of the pew, while Deacon Baxter wore homespun made of wool from his own sheep, spun and woven, dyed and finished, at the fulling mill in the village, and carried a battered felt hat that had been a matter of ridicule these dozen years. The deacon would be buried in two coats, Jed Morrill always said, for he owned just that number and would be too mean to leave either of 'em behind him.

The sermon was fifty minutes long, time enough for a deal of thinking. Many a housewife, not wholly orthodox, cut and made over all her children's clothes, in imagination; planned the putting up of her fruit, the making of her preserves and pickles, and arranged her meals for the next week, during the progress of those sermons. Patty watched the parson turn leaf after leaf until the final one was reached. Then came the last hymn, when the people stretched their aching limbs and rising, turned their back on the minister and faced the choir. Patty looked at Waitstill and wished that she could put her throbbing head on her sisterly shoulder and cry—mostly with rage. The benediction was said, and with the final "Amen" the pews were opened and the worshipers crowded into the narrow aisles and moved toward the doors.

Patty's plans were all made. She was out of her pew before the Wilsons could possibly leave theirs and in her progress down the aisle securely annexed her old admirer, old Dr. Perry, as well as his son, Philip. Passing the singing seats, she picked up the humble Cephas and carried him along in her wake, chatting and talking with her little party while her father was at the horse sheds making ready to go home between services, as was his habit, a cold bite being always set out on the kitchen table according to his orders. By means of these clever maneuvers Patty made herself the focus of attention when the Wilson party came out on the steps and vouchsafed Mark only a nonchalant nod, airily flinging a little greeting with the nod, just a "How d'ye do, Mark? Did you have a good time in Boston?"

Patty and Waitstill, with some of the girls who had come long distances, ate their luncheon in a shady place under the trees behind the meeting house, for there was an afternoon service to come, a service with another long sermon. They separated after the modest meal to walk about the common or stray along the road to the academy, where there was a fine view.

Two or three times during the summer the sisters always went quietly and alone to the Baxter burying lot, where three grass grown graves lay beside one another, unmarked save by narrow wooden slabs, so short that the initials painted on them were almost hidden by the tufts of clover. The girls had brought roots of pansies and sweet alyssum and with a knife made holes in the earth and planted them here and there to make the spot a trifle less forbidding. They did not speak to each other during this sacred little ceremony. Their hearts were too full when they remembered afresh the absence of headstones, the lack of care, in the place where the three women lay who had ministered to their father, borne him children and patiently endured his arbitrary and loveless rule. Even Cleve Flanders' grave—the Edgewood shoemaker, who lay next—even his resting place was marked and, with a touch of some one's imagination, marked by the old man's own lapstone, twenty-five pounds in weight, a monument of his workaday life.

Waitstill rose from her feet, brushing the earth from her hands, and Patty did the same. The churchyard was quiet, and they were alone with the dead, mourned and unmourned, loved and unloved.

"I planted one or two pansies on the first one's grave," said Waitstill soberly. "I don't know why we've never done it before. There are no children to take notice of and remember her; it's the least we can do, and, after all, she belongs to the family."

"There is no family and there never was," suddenly cried Patty. "Oh, Waity, Waity, we are so alone, you and I! We've only each other in all the world, and I'm not the least bit of help to you as you are to me! I'm a silly, vain, conceited, ill behaved thing, but I will be better, I will! You won't ever give me up, will you, Waity, even if I'm not like you? I haven't been good lately!"

"Hush, Patty, hush!" And Waitstill came nearer to her sister with a motherly touch of her hand. "I'll not have you say such things; you are the helpfullest and the lovingest girl that ever was, and the cleverest, too, and the liveliest and the best company keeper."

"No one thinks so but you," Patty responded dolefully, although she wiped her eyes as if a bit consoled.

It is safe to say that Patty would never have given Mark Wilson a second thought had he not taken her to drive on that afternoon in early May. The drive, too, would have quickly fled from her somewhat fickle memory had it not been for the kiss. The kiss was indeed a decisive factor in the situation and had shed a rosy, if somewhat fictitious light of romance over the past three weeks. Perhaps even the kiss, had it never been repeated, might have lapsed into its true perspective in due course of time had it not been for the sudden appearance of the stranger in the Wilson pew. The moment that Patty's gaze fell upon that fashionably dressed, instantaneously disliked girl, Marquis Wilson's stock rose twenty points in the market. She ceased in a jiffy to weigh and consider and criticise the young man, but regarded him with wholly new eyes. His figure was better than she had realized, his smile more interesting, his manners more attractive, his eyelashes longer; in a word, he had suddenly grown desirable. A month ago she could have observed with idle and alien curiosity the spectacle of his thumb drawing nearer to another (feminine) thumb on the page of the "Watts and Select Hymn Book." Now, at the morning service, she had wished nothing so much as to put Mark's thumb back into his pocket where it belonged and slap the girl's thumb smartly and soundly as it deserved.

The ignorant cause of Patty's distress was a certain Annabel Franklin, the daughter of a cousin of Mrs. Wilson's. Mark had stayed at the Franklin house during his three weeks' visit in Boston, where he had gone on business for his father. The young people had naturally seen much of each other and Mark's inflammable fancy had been so kindled by Annabel's doll-like charms that he had persuaded her to accompany him to his home and get a taste of country life in Maine. Such is man, such is human nature and such is life, that Mark had no sooner got the whilom object of his affections under his own roof than she began to pall.

Annabel was twenty-three, and, to tell the truth, she had palled before more than once. She was so amiable, so well finished—with her smooth flaxen hair, her neat nose, her buttonhole of a mouth and her trig shape—that she appealed to the opposite sex quite generally and irresistibly as a worthy helpmate. The only trouble was that she began to bore her suitors somewhat too early in the game, and they never got far enough to propose marriage. Flaws in her apparent perfection appeared from day to day and chilled the growth of the various young loves that had budded so auspiciously. She always agreed with everybody and everything in sight, even to the point of changing her mind on the instant if circumstances seemed to make it advisable. Her instinctive point of view, when she went so far as to hold one, was somewhat cut and dried—in a word, priggish. Her father had an ample fortune, and some one would inevitably turn up who would regard Annabel as an altogether worthy and desirable spouse. That was what she had seemed to Mark Wilson for a full week before he left the Franklin house in Boston, but there were moments now when he regretted, fugitively, that he had ever removed her from her proper sphere. She did not seem to fit into the conditions of life in Edgewood, and it may even be that her most glaring fault had been to describe Patty Baxter's hair at this very Sunday dinner as "carroty," her dress altogether "dreadful" and her style of beauty "unladylike." Ellen Wilson's feelings were somewhat injured by these criticisms of her intimate friend, and, in discussing the matter privately with her brother, he was inclined to agree with her.

And thus, so little do we know of the prankishness of the blind god, thus was Annabel Franklin working for her rival's best interests, and, instead of reviling her in secret and treating her with disdain in public, Patty should have welcomed her cordially to all the delights of Riverboro society.

MARTINE REPLIES WITH A QUESTION

Queried Concerning Appointment of Postmaster He Eludes the Point.

HONORED BY CARRIERS

United States Senator Guest at Banquet in Elizabeth Saturday Night—200 Diners Pay Respects to Those Who Fostered Pension Bill.

Taking advantage of an opportunity to greet United States Senator James E. Martine when he paid one of his "flying visits" to Plainfield, yesterday afternoon, a delegation of Queen City Democrats met him and indulged in an old-fashioned handshaking bee at the North Avenue station, as he was leaving for Washington. One of the more inquisitive representatives who was on hand to pay respects to "Farmer Jim" gathered together enough courage to attempt to ascertain the possibilities of Plainfield securing a Democratic postmaster in the near future, but got little satisfaction from the political lion's reply. Martine glanced in the direction of twenty-five linemen who had just alighted from a train and answered with a question:

"Has the Western Union started to put its wires underground or is it still stringing them on poles?"

Many and varied were the theories advanced concerning the object of his opportune query but the most plausible one was the fact that he desired to elude the question of postmaster and took this opportunity of so doing. Many of his other admirers had come to greet him with the sole object of garnering some inside information about the postoffice job, but when they saw that he was prepared for all emergencies they abandoned the subject and took over the discussion of crops and what might be expected to sprout from the bushels of seeds sent out to Democrats in this part of the country by the New Jersey Senator.

Martine came to Plainfield from Elizabeth, Saturday night, where he had been dined by the letter carriers of that place. In appreciation of their interest in the Hamill letter carriers' pension bill Martine and Congressman William E. Tuttle, Jr., of Westfield, were given a complimentary dinner by Branch No. 67, National Association of Letter Carriers, in the Elks' clubhouse. Each of the honored guests was warmly greeted by the assemblage of 200 letter carriers as he arose to deliver a speech and both were lauded by the other speakers of the evening.

The toastmaster was Postmaster Patrick J. Ryan, of Elizabeth, and the speakers, besides the honored guests, included Congressman James A. Hamill, Congressman John J. Fitzgerald, of New York; Mayor Mravlag, of Elizabeth, and President of City Council Dennis F. Collins, of Elizabeth.

WELL KNOWN PEOPLE CIRCUS BOX HOLDERS

Partial List of Plainfielders Who Will Attend Benefit For Open Air School.

One week from today the benefit circus to be given to raise funds for the work of the open air school, conducted by the Anti-Tuberculosis League, will be held on the show lot at Grant avenue and Front street. The committee in charge is making many arrangements for original local acts, and the Frank A. Robbins circus, which will supply the professional acts, the tents, and all of the circus paraphernalia, will be greatly augmented by local performers, which list is being added to daily.

Some idea of the interest taken can be gained from the list of well known people who will be box-holders. There are twenty-four boxes for both matinee and evening performance, and a number of box parties have been formed, so that the full allotment is about taken, less than a dozen remaining. Several people have taken two boxes, holding four each, for their guests. Among those who already have boxes for the matinee are Mrs. George W. DuBois, Edward VanBuren, Mrs. B. VanD. Hedges, Mrs. William S. Tyler, Mrs. George M. Holstein, Dr. and Mrs. Edward S. Krans, Mrs. David H. Rowland, Mrs. George P. Mellick, Mrs. C. W. McCutchen, Mrs. Frederick O. Ball, Mrs. R. A. Claybrook, Mrs. R. W. Everest, Mrs. Frank Warren and Mrs. Frederick W. Wallace and Mrs. William A. Clark. At the evening performance the box holders will include William Palmer Smith, Mrs. Marion S. Ackerman, George P. Mellick, William L. Saunders, Seymour Perkins, Mrs. Morris Benton, Mrs. H. C. Irons, Herbert Jackson, C. B. Tyler, Mrs. Chapman Fiske, F. W. Iredell, Mrs. C. Wesley Holland and R. F. R. Huntsman.

A local feature about which little has been said is the fact that all of the people about the show, such as ticket takers, collectors, side show barkers, peanut and red lemonade venders, ushers and others will be Plainfielders. This list will include, among others George M. Holstein, James Boyd Potter, Arthur E. Force, Herbert E. Parker, Frederick E. Mygatt, John J. Carty, Dr. Edward S. Krans, Allen E. Beals, Harry W. Marshall, Howard Lapsley, William S. Tyler, Owen Fleming, City Judge William G. DeMeza, William Jeffery, president of the Board of Trade; Samuel Rothberg, Edward Hardingham, David B. Doyle, Cornelius B. Tyler, Lewis G. Timpson, Dr. B. Van D. Hedges, L. E. Waring, Lewis M. Booth, Charles H. Lyman and Leslie R. Fort.

The tickets are being sold rapidly by the women on the school committee, and reserved seats can be secured at the Daily Press office. There has been a large demand for these, but there are still many desirable ones left.

Weather is one thing which will not interfere with the success of the show. The Robbins circus started on its tour for this season on Saturday, with a show at Bordentown, after being at the State Fair grounds at Trenton all winter. Housing the show is a complete spread of new canvas, which makes the tent as dry as the interior of any theatre, no matter how hard it may rain. Some people have delayed about reserving seats, and it is thought that fear of bad weather conditions may have caused this. As the committee does not wish to disappoint anyone in securing good seating accommodations, it has been requested that attention be called to the fact that both matinee and evening performances will be given, rain or shine, under pleasant and dry conditions.

The Board of Education has decided to have only a half day in the schools on the day of the show, and this has helped greatly in the sale of tickets. It is probable that the matinee performance will be delayed until 2:30 or 2:45, but if a change in time is made this will be announced later.

MRS. A. R. FISK GETS A DIVORCE

NO DEFENSE TO SUIT

Couple United December 14, 1912, in Boston, Following Strong Opposition on the Part of Groom's Parents—Wants $300,000.

Mrs. Barbara Fisk, of Brookline, Mass., has secured a divorce from Augustus R. Fisk, son of former Mayor and Mrs. Charles J. Fisk, the decree being granted within the last few days. The fact that Mrs. Fisk was suing for a divorce was known among the friends of the couple. It is said that Mr. Fisk made no defense.

Mr. Fisk and Mrs. Barbara Knignt Cobb were married in Jersey City, on December 21, 1912, by the Rev. Wilbert Westcott, pastor of the Hedding M. E. church, the religious ceremony following a civil marriage performed in Boston on December 14, 1912. The couple experienced considerable difficulty in securing someone to perform the ceremony at Boston, owing to opposition on the part of Mr. Fisk's parents, and the fact that both were divorced people. It is known that every effort was made to persuade the couple not to marry, but it is said that Mrs. Fisk was determined that the ceremony should take place.

After the marriage the couple went to Woodstock, Vt., where they lived on a farm for some time. Mr. Fisk was engaged at the time in raising poultry and farming generally. Later the couple separated and Mr. Fisk located at Wilburtha, the old homestead of the Fisk family near Trenton, and he has since been interested in poultry raising on a large scale. His father has had general supervision of the farm.

Mrs. Fisk filed her suit for divorce on March 2, 1914, in which she asked for $300,000 alimony. Mrs. Fisk is said to be making her home at Brookline, Mass., near which place she resided prior to her marriage to Mr. Fisk.

A. N. HAZELTINE WEDS MISS INEZ M. TOLLES

Miss Inez Marie Tolles, daughter of former Councilman and Mrs. Ralph I. Tolles, of Westervelt avenue, and Arthur N. Hazeltine, formerly of this city, but more recently of Westfield, were married Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Rev. Dr. C. E. Herring, of the First Presbyterian church, performing the ceremony.

Mrs. Franklin J. Chapin, of Greenwich, Conn., sister of the bride, was matron of honor, and Frank Hazeltine, brother of the groom, the best man. The wedding march was played by Miss Mabel Maxson. The bride was gowned in white charmeuse, trimmed with lace and carried lilies of the valley and roses. The matron of honor wore a gown of white crepe meteor, and carried Killarney roses.

A reception followed during which supper was served and congratulations were offered. The couple is now enjoying a trip in the South. They will reside at 1135 Park Terrace, in the Netherwood section. Mr. Hazeltine holds a position with the Columbia Knickerbocker Trust Company, of New York.

TWO SCARLET FEVER CASES.

Edward Moraller, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Moraller, of Mountain avenue, and Nathan Boylan, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. N. Boylan, of Regent street, were stricken with scarlet fever early yesterday morning, at their respective homes. Moraller attends the Somerset School and Boylan holds a position in New York. The former is being attended by Dr. Norman H. Probasco.

STILL ALARM OF FIRE.

The North Plainfield fire department was called out yesterday morning at 1:15 by a still alarm. The cause being electric wires, off which the insulation had burned, rubbing against the limbs of a tree on Summit avenue. A passer-by mistook the location of the sparks, thinking them to come from the cornice of an attic in one of the houses.

Mrs. Henry L. Hall, of Woodland avenue, is a patient at Muhlenberg Hospital, recovering from an operation for appendicitis.

C. A. KING WEDS HELEN RYMAN

REV. FARR OFFICIATES

Large and Fashionable Gathering Witness the Marriage and Attend Reception—Bride and Bridegroom Well Known—Will Live Here.

Miss Helen Louise Ryman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leslie Ryman, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa., and Charles Arthur King, son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. King, of 911 Watchung avenue, this city, were married at 7:30 o'clock Saturday evening in the First Presbyterian church of Wilkes-Barre, in the presence of a large number of guests, including relatives and friends from that city, Plainfield, New York and more distant points. Rev. Dr. Farr, pastor of the church, performed the ceremony.

Miss Ryman was gowned in white satin, trimmed with old point lace, wore a white tulle veil and orange blossoms around the face forming a cap, which was caught to the skirt by a bunch of orange blossoms. She carried a shower bouquet of white sweet peas. She was attended by the groom's sister, Miss Lillian M. King, who wore a gown of light pink taffeta, made according to the latest syle, and trimmed with shadow lace. She carried a bouquet of pink roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Ruth Messinger, of Wellesley, Mass.; Miss Anna MacKenzie, of Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; the Misses Grace Douglas, Louise Matlack, Sarah Atherton and Miner, of Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Their gowns were of taffeta of apricot yellow, the same style as the maid of honor's and they carried yellow sunrise roses.

C. Ames Brooks, of this city, was the best man and the ushers were Edward Ryman, of Wilkes-Barre, brother of the bride, and Dudley H. Barrows, A. Mellick Tweedy, Henry W. Brower, Thomas Ashwell and Henry P. Eaton, all of Plainfield.

Following the ceremony a large reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, the guests including many persons prominent in society in Wilkes-Barre as well as from a distance. Later in the evening the couple left on a journey, and upon their return will reside in this city. The bride received a wealth of wedding gifts from relatives and friends. A number of guests from this city, including Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. King, parents of the groom, attended the wedding and reception.

The bride's family is one of the oldest in the well-known Wyoming Valley section of Pennsylvania, being numbered among the early settlers, and she is well-known in Wilkes-Barre and in this city, where she has visited many times. She is a niece of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gaston, who formerly resided on East Seventh street, this city. She is talented and accomplished.

Mr. King is also well-known here. He graduated from Leal's School and later from Columbia University, as a mechanical engineer and now holds a responsible position with Henry C. Meyer, consulting engineer, of 101 Park avenue, New York city. He is a member of the Plainfield Country Club, and has been active as a tennis player, also being a member of the tennis committee of the club.

C. E. M'CONNELL WEDS MISS WALDO

Miss Anne Randolph Waldo, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Leonard Waldo, and Charles E. McConnell, of New York, were married Saturday evening at 6 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 640 West Eighth street. Rev. William D. Beach, of Middletown, Conn., a brother-in-law of the bride, officiated.

The bride's sister, Miss Ruth M. Waldo, was maid of honor, and Miss Dorothy Waldo, another sister, and Miss Dorothy Burke, of Ravine road, were the bridesmaids. Henry Sears Hoyt, of New York, was the best man. Owing to the fact that there is mourning in both families the list of invitations was restricted to the immediate family circle and a few friends.

ORDERED OUT OF WAR TERRITORY

MAILS ARE CUT OFF

All Means of Communication With United States Destroyed—Received Orders to Quit Post Saturday—Now in El Paso, Texas.

Word was received yesterday by S. W. Dunning, of Westervelt avenue, of the safety of his sister, Miss Mary Dunning, who has been in Mexico during the uprisings of the past two years. She sent a telegram from El Paso, Texas, where she arrived yesterday under the direction of the American Foreign Mission Board. Her message brought much relief to relatives and friends who feared for her safety as no one had heard from her for some time. No letters could be forwarded from Mexico and she was entirely shut off from communication with this city.

Miss Dunning has a vacation one year in every seven, and she came to Plainfield in the early part of 1911, when her year was up the situation in the South was so bad that the board would not let her go back and she remained six months longer, doing some work in this vicinity. In the summer of 1912, thinking the trouble would soon end, she would wait no longer and returned to her mission in Chicahauha and remained for a short time. Since then she has been in Paraal, which is farther north and which was, until lately, out of the disturbed territory. From time to time her letters would find their way to a United States postoffice and arrive here, but many were lost on the way. She did not leave her post Saturday until ordered to by the Foreign Mission Board.

While in this city on her last vacation, Miss Dunning spoke before several of the local missionary societies and also went to other places to speak. She has made no definite plans as yet and it is not known whether she will come here or carry on her work in the western part of this country. She is also the sister of F. O. Dunning, of Mountain avenue.

SUDDEN DEATH OF CLARENCE T. BROKAW

Well Known Young Man Passes Away After a Short Illness.

Clarence T. Brokaw, aged 30 years, eldest son of the late William H. Brokaw died suddenly at his home on West Front street, between 12 and 1 o'clock this morning, from complications which became acute about 9 o'clock last night, when he suffered an alarming attack of his trouble. Mr. Brokaw had been in poor health for the past two months, during which time he was at Muhlenberg Hospital for awhile under treatment. He appeared to recover from that trouble. About a week ago he suffered a relapse and failed rapidly. His death will be a shock to his many friends.

Mr. Brokaw was born in Plainfield and always lived here. His father, William H. Brokaw, was a prominent builder and contractor here for many years. The latter died on November 4, after a short illness. Mr. Brokaw was employed as a salesman for Morris C. VanArsdale, the shoe dealer, for more than eighteen years. About a year ago he associated himself with Ernest T. Hand and was engaged in the shoe business at Westfield. He was a member of Plainfield Lodge, No. 885, B. P. O. E., and Court Union, Independent Order Foresters. He possessed a genial disposition and had a faculty for making friends.

Beside a mother, Mr. Brokaw is survived by his brother, Morris Brokaw, and a grandmother, who live at the Brokaw home. The funeral will be held at the late home Wednesday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. Rev. J. Y. Broek, of Trinity Reformed church, will officiate, and there will also be an Elks service.

MISSIONARY SERVICE.

A missionary service will be held at St. Peter's Lutheran church on Wednesday evening of this week. Rev. George Drouch, general secretary of the Board of Foreign Missions of the General Council of the Lutheran Church of America, will make the address of the evening. Special music will be a feature of the meeting.

Harry Mixner, formerly of this city, but now of Stamford, Conn., was the guest of relatives and friends in town over the week-end.

HUERTA'S DEMANDS WILL PROBABLY MAKE MEDIATION UNAVAILING

Said to Want Troops Withdrawn; No Negotiations With Carranza and Recognition of His Government by United States.

General Huerta has unofficially accepted the mediation offer of Argentina, Brazil and Chili, but he has imposed impossible conditions.

Rear Admiral Fletcher has placed Vera Cruz under martial law to restore order.

Consul General Hanna at Monterey, who had been imprisoned by Mexicans after they had trampled and burned the American flag, reports that he has been released by constitutionalists.

An epidemic of contagious diseases in Vera Cruz causes alarm there. American women, under Mrs. Nelson O'Shaughnessy, organize Red Cross corps.

Washington, April 27.—Three demands will be made by General Huerta in his acceptance of mediation, it became known today through high officials of the government.

The Mexican will demand: Withdrawal of American troops from Mexican soil; that there be no negotiations between the U. S. and General Villa, Carranza or other revolutionary leaders; and recognition of his government by the United States.

To none of these the United States can agree, and will not agree, it was said. It was the refusal of the United States to acknowledge Huerta and return the salute which he finally agreed to make in reparation for his insult to the flag, which caused the landing of marines at Vera Cruz.

The general impression among Senators and at the capital today was that the proposed solution of troubles between United States and Mexico would not be successful. "Of course there is nothing for us to do but accept the proposal of the South American republics when they offer their services," said an influential member of the Foreign Relations Committee today. "It does not seem probable that anything except delay will come of the negotiations, however, unless Huerta decides that he would rather be peacefully eliminated from control in Mexico City than to be forcibly ejected by the United States or possibly by the Constitutionalists." Huerta's defiant attitude in the past has not given much hope for the latter solution.

Washington, April 27.—Peace or rather the phantom of peace appeared in the Mexican situation today, when the Spanish envoy, Ambassador Riano, prepared to lay before the envoys of Argentina Brazil and Chile, the unofficial acceptance by General Huerta of the good offices of the three South American governments to bring about an understanding with the United States and avert war. Frankly, diplomats held little hope that the negotiations would result in a successful issue. In the meantime, the military establishment is continuing preparations to cope with any emergency.

While in some quarters the apparent willingness of Huerta to take up the question of a settlement with this country is regarded as a hopeful sign in others it is recognized as merely a subterfuge on the part of the wily dictator to obtain more time in which to prepare to resist invasion. The manner in which Huerta maneuvred and outmaneuvred the State Department in the early stages of the controversy is recalled. He was brought to book only when President Wilson intervened and pinned Huerta down to a "Yes or no" reply to the American demands.

The Brazilian ambassador the dean of the volunteer mediators, declined to discuss the turn affairs had taken. Neither would the Chilean or the Argentina ministers make any comment, while Ambassador Riano was equally reticent. It was not even known whether Huerta had accepted the proffer unconditionally or had again imposed stipulations that probably would render the entire effort nil.

While welcoming anything that might avert war, the administration today made it clear that nothing short of complete compliance with this country's original demands for reparation for the insult to the flag would be accepted. Coupled to this is the demand that Huerta be entirely eliminated from the scheme of things in Mexico.

Another phase of the existing situation, that diplomats believe stands completely in the way of negotiations, that any such negotiations must come through "some responsible person" representing all elements of the warring factions in Mexica. This, it is pointed out, is seeking the impossible. The Constitutionalists, flushed with a long series of victories and foreseeing an almost immediate crowning of their efforts with victory, cannot be expected to yield at this late day all they have struggled for. Especially is this the case, it is held, when the operations of the United States against the dictator aids them in his overthrow.

When Brig.-General Frederick Funston landed today at Vera Cruz with his 4,000 troops, he at once took command of the American forces ashore. He will have, with the marines and bluejackets, a force of approximately 10,000 men. This will probably be reduced within the next few days to 7,000 men by reason of the withdrawal of the bluejackets and the detachments of marines belonging to the warships. The expeditionary force of marines, 3,000 in number, have been ordered by Secretary Daniels to place themselves under General Funston's command.

This force, in the opinion of Rear Admiral Badger, who communicated with the Navy Department today, will be more than sufficient to care for anything that may arise. Under Rear Admiral Fletcher's vigorous handling of the situation, the American forces now are securely entrenched and have taken up strategic positions so strong as to preclude much possibility of attack, even by a fool hardy commander, which General Maas is known to be. The State Department betrayed much uneasiness over the condition of Americans in the Interior of Mexico, and urgent dispatches were sent during the morning to all Americans to leave for the nearest port at once. The fate of thirty or more Americans who were taken from a train at Carnacion and now are being held prisoners in Agua Calcentethe subject of a series of dispatches from the department through the British and French embassies in Mexico City. It is hoped to effect their release today. An ominous and grim silence is being maintained over the arrest and abuses heaped on Phillip C. Hanna, United States consul general at Monterey, and which was reported to the department late last night. The fact that a federal officer, apparently acting under orders, went out of his way to pull down and to trample on the American flag wherever it was found, is interpreted as a studied insult and not the unthinking action of an infuriated mob. What action will be taken was not intimated.

El Paso, Texas, April 27.—Because of the uneasiness of the citizens of El Paso over the presence of such a large number of Mexicans at their doors, the military authorities at Fort Bliss today issued orders for the immediate transfer of 5,000 Mexican refugees who escaped to the United States after the disastrous battle of Ojinaga. They will be taken to Fort Wingate, New Mexico, under guard of two troops of the Twelfth Cavalry from Fort Bliss. Since crossing the border the Mexicans have been kept prisoners under guard by the United States soldiers.

Fort Wingate is some distance removed from the border and in a sparsely settled community, where the prisoners can be watched more closely and where the possibility of an uprising in case of war with Mexico could better be guarded against.

New York, April 27.—Both society and working girls are taking a keen interest in the Mexican situation, as is evidenced by the fact that hundreds have applied to be sent south as trained nurses if war is declared.

Although it has been asserted woman is too frivolous nowadays with her startling fashions and her devotion to the tango, it seems she is made of the same stern stuff of women of former generations.

"We get about a hundred telephone calls every day from girls who want to enroll as trained nurses for service of Mexico," said an officer of the Red Cross Society today. "Of course, when we send any nurses

Miss Grace Parker, of Second street, entertained Miss Margaret Kennedy, of Metuchen, over the week-end.

Mrs. Lewis Schneider, of Front street, who has been ill for eight weeks, has improved to such an extent since her operation of two weeks ago that she has been able for the past couple of days to leave her bed at intervals during the day and get about her room.

A. E. Smith and family move this week from the Clarence M. Haight house, just off of New Market road, to the Jacob Fisher house on Front street, recently vacated by Miss Carrie Hill.

Postmaster and Mrs. Henry S. Garretson entertained Mr. Garretson's mother, Mrs. Gertrude Garretson, of Raritan Landing, over the week-end.

Contractor James C. Hansen, of Plainfield, has completed repainting the Augustus F. Samson residence on New Market road and the place presents a very attractive appearance.

Mrs. Everett Gordon, of New Market road, who has experienced quite a number of ups and downs since she was stricken with paralysis, is confined to her bed again.

Mr. and Mrs. Patrick Costello, of Whittier avenue, entertained their nieces, the Misses Gertrude and Katherine McCarthy, of New York city, over Sunday.

The dance of the O. Z. T. fraternity at the W. G. Holton Hall on Friday evening, was a complete success.

Peter Mohan, of New York city, is spending a few days with his cousin, Owen Mohan, of Dunellen avenue. Mr. Mohan is contemplating taking a trip of a business nature to Kansas City.

Borough Engineer Churchill and force were busily engaged on Saturday morning, in establishing the grades of Chestnut street and of Front street, west of Madison avenue.

Contractor John Renouf has commenced repainting the residence of Maurice L. Rarick on New Market road.

The carpenters are through with the new John P. Fenner house on Washington avenue and the place is now ready for the forces of Contractor Fred Kirchner, the painter.

Quite a number of the booklovers of the borough are still ignorant as to the reason why they were unable to gain access to the public library on Saturday afternoon and evening, when they went there to exchange their books. It seems that the janitress in starting an oil heater about an hour prior to the regular time of opening on Saturday afternoon, in order to remove the chill that had been engendered by the cold storm from the room, had failed to note that the oil container of the heater was insufficiently supplied. The scant supply of oil being quickly exhausted, the flames commenced feeding upon the wick and black smoke a-plenty greeted Librarian Miss Jacinthea Frescoln when she opened the door at 2:30 o'clock. The cries of Miss Frescoln brought George Rinehart, an employe of the liquor establishment of Joseph M. Maier, across the street, upon the scene and he immediately wended his way into the smoky interior and in short order came forth with the heater, which he dumped in the street. Although the windows were then thrown up and the place quickly cleared of smoke it was found to be impossible to open the library on account of the books, furniture, etc., being belittered with sooty particles. The incident will not, however, prevent the opening of the library this afternoon as usual.

Mr. and Mrs. William T. Piddington, Jr., of Jersey City, and J. T. Hefferman, of New York city, were week-end visitors with Mr. Piddington's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Piddington, at New Market. Mr. Hefferman, who works with Piddington in the Title Guarantee and Trust Company at New York city, is a prospective purchaser of Dunellen property.

The box social, which was held in the borough hall on Saturday evening for the benefit of the Boy Scout Cadets, was a success, twenty-seven dollars being made.

A fellow who gave his name and address as James Walsh, of Plainfield, looked too often upon the "cup" Saturday night and as a result he was arrested by Chief Marshal Mohan while laboring under the delusion that the keyhole of the front door of Abraham VanArsdale's residence on Front street, into which he was laboriously and unsteadily trying to insert his key, was the keyhole of his own door three miles away. After being locked up for the night he was arraigned before Recorder David S. Campbell in the borough hall yesterday morning and given a fine of $5.

The condition of Miss Mayola Smalley continues to improve.

Johnnie Doyle, the young son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Doyle, of Front street, had a narrow escape from serious injury when the delivery wagon of Harry Cashin, the North avenue grocer, was turned over by a sudden veering of the horse immediately upon his jumping in after having made a delivery into the home of Marshal Patrick Torpey, on Dunellen avenue, at 8 o'clock on Saturday night. Fortunately young Doyle was thrown clear of the falling wagon and only sustained a sprained wrist in endeavoring to check his fall upon ground rendered soft by the rain of the day. The horse, which had put in an unusually hard day, made no attempt to run away and the only damage done to the wagon was a broken shaft.

Mrs. John Runyon, of Newark, had her birthday fittingly celebrated at the home of her daughter, Mrs. William Craig, of Second street, on Friday afternoon. A number of local people and friends of Mrs. Runyon's from Newark were present. Mr. Runyon came to the borough on Saturday afternoon and accompanied his wife home last night.

The funeral services of Charles E. Mundy were held this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock at his late residence near the Port Reading Railroad, the Rev. Dr. T. E. Vassar, of the First Baptist church, of New Market, officiating. Interment was at Metuchen.

Watchung.

Rev. Dr. Edward G. Read preached an interesting sermon yesterday morning in the Wilson Memorial Union church. Dr. Read's text was "Go ye into all the world and preach the Gospel." In spite of the inclement weather there was a large attendance. Rev. Trevey, of Drew Seminary, preached at the evening service. His sermon was based on Dr. Moody's favorite motto, "God is Love."

Edward F. Bodin has been spending the week-end at the University of Pennsylvania, Philadelphia. Mr. Bodin was a student there last year.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry R. Kennedy, of "Hickory Knoll," are entertaining Mr. Kennedy's father from Bloomsbury.

Plains & Fanwood.

Rev. John Wade led the meeting of the Epworth League in the Methodist church last evening.

The game that was scheduled to be played between the Fanwood Field Club and the Garwood A. C., on the local grounds Saturday, was canceled by the Garwoods at the last minute under the impression that it was too rainy. Mount Pleasant will appear on the local grounds the coming Saturday and try to repeat their stunt of two weeks ago when they downed the club nine after a hard fight.

After working all day yesterday the Jersey Central linemen succeeded in res-establishing telegraphic communication with the local station.

Although recruiting officers were in the Plains and borough Saturday trying to round up some men for the regular army service, their force of argument had no affect on those they approached. Most of those who it was thought would be most likely to enlist were nowhere to be found as long as the army men were in sight and so they went away empty handed. There is at present six young boys from this place in Company K and about that number who are trying to enter.

One of the most successful social events of the season was held Saturday evening when the members of the Scotch Plains Parish House basketball second team gave their first annual dance in the Fanwood firehouse. The hall was filled with guests from Plainfield, Westfield and this place. The weather seemed to put no damper on those present who glided over the floor to the strains of the latest dances which were ably interpreted by Dushanek's orchestra of Westfield. The hall was beautifully decorated for the occasion with maroon and white, the colors that have carried the team through many hard contests and to the championship of this part of the State, predominating. The walls were gayly decked with college pennants while the many lights were festooned to represent spring flowers. Refreshments were served at 12 o'clock as the termination to a most pleasant evening. No small amount of the success of the affair is due to the Misses Edith and Elsa Palmer and to Maurice Hall, captain of the team.

There will be seventy telegraph wires strung along the New Jersey Central between Bound Brook and Jersey City by Thursday evening. To accomplish this linemen have been brought from all over the middle West. Beginning with this morning there are between 1,800 and 2,000 linemen at work, fifteen hundred coming from Cleveland alone. The wires on the westbound side of the tracks will be put underground, while those on the eastbound side will be stretched on re-enforced poles. Working trains are busy all along the line hauling poles and wire. The demand for telegraph poles since the damaging snowstorm of March has been so great that it is difficut to procure enough help. When work is finished on Thursday night many suburban towns will have telegraph communicate, for the first time since March 1 last.

GEORGE LA MONTE TO ADDRESS "FORUM"

State Banking Commissioner Will Speak Thursday Night on "Suffrage."

"Woman Suffrage" will be the topic of the next meeting of the "People's Forum," held at the Washington School, Thursday night, under the auspices of the Recreation Committee. The New Jersey Men's League for Woman Suffrage has been co-operating with the Recreation Committee in arranging the meeting at which George M. LaMonte will be the principal speaker.

Alexander Millar will preside and in his opening remarks the audience will be given the conclusions of an observer of wide experience who is familiar with every State in the Union where women vote. Mr. Millar was a close personal friend and business associate of the late E. H. Harriman, with whom he was associated as an officer of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific Railroads. Readers of the local papers are familiar with the thoughtful letters on various aspects of woman's struggle for the vote, which have appeared over his signature during the last year or more.

Mr. LaMonte has frequently addressed audiences throughout the State both in his capacity as commissioner of Banking and Insurance and as an advocate of "Votes for Women." His stand on this question marks him as one of the leaders of progress in the Democratic party.

Those familiar with Mr. LaMonte's work as advocate of woman suffrage consider him as one of the best informed men in this State in regard to those phases of the subject relating particularly to this community.

After the very successful joint meeting of the Forum with the Business Men's Association, which was addressed by Mr. Charles, the Recreation Committee has felt encouraged to hold meetings in connection with other civic organizations. It is hoped in this way to get directly at those subjects in which the community is most interested.

In holding a meeting during "Suffrage Week" the committee are dealing with one of the live topics of our time. A topic too on which there are many opinions and on which the people of this State will soon have to pass judgment at the polls. The public is invited.

A Promise and A Great Opportunity

A YEAR AGO last October, The Aeolian Company moved from its old home on Fifth Avenue to the immense new Aeolian Hall on West Forty-second Street, opposite Bryant Park. The tremendous growth of its business demanded an establishment far larger and more complete than anything hitherto required in the music industry.

Today, another Department of the Aeolian Company is moving. The Warehouse and Service Branches have greatly outgrown their old quarters on 36th and 32nd Streets, and are being combined in the immense new building recently acquired in Long Island City.

This present removal is as significant as was the other. Selling and Service are equally vital factors in modern business. With the enormously increased sales of the Aeolian Company have come increased responsibilities for service.

No instrument sold by The Aeolian Company is ever forgotten or neglected. This Company recognizes a permanent obligation to its every customer. Delivery, tuning, repairs, polishing, music-rolls, storage—every detail connected with the music-business, that makes for satisfaction, is its constant concern.

Just as the new Aeolian Hall gave vastly increased facilities for the display and sale of instruments, so these new and larger quarters in Long Island City promise an even better Service to Aeolian customers than that for which this Company is already famous.

Preliminary Notice of

Warehouse Removal Sale

Of even more direct and immediate interest than better Service, in connection with this removal, however, is the unparalleled Selling Event which it makes possible.

The Storage Divisions of these discontinued Warehouses have been emptied of their last instrument and music-roll and the whole immense stock brought to Aeolian Hall for disposal at Special Sale.

Because of the character, quality and quantity of these instruments and music-rolls, no such event in the music-business has ever been known.

In the brief summary of this great Sale, which follows, is outlined the most important buying opportunity ever presented to the public of this or any other city.

HUNDREDS OF GENUINE PIANOLAS

THOUSANDS OF MUSIC-ROLLS

(Including Metrostyle, Metro-Art and Universal—the Best of 88-Note Rolls)

Both instruments and music-rolls of the Aeolian Company's own manufacture and fully guaranteed. All to be sold at prices lower than ever before quoted.

Steinway Pianolas, Weber Pianolas, Steck Pianolas, Wheelock Pianolas, Stuyvesant Pianolas, Stroud Pianolas and Aeolian Player-pianos at from $195 upwards on monthly payments that anyone can afford.

Sale Will Begin Monday, May 4th

MEDIATION OFFER IS ACCEPTED BY HUERTA

Hostilities May Stop at Once.

ENVOYS IN SESSION.

Spanish Ambassador Makes Official Announcement.

BASIS FOR NEGOTIATIONS.

May Include Reparation For Tampico Insult, as Well as the Elimination of Huerta.

OUR BASIS FOR PEACE NEGOTIATIONS.

Washington, April 27.—The fundamental principles upon which the United States government is willing to enter upon negotiations for establishing peace in Mexico through the exercise of good offices by neutral nations were said unofficially to be these:

First.—The inclusion in the Mexican exchanges of the Constitutionalists and other factions that are opposing the Huerta government. Zapata and his following may or may not be regarded as among the parties to a settlement.

Second.—The establishment of constitutional government, which carries with it the elimination of Huerta from office in power.

Third.—Probably a settlement of the situation produced by the demand of the United States that "the authority of General Huerta" furnish suitable reparation for the indignity offered to the American flag.

Fourth.—An agreement between all parties, including the United States, for a cessation of hostilities pending the outcome of the effort at settlement through mediation.

Washington, April 27.—Huerta has consented to mediate the present crisis with the United States government. This statement was made at the Spanish embassy, which has been designated by Huerta to represent him at Washington.

Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador, says that his advices were not official, but that he had received word from Mexico City that Huerta had consented.

It is expected that the official communication from Huerta will be received at the Spanish embassy before morning, to be delivered to the diplomatic representatives in Washington of Argentine, Chile and Brazil.

This means that all hostilities between the United States and Huerta will cease, at least pending the mediation proceedings.

So far as was learned no word has yet been received from Carranza, but there is no doubt in Washington that he will be forced now through public sentiment in Mexico to become a party to the mediation.

If Huerta finally accepts the conditions imposed by President Wilson and consents to his own elimination and the establishment of a constitutional government he will be reversing himself on his previous defiant stand toward these demands. On several occasions he has flatly refused to consider any such proposals.

In the present emergency, however, Huerta will find himself under tremendous pressure, not only from the European powers, but from practically all of the Latin-American countries.

The acceptance of the offer of the South American republics to mediate does not mean that the entire Mexican problem has been solved. It does mean, however, that a crisis has been averted and that chances are very much in favor of some developments which will prevent a renewal of the hostilities into which the United States has been forced.

There is nothing in the mediation proposal as submitted to Huerta which indicates the conditions imposed by President Wilson. These conditions are that Huerta be eliminated and that constitutional government in Mexico be restored.

When it comes to the working out of these fundamental problems in the Mexico situation there may be insurmountable difficulties, but all Washington drew a deep breath of relief when the news flashed from the Spanish embassy that at least temporary suspension of the trouble was assured.

Messenger Not Returned.

Vera Cruz, April 27.—The messenger whom United States Consul W. W. Canada sent to General Maas with the aim of making arrangements for the release and transportation of Americans held prisoners at Cordova, Orizaba and other places in the interior has not returned.

The consul accordingly dispatched another messenger, who is expected to emphasize the attitude of the American authorities that free entry and departure from Vera Cruz is being extended to all Mexicans who are unarmed.

Admiral Craddock, in command of the British war vessels here, is also trying to communicate with General Maas in behalf of Canada. It is hoped that some definite word will be obtained soon either by Canada's messenger or through the offices of the British admiral.

Destroy Railroad.

Vera Cruz, April 27.—The hope that General Huerta will permit the Americans now remaining in Mexico City and other interior places to leave Mexico has been given up. The train which was sent out at 6:30 to meet a train expected from Mexico City carrying refugees returned, and Ensign Lowry, in command of the train, reported that there was a train from Mexico City at the break in the railroad.

Lowry also reported that the federals, who have been operating the railroad, have more than a thousand peons at work tearing up the rails and throwing them into the water and burned the ties. The peons and the Mexican federals are apparently working their way in the direction of Mexico City destroying the railroad.

The belief is that Huerta does not intend to permit any more refugee trains to come to Vera Cruz and that he is planning to make the progress of the American armed forces toward Mexico City as difficult as possible.

The observations made by Ensign Lowry caused a strong guard, with machine guns, to be placed on the train that was sent out. Guards also were scattered by Ensign Lowry in the bushes along the track near the break in the railroad. It was observed that the federals were stationed on house tops and in trees to signal the approach of the train from Vera Cruz.

Americans In Danger.

Washington, April 27.—Rescue of the 3,000 Americans still believed to be in Mexican cities and towns, menaced by infuriated Mexican mobs, insulted, arrested and thrown into prisons by the half crazed soldiers of Huerta, many of them held as hostages by orders of Huerta in the Mexican capital, is one of the chief concerns of the administration.

Mr. Bryan, the secretary of state, declared that, through the aid of the British ambassador, he had been able to clear up the misunderstanding in Mexico City as to the alleged "holding of Mexicans in Vera Cruz against their will." The secretary added that Mr. Hohler, secretary of the British embassy at Mexico City, took a train load of Mexicans from Vera Cruz to Mexico City.

THREE SPIES ARRESTED.

Held Up With Code Books on Way to Chicago.

Sioux City, Ia., April 26.—The police arrested three Mexicans, Pedro Antponis, B. Gross and Emiliano Bavendo on charges of vagrancy. The men, the police assert, are spies. Books containing code writing were found in their suit cases. Fresh custom house tags were stamped on satchels. They were marked "444, Pier 6."

The contents of the code book are written in a fine Spanish hand. References are made to "Americanos," "guardoza secretes" and "liberte." The Mexicans said they were on their way to Chicago when arrested. They are well dressed.

Colombian Press Favors Mexico.

BABY WELFARE WEEK.

Chicago discovered that for every $50 subscribed the life of one baby out of the 8,000 which die annually in that city—80 per cent. of them, needlessly—may be saved instead of wasted during the coming summer. With the proposition reduced in this manner to dollars and cents to awaken and intensify the civic responsibility, it has just completed the biggest Baby Welfare Week ever held in the country and has pointed the way to greater efforts for baby conservation in other communities.

The city was rocked from stem to stern by the movement. Baby ruled supreme and "baby talk" held full sway. Chicago was shown definitely the economy and humanity of saving infant life; then set about theorically to the job of saving it. While the country looked on, fully 3,000 men and women canvassed the city for funds for infant welfare stations. Every ward and precinct was covered by zealous workers, and results of the day were thrown on a gigantic electric signboard downtown every evening.

Models of Lorado Taft's mother and child were sold at every hotel and department store, donations were received and forwarded free by all express offices in the city, baby books were distributed with every bottle of milk by the dairy companies and newspapers, theatres and street cars were used extensively for advertising the movement. Advertising men of the city donated services and materials to the value of $200,000 and it is doubtful if there was one citizen or visitor in Chicago during the week who did not know all about what was going on to save the lives of the innocents.

The work of the Day Nursery and other local charities in conserving the lives of the babies in Plainfield is a noble one which has won endorsement and been very successful so far as conducted. This is one of some 200 American communities conducting some sort of organized baby saving campaign during the summer months, but none ever was launched under such remarkable auspices as the 1914 season in Chicago. There, the united efforts of men and women were organized to conduct a week's thorough campaign preceded by the interesting of the entire city in the need of child conservation. That the lives of the infants are well cared for here is proven by the work of the King's Daughters and others, but the Chicago plan is nevertheless of much interest.

The Daily Press is being congratulated on all sides upon the excellent news service which is it giving daily on the strife in Mexico. Both in length of stories and accuracy the articles appearing in the Press are much excelling any other service in this city. On Monday last the Press was the only local paper to print President Wilson's message to Congress, or any part of it, which resulted in the break between this country and Huerta. This was the biggest local newspaper beat in many years. It was the only paper to give any detailed description of the arrival of the refugee trains at Vera Cruz, and the only paper which correctly reported Charge of Affairs O'Shaughnessy's arrival at Vera Cruz, other reports being that he would go to another seaport to leave Mexico.

On Saturday the Plainfield Branch of the New Jersey Suffrage organization will have complete charge of the Daily Press. Editorial, repertorial, circulation and other positions, except the mechanical work of setting and printing the paper will be filled by women who are well known in Plainfield. The contributed editorial for that day will be furnished by one of the women on the staff, and every news assignment will be covered by them. The members of the editorial board visited the Press office on Saturday and were photographed at work. This photograph will appear in Saturday's Press.

With the trouble in Mexico and in Colorado, and the Ulsterites getting possession of 70,000 guns to make things warm for the British government, even Teddy Roosevelt cannot crowd in on the front page. He certainly must feel keenly the fact that he is not in this country to take a hand in the Mexican trouble.

The saddest news of all for some people, during these hard times is that the saloon keepers of Union county may abandon free lunches.

URGES JEWS TO JOIN ZIONIST MOVEMENT

Dr. Isaac Blustone Addresses Order Sons of Zion at a Large Gathering.

A large and enthusiastic audience assembled in the Knights of Pythias rooms, 212 West Front street, last night, and listened to an able address by Dr. Isaac Bluestone, of New York, the former Nasi of the Order Sons of Zion, in which he urged all Jews to join the Zionist movement and help regain Palestine for the race.

Dr. Bluestone, continuing, said: "It is true that we Jews in America are perfectly contented, but what about the 6,000,000 residing in dark Russia being deprived of every human opportunity. A place must be established for them and everyone of you is duty-bound to give a helping hand to the splendid start already made.

"Within the last twenty-five years only thirty-eight Jewish colonies have been established, High Schools and technical schools being built in Jaffa, Haifa and Jerusalem and now we are engaged in a propaganda to establish a Jewish university in Palestine which will cost about $10,000,000."

After the address the following officers were installed: President, Dr. Isaac Finckel; vice-president, Samuel Seidel; recording secretary, Nathan Fallick; financial secretary, Henry Ullman; treasurer, Harry Katz; sergeant-at-arms, Morris Rosenbaum; master of ceremonies, Morris Goldfarb; trustees, Edward Nadler, Harry Golfison and Max Matlin. Following the installation a banquet was served to all the members and guests and a social hour was enjoyed. The local order is growing rapidly, according to the reports received at last night's gathering and the members are much encouraged.

OBSERVE ANTI-SALOON FIELD DAY HERE

The Anti-Saloon League "Field Day" was observed in this city yesterday, when speakers from the headquarters at Newark occupied several pulpits of local churches at the morning and evening servies.

The largest gathering of the day was at the Plainfield theatre in the afternoon, when several hundred men were addressed by the new superintendent of the league, Rev. Dr. James K. Shields. During the course of the address the Illinois campaign for local option was vividly described. The liquor problem in this State came in for its share of the denunciation at the hands of the speaker. Conditions as they are found in New Jersey were presented and the program of the League by which it is hoped to rectify these appalling conditions.

The program as outlined by Dr. Shields includes the organization of the individual churches, communities and counties, making it possible to reach the greatest number of men to back the program of local option and prohibition. National prohibition and other items of national interest in the endeavor to make the United States a saloonless nation were discussed at length by the speaker. This meeting was under the joint auspices of the State league and the local Federation of Men's Bible Classes.

The Dutch Arms Concert Band of the Trinity Reformed church, was in attendance and played incidental selections throughout the meeting.

Among the speakers at the church services included Dr. Shields, at the Trinity Reformed church; W. T. Powlson, at the First M. E. church; G. Rowland Monroe, at Warren Chapel, and Samuel Wilson at the Monroe M. E. church.

COMEDY CLUB COACH WAS THE WRITER

The Comedy Club of Plainfield has had unusual, if not unique good fortune, in getting Norman Lee Swartout, the author of the play, to coach them in rehearsing "The Arrival of Kitty," which they are to present on Thursday and Friday evenings of this week in the Plainfield theatre. Tickets are now on sale and the demand for them gives strength to the hope for a considerable surplus beyond expenses, which will be turned over to charity.

One of the great advantages of having the author or coach, apart from his personal talent as an actor and his great experience of stage-craft, is that his perfect knowledge of this particular play enables him to bring out the full significance of every part.

Another is that, although "The Arrival of Kitty" has been playing steadily for the past eight years, he has several times, during the Comedy Club rehearsals injected new and witty lines which increase its effects.

Mr. Swartout is a young man of great distinction in the dramatic world not only on the purely professional side as playwright and actor, but on the social side as well, as his wit and humor as displayed in "The Arrival of Kitty" would naturally make him. He is one of the charter members of the Society of American Dramatists and Composers, and a member of several literary and theatrical clubs of New York.

He began to write plays as early as in 1900, when a student in the University of Rochester and a member of the Alpha Delta Phi fraternity, which is so famous.

The writing of plays was always his great aim and it is probable that his chief purpose in going on the stage himself was to gain a better understanding of its technique. At any rate, his skill became such that he has already produced seven successful plays. An eighth, a farce, will probably be produced by Frances Wilson next season. Some of his plays are 'The Toastmaster," "One of Eight," "The Girl Who Wasn't," "Close to Nature," "Up in the Air" (in one act), and "A Study in Brown." As for "The Arrival of Kitty," it was first produced at the West End theatre in 1906, and has been played continuously, throughout the United States and Canada ever since—but never before by amateurs.

As playwright actor and as stage director, Mr. Swartout knows the stage from every point of view, and he has staged many amateur productions before this. Therefore with their surprising luck in securing this actor-coach and the wide variety of talent represented in the cast, the Comedy Club expects to outdo any of its previous successes.

MORE HASTE, LESS SPEED.

Raymond Cole, a delivery boy, was arraigned before Judge DeMeza this morning, charged with riding a bicycle on the sidewalk on West Eighth street. Cole is the first of the lawbreakers caught in the police dragnet since the local authorities began their anual spring crusade against this nuisance, and appeared penitent when arraigned in court. He said that he had a "rush" order to dispose of and thought the sidewalk better than the muddy road for riding purposes.

Inquiry at the larger hospitals showed that they are being beseiged daily by young women, seeking to find the proper course to become a nurse and go to the front. Newspaper offices also are flooded with requests who want to know where to make applications to be army nurses.

Vera Cruz, April 27.—Brigadier General Funston today landed four regiments of his command. With them it is now possible to muster 10,000 men in this city in case of attack. Marines and bluejackets may be withdrawn, leaving all land operations to the army.

New York, April 27.—General Felix Diaz, son of the ex-dictator of Mexico, has pledges amounting to $5,000,000 from New York interests to assist him in seeking the presidency of Mexico if he determines to make such an effort. General Diaz is in ertirement in this city. He is a bitter personal enemy of Huerta and, it is said, has agents in Washington seeking to pave the way for him to return and take the reins of government.

A cable from Monte Carlo, where his uncle is now staying, advises him to go to the front at once.

El Paso, April 27.—General Francisco Villa, accompanied by his staff, will return to Chihauhua this evening. Villa believes the crisis is over. He said that he is satisfied that there will be no trouble along the border that the local authorities cannot control.

Trains carrying the Eight Infantry brigade, composed of the Sixth, Twelfth and Eighteenth regiments, began arriving here early today, and the troops, who have come from San Francisco, are going into camp at Fort Bliss.

Chicago, April 27.—Two hundred marines will leave Lake Bluff for the Philadeluphia Navy Yard tomorrow. 182 marines have left there for Brooklyn and Philadelphia.

Washington, April 27.—Gross insults and physical violence to American Consul General Philip C. Hanna at Monterey by federal officers and soldiers at that place, as reported in a telegram from Mr. Hanna, have given a new turn to Mexican developments that may hasten aggressive action by the United States. Mr. Hanna reported, under date of April 26, that on April 21 Captain del Castillo, at the head of a federal detachment, evidently under orders from above, had torn down the flag from the consulate general and that the next day he had been taken before a military tribunal and thrown into jail.

Mr. Hanna said that he remained in prison in the state capitol building until the federals evacuated the city on the approach of a Constitutionalist army commanded by Generals Gonzales Villareal and Castro on the morning of April 24. These officers sympathized deeply with Mr. Hanna in the hardships he had undergone and did everything in their power to make amends. Mr. Hanna, who evidently felt lively gratitude to his liberators, said that the belief prevailed there that the Constitutionalist army was determined to establish a "high type of free government, personal liberty and the protection of property."

Galveston, Tex., April 27.—Driven by armed bands of Mexicans, both federals and rebels, from their homes and from the property which in many cases they have worked for years to accumulate, forced to forsake their work in the oil fields where they have been drawing good wages, destitute of money, food and clothing and bringing with them horrifying stories of cruelties inflicted by Mexicans and of privations, insults and injuries endured by them, more than 2,500 refugees from Vera Cruz, Tampico and interior points in Mexico are here awaiting the pleasure of the national and state government in sending them to their destinations.

Arriving at Galveston and expecting to at once set foot on native soil and to be sent on to their homes and relations, these half starved, half naked outraged Americans and foreigners who have for ten days slept on the decks of the ships and endured all the hardships of the voyage found that they would have to remain on board or out of the city for six days. They had been drenched with rain and exposed to the sun.

Women Choked.

Boyd Erickson was tied to a tree and whipped until he consented to give up his money. He lost more than $1,000 in gold. Mrs. Bennett was lashed to the bed and her children were locked in the cellar while her home was sacked. She and the children were left prisoners by the Mexicans. Ed C. Rigney of Pennsylvania was beaten senseless by robbers when he refused to give up his cash.

His house was robbed and burned. Mr. Ridgley escaped through the assistance of a neighbor, who dragged him from the burning house.

Mrs. J. J. Kinner of Phoenix was grabbed and choked by two Mexicans until she consented to give up her jewelry. They took her rings, bracelets, earrings, etc. She saw these Mexicans rob others. They did not discriminate, but took rings from babies, girls and women alike.

Four girls, Annie, Bertha, Mamie and Thelma, daughters of Mr. and Mrs. G. A. Whiting, residing north of Tampico, were assaulted by ten Mexicans on April 15.

CONNORS HAS BEEN RELEASED ON BAIL

When Located He Will Be Brought to Union County by Chief Kiely.

Charles, alias "Ice Wagon" Connors, notorious as a porch-climber and bail jumper, has been released on $3,000 bail following his apprehension by the Chicago police upon the request of Chief Kiely, of this city, and although the local police head is armed with the necessary requisition papers, it is anticipated that he will have considerable trouble in locating his quarry. Kiely left here last week with the requisition papers issued by Governor Fielder, of New Jersey, and the Governor of Illinois affixed his signature Saturday afternoon.

Connors is wanted on an indictment charging him with breaking into former State Senator Ernest Ackerman's home on West Eighth street and stealing $15,000 worth of jewelry. When arraigned before the Chicago police magistrate he was released on $3,000 cash bond to appear when wanted.

The accused has had a notorious career as a burglar and is well known as a bail jumper. His latest feat was to forfeit $250 in cash bail in Westchester county, N. Y., when he was arrested in company with three other porch climbers in the act of robbing a house. He was identified as the robber who committed the burglary at the Ackerman home through finger print evidence obtained by Detective-Sergeant John Flynn and the local authorities had sufficient evidence to convict him if he is brought to Union county.

URGE ROCKEFELLER, JR., TO END COLORADO WAR

Washington, April 27.—The President has made an appeal to J. D. Rockefeller to put an end to the deplorable conditions in the mining regions of Colorado, on the broad ground of humanity. Mr. Rockefeller told the President that he had transfered all his interests in Colorado to his son, J. D. Rockefeller, Jr. Mr. Rockefeller said he would ask his son to co-operate with Chairman Foster of the House Committee on Mines and Mining, concerning the situation in the troubled district. President Wilson sent Mr. Foster to New York today to confer with young Mr. Rockefeller.

Careful consideration has been given to the request of Governor Ammons, of Colorado, that Federal troops be sent to the mining district in that State, where a war has been going on for eight months between strikers, guards and detachments of the National Guard. President Wilson has conferred with several cabinet officers and especially with Secretary of War Garrison both as to the advisability of responding favorably to the request and as to the troops now available for the purpose.

Infantry is the only arm that would be effectually used in the district which is too mountainous for cavalry or artillery, and practically all the troops that would be available under different circumstances have been sent to protect the southern border.

BREAK STOPS TRAIN.

Traffic on track No. 4 of the Central Railroad was tied up for some time at 3 o'clock this afternoon when an air-hose on a fast traveling westbound coal train snapped, causing the long train to come to an abrupt stop. It is the supposition of the crew in charge of the train that someone stealing a ride cut the hose in order to get off.

ELKS MINSTRELS TO BE GIVEN MAY 13-14

Announcement of Dates and Principals is Made Today by the Committee.

Plainfield Lodge of Elks has fixed upon Wednesday and Thursday nights, May 13 and 14, as the dates for its annual amateur minstrel show. The performances will be held in the Plainfield theatre and nothing is being left undone to make this year's effort the peer of all its predecessors. Rehearsals have been under way for the past two months in charge of William N. Runyon and Harry Weber, both of whom are capable of getting all there is out of the talent.

George O. Stevens has been selected as interlocutor and he will parry the funnyisms sprung by the following end men: Harry N. Blimm, John J. Campbell, John V. Todd, William J. Firstbrook, Thomas M. Muir and Edwin Bennett. All are equipped with good songs and bunches of "gags" guaranteed to cure the blues. The soloists will include William J. Tallamy, Bertram Tallamy, Edward Harding, Jr., and William G. Smith. An orchestra of fourteen pieces will assist the artists.

One of the features of this year's show will be a brand-new topical song from the pen of Judge Runyon. It is entitled "Everybody's Hoping for a Change," and gives the versatile composer an opportunity to bring in a bunch of crackerjack verses containing a side-splitting local hit. The music is written in one of the catchiest jingles of the day and is sure to be whistled everywhere. The song will be sung by Thomas M. Muir.

BREAK IN PIPE LINE FOLLOWED BY FIRE

South Plainfield again experienced a dangerous oil fire early this afternoon, when a break occured in the pipe line running to Constable Hook. Thousands of gallons of oil were pushed to the surface along the Lehigh Valley tracks, a few hundred yards west of the South Plainfield station and in some unknown way became ignited.

A big crowd of workmen hurried to the scene and by digging ditches prevented the blazing oil from spreading to buildings and other property. The fire was burning fiercely at 2 o'clock, sending up dense clouds of smoke that spread into the residential section of Plainfield. It is believed the oil will burn itself out without causing and further damage.

SNOOP HADN'T LET OUT A PEEP ABOUT IT TO SCOOP

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Saturday's baseball program was thoroughly soaked by Jupiter Pluvius before local managers had an opportunity to stage their battles and Plainfield fans had to seek other amusement. Not a single contest was staged in this city or vicinity Saturday and the schoolboy teams that were idle over the week end can be expected to make up for lost time during the coming week.

"Rus" Lawrence's work in the Penn Relay Carnival Saturday afternoon was watched with interest by his many friends in this city and when the Daily Press announced his championship performance a few minutes after he threw the final shot for the winning mark, much comment came from the bulletin watchers.

As exclusively announced in this paper Saturday afternoon Manager Ernest Dorflinger, of the Plainfield baseball team, will hold a tryout day for local recruits Saturday afternoon, May 9, on Parker Field. At that time all of the Plainfield youngsters who have been clamoring for a trial will be given an opportunity to show what they can do and Dorflinger intends to scrutinize the home talent pretty thoroughly before arriving at any definite choice.

What has become of that amateur baseball nine that was proposed for Plainfield a month or so ago? The enthusiasts at the head of the agitation have not been heard from since the Mexicans came into prominence. A similar movement has been tried out in Morristown and is proving vastly popular

Now that the scholastic outdoor track and field season has been pried open it promises to be one of the most active in a decade. In addition to the numerous competitions arranged by the high schools themselves, and the various leagues in this vicinity, there will be a greater number of college interscholastic meets than in the past. Scholastic meets have been taken up by most of the colleges which have adequate fields for holding such events, and they have gone a great way in raising the standard in interscholastic sport. Columbia is among the latest converts to the idea and will hold its games in May. Cornell will hold its meet on May 9 and has made an endeavor to get most of the schools in this city to send representations to Ithaca. Poly Prep will send quite a team.

Stevens Institute will hold its annual interscholastic meet on May 2, at Castle Point Field, Hoboken. On the same day the Princeton Club of Newark will stage its annual games there, and the conflict in dates is likely to keep most of the Jersey athletes out of the games, and give the lads from this side of the river a monopoly of the prizes. Stevens is making rapid strides in track and field work, and the games are found to be a success.

A bizarre collection of occupations is found to take up the off season of the Pirates, according to a list just made up. Gibson, Cooper, Harmon and Duffy are the farmers on the team. Manager Clarke also can be ranked as a farmer. Joe Conzelman, Ollie McArthur and Joe Leonard are students. There are three salesmen, two plumbers and five clerks. Hyatt is so used to butchering stock that he butchers the ball horsehide on the diamond. Bob Coleman is a stage mechanic and George McQuillan an electrician. Kantlehner is a stenographer.

Here's a chance for the charitable boxers: Toledo is to have glove contests under the commission appointed recently by Mayor Keller. The commission has adopted its code and the first boxing show will be given the third week in May. The commission provides for ten-round no-decision bouts and permits six-ounce gloves. It bars the kidney punch and declares for clean breaks. No mixed matches will be permitted in which the contestant scales more than ten pounds over the weight of his opponent. The commission insists that boxers shall not be remunerated for boxing, empowers its referees to stop bouts at any time, provides for medical inspection of boxers and demands 10 per cent. of the receipts.

CAPTAIN BEATTY, FORMER PLAINFIELD BOY, WINS INTERCOLLEGIATE SHOT-PUT

Among the college athletes who were returned winners in the annual University of Pennsylvania relay carnival held on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, Saturday afternoon, was Russell Lawrence Beatty, a graduate of Leal School of this city, who was floating the colors of the Columbia University track squad as this year's captain. He defeated the wonderful little Whitney, of Dartmouth, in the shot-put event, heaving the iron ball 46 feet 2 3-8 inches, nearly two feet better than his rival's mark.

The field and track events of the meet were run off in a downpour of rain and many of the athletes could not display their best form because of this fact. The track was soggy and the shot and poles were slippery. Beatty has competed in Columbia track athletics for the past three years and was picked as one of the athletes to represent America in the 1912 Olympics, but did not compete owing to parental objections. He formerly lived on Central avenue, this city, and was graduated from the Leal School.

The feature event of the meet, the four-mile international collegiate relay race, was won by the four stalwart sons of Oxford University, England. The Yankee quartet fought the Britons right to the last ditch and only what may be considered an erroneous decision by the judges prevented the Americans from being crowned with the laurel wreath of victory. Little Wallace McCurdy, the red-haired, blue-eyed son of Pennsylvania, staved off the finishing spurt of Arnold N. S. Jackson, the Olympic 1,500 meter champion, in the last desperate dash for the worsted, and the pair plunged over the finishing line on almost even terms. In the opinion of a majority of those who were around the finishing posts the American team won by a hand's breadth in the dying stab for the tape, but the judges returned the verdict that John Bull's hero had won by a foot.

PLAINFIELD COUNTRY CLUB OPENS SEASON

First Competition Match Play Handicap Against Par.

An active season at the Plainfield Country Club began on Saturday with an 18 holes, match play handicap against par, which is 70. Owing to the weather there was a small field out, not more than twenty-five engaging in play. The course was never in better condition at this time of the year, the putting greens being in unusually good shape, in fact the links are the equal of any in this part of the country.

Beginning next Saturday and continuing up to and including July 4, there will be club-dinner dances every Saturday night, in charge of Superintendent Eke, who continues in charge of the club.

These cards were returned on Saturday in competition:

Will T. Glenney, 6 down; G. F. Earl, 7 down; J. V. Beekman, 7 down; Stuart H. Patterson, 8 down; W. A. Engeman, 8 down; W. F. Merrill, 11 down.

VANDEVENTER LEADS HIGH SCHOOL TEAM

Left Fielder Has Best Batting Average for First Four Contests of the Season.

The first official batting averages of the season issued for the Plainfield High School baseball players were made public today and include the records piled up during the four opening games. Initial statistics show that Warren Butler, a new man in P. H. S. circles, is leading the list with a percentage of .307. He has taken part in all games to date and in thirteen trips to the plate has connected safely on four different occasions and has sacrificed once.

VanDeventer is running a close second with the same number of bingles in seventeen trips to the gutta percha. Two of the runner-up's smashes have been of the two cushion variety, however, and he has probably been the most valuable man on the offense to date. Peacock and Sminck both have extra base smashes to their credit. Sminck has walked once and Peacock has sacrificed on one occasion. Captain Rosenson is third in the hitting column with a percentage of .214. The players are competing for a silver loving cup offered for the champion swatsmith during the season.

In the four games played the team has been credited with twenty-one hits, four of which have been two-baggers. Thirty of the red and blue warriors have succumbed on three strikes and an even dozen free trips to the near corner have been dealt out by visiting moundsmen.

NEW LINEUP FOR BIG COURT GAME

Imperials, of Orange, Will Come Here Primed to Win Second Encounter.

Although the sign, "Closed for the Season," has many times been hung out by basketball enthusiasts during the past season there is one game yet to be played and that will be staged on the Saengerbund Hall court next Thursday night, when the Imperial Five, of Orange, meets the All Star Plainfield crew in a return match. The Plainfielders annexed the first contest by a two point decision, but an entirely new set of players will do battle Thursday night, and the visitors at present reign popular favorites.

SYKES HELD RIVALS TO A SINGLE HIT

Circus Stunts by Fielder Gave Nine a Chance to Sew up the Game.

In a fast, close game at Parker Field, Saturday, the Boys' Athletic Association got revenge on the Somerset Field Club for the defeat of the week previous, when Sykes, ably assisted by the entire team, led them on to a 3 to 2 victory. He had the visitors well in hand all through the contest, although he was a bit wild in one inning only were they dangerous. After Loizeaux had made a pretty catch of Force's high fly for a starter, Conover annexed his team's lone hit, a line double through short, and the next batter walked. Here a pinch hitter was inserted. He connected with the first ball pitched and sent it out into deep left, far over Renne's head, and it looked as if the game was lost there, but the plucky little left fielder of the B. A. A.'s ran back fast, leaped and nabbed the sphere, lost his balance and turned a backward somersault.

This gave the B. A. A.'s a chance to win ,which they did in the eighth. With two down, O'Donnell walked and stole, and Case came out of a batting slump, rising to the occasion with a line single over short after the count was 3 and 2, scoring O'Donnell with the winning run for the B. A. A.

On Wednesday and again on Friday, the B. A. A. played and won, the first game resulting in a 10 to 1 win with Mills and Case in the points, over Netherwood, and the second, with Sykes and Snyder as a battery, a victory over Leal's Juniors, by 24 to 4.

The score by innings:

SIXTH ANNUAL RECEPTION OF PLAINFIELD SOCCERITES

The sixth annual reception and dance of the Plainfield Association Football Club was held in Sebring's Auditorium, Friday night, a large number of members and friends attending the affair. The interior of the auditorium was appropriately decorated with flags and bunting and excellent terpischore music was furnished by Mitchells' orchestra. Dancing was the principal feature of the program and during the evening refreshments were served.

The committee of arrangements included R. Hennessy, T. Gardner, W. Jordon, J. Donaldson, T. O'Brien, J. Young, A. Campbell, W. Cotgreave, G. Pearson, T. Foy and W. Whitehead. T. B. Douglas acted as master of ceremonies; W. Braidwood was chairman; J. Macrae, secretary and treasurer; C. Halliwell, floor manager; J. Henderson and J. Gardner, assistant floor managers.

CHOYNSKI HAILS FITZ, JR., AS COMING WORLD'S CHAMPION

Speaking of Young Bob Fitz, Joe Choynski, one of the best middleweight fighters the world has ever known, says: "This boy will be world's champion, like his father, if he has his father's heart. He has everything else, and I believe he could go through all the so-called 'white hopes' right now without the least trouble.

"Whether or not he has the natural fighting heart of old Fitz only the test in the ring can tell. He seems to have it, and I wouldn't be surprised to see him get to the top. He certainly ought to inherit some fighting spirit, and he has been brought up and taught by one of the greatest men that ever wore a five-ounce glove."

RITCHIE AFTER GOLF TITLE.

When Willie Ritchie is ready to abandon the ring and the lightweight title which he is holding there are other honors to which the San Francisco boy aspires and which may come his way. Outside of boxing, which is a business for him, golf has come to be a recreation and not a fad. When Ritchie started golf, as he is willing to admit, it was with the idea of attracting publicity. Now he is taking a more serious view of the ancient game and really wants to win a championship on the links some day.

BASEBALL MANAGERS.

During the next five months of baseball we will give special attention to games played by local teams and baseball managers are invited to report the results of games either in person or over the 'phone. For the convenience of managers and those interested in teams and players the sporting department of the Plainfield Daily Press will be open evenings until 10 o'clock.

ROD AND REEL

Here is the spring fishing situation in a nutshell. Striped bass are now ascending the rivers, codfishes will last during the rest of April, spring blackfish are takin the bait, tomcods are still biting, together with winter flounders, and soon weakfish, plaice and seabass will attract the attention of anglers.

For trout fishing a good line for either bait or fly casting can be purchased for as small a sum as $5. If one does not desire to try fly casting, a serviceable steel rod can be bought for $2 to $3. The use of such a rod, however, has always seemed to the writer like shooting squirrels with a shotgun—taking an unfair advantage, since the game has little chance to escape. Such a rod cannot be broken by a trout, and the sole skill in the catch is in inducing the fish to take the bait.

It would be futile to offer advice as to flies. The best advisers are the fishing tackle dealers, most of whom constantly receive advices from various fishing parties, telling what flies are being taken. But the fisherman should be provided with a goodly assortment, say,a quarter dozen of each kinds. That allows for the loss of one or two while fishing, without denuding the flyhook of the kind that trout may be taking.

The flounder fishing during the week has improved considerably, judging from the catches that are reported. The best of the fishing has been in Jamaica Bay, where the fish increase in size as the season advances. Eleven Newark fishermen caught 800 flounders at the Raunt last Tuesday, that weighed fully 300 pounds.

Fish and Game Commissioner B. M. Shanley was one of the party that fished several days on the preserve of the Bloomingrove Hunting and Fishing Club, in Pennsylvania, last week. The commissioner caught quite a few fine fish, among them being several weighing a pound and a half.

Fishermen need never be without bait of some kind for fishing in any of the waters around New Jersey. With the numerous kinds to be had here the following are all good baits for any of the fish running in our waters and are easy obtainable:

Blood and sandworms can be had in large quantities at low water in sodbanks and rocky beaches. Both of these worms are kept by all bait and tackle dealers and it pays better to buy them than to dig them. Always keep sandworms in clean, dry sand away from the wet and sun, avoiding cigar or tobacco boxes. Bloodworms should be kept in cardboard boxes in moist seaweed.

Shedder Crab.—One of the best all around baits for salt water fishing is the shedder crab. All fish will take this bait which is the common blue crab in the stage when his shell is just shedding which leaves him a soft crab, to use this bait the crab should be cut up in five or six pieces and the claws used separately.

Shrimp.—Another good and popular bait is shrimp. These are easily obtained by dragging a fine meshed net in shallow water along spiles, piers, floats and shallow grasses. They must be kept alive by using a small floating bait car as dead shrimp are useless.

Killies.—The best fluke bait are killies. The dark green killie with a white belly is best. Avoid the bass killie, the one with irregular stripes and black markings which soon die and is useless as a bait. Killies are obtained in shallow water of any cove or creek by using small pieces of clam to attract them and a long handle net. Killies should also be kept alive in a bait car.

Fiddler Crabs.—This is the best bait for blackfish and is of several species, the China Back, which is of a bright color, and the darker colored ones are the most common. Fiddlers are plentiful and easily obtained at low tide on white sand beaches and among the weeds.

Soft Clams.—Found plentiful at low tide on beaches and muddy bars. They betray their presence by squirting jets of water in the air as one approaches and can be dug out with a spade in large numbers.

Hard clams and skimmers are also very useful and can be obtained in unlimited quantities.

YOUNG PITCHER DIES SUDDENLY

STARRED FOR LOCALS

Those who followed the Plainfield Pets in the Central New Jersey League championship race of 1912 well remember the performance of Fred Ritter, the twirler brought here by Captain Dave Driscoll to sew up the title for the locals after they had gotten into a ticklish situation near the close of the race. Ritter died suddenly in his home in the Bronx yesterday, following a short illness with hasty tuberculosis. The sudden end of so phenomenal a baseball career has come as a severe shock to the burly athlete's friends in this section and many find it hard to realize that he has passed away.

As a member of the Plainfield team Ritter was a modern Hercules, tall and husky. In his pitching arm was tremendous strength and in his first game on Crescent Oval his delivery was the object of considerable favorable comment. An unusual amount of smoke intermingled with a fine assortment of curves made Ritter a formidable opponent for any team and his victories on the local field were marked by the scarcity of hitting on the part of the opposition.

Ritter began his career as a baseball twirler with the Stuyvesant High School team and after twirling for several semi-professional teams he went to the Jersey City club of the International League and later was secured by Dave Driscoll, at that time captain of the Plainfield club. Dave hailed him as a wonder and so he impressed the fans who saw him in action against Somerville and Dunellen. In Recreation Park, New Brunswick, Ritter twirled against Connie Mack's Athletics one Sunday afternoon in the fall of 1912 and the big league pilot was so impressed with the youngster's work on that occasion that he secured a berth for him with the Baltimore team of the International League. That was the same year in which Eugene Lidgate, of Fanwood, was signed by that club, and the latter worked together during the spring training season. Baltimore is a farming ground for the Philadelphia Athletics and Connie Mack put him with that club in order to be able to keep an eye on him.

Ritter's career with Baltimore was short. In an exhibition game one day he made a long throw from right field to the plate and injured his pitching arm. He never recovered his usual strength afterwards, although he made several attempts to come back. Last year he twirled a part of one game for the New Brunswick aggregation under Driscoll but had to be relieved in the sixth inning by another twirler. Ritter was testing his arm on that occasion. He had a great assortment of curves and wonderful speed but lacked the finish of big league twirlers. In the game with the Athletics, when he was discovered by Connie Mack, he erred in the ninth inning, and served Chief Bender a grooved ball, with two strikes on him. It was in the ninth inning and the score stood 1 to 0 in favor of the Athletics. Bender planted the ball near the fence in the Brunswick Park, scoring a runner ahead of him.

Ritter was a hero after that Athletic contest and his name remained on the lips of all who saw him perform. We have many times been asked what became of him and why he did not return to Plainfield but his whereabouts have been a mystery during the greater part of his absence. He was of a retiring disposition and spurned publicity. Many a boy wished for the chances he had. A few years ago he seemed destined for the big leagues but the young man's career has now been forever shut off while in his early twenties. This pitcher is gone but not forgotten, his glove and uniform laid aside. The applause of his many admirers has been hushed forever. From a little house in the Bronx the funeral services will be conducted this afternoon and his body will be laid to rest for the last time in a little cemetery by six of his former schoolboy friends who performed on the Stuyvesant High School team with him.

Continual worrying because his arm did not come around again after his foolish stunt on the Baltimore field is said to have hastened his end. His teammates on the local team in 1912 were Captain Dave Driscoll, Wally Cosgrove, Eddie Stallings, Joe Harter, Jim Emery, Bill Stallings, Bill Dalton, Walter Nelson and Otto Frederickson. The team was managed by James Steele and Ernest Dorflinger.

BLIMM WINS TITLE IN ELKS' TOURNEY

Playing the finals for the pool championship of the Elks' Club, Harry DeMeza was defeated for first prize Saturday afternoon by Harry Blimm. The last match of the tournament evoked considerable interest among the club members and the respective bands of supporters made things interesting while the combatants were engaged in their final contest for the club laurels.

Harry Blimm will be awarded a cue for first prize; Harry DeMeza will have his dues paid in the club for six months as second prize, and Clarence Mundy, who captured third place, will receive an Elks' button.

The tournament opened in February with thirty-six contestants and much interest has been manifested in the games played during the elimination process. Saturday afternoon found all but DeMeza and Blimm eliminated and their match was played before a large audience of those who have been keeping in touch with the progress of the tourney since it was inaugurated. This is the first tournament to be held in the new clubhouse and its success assures the members of further competition along this line.

"BROTHERHOOD OF THE RACES" DEVELOPING

Trafalgar Lodge, No. 706, Order Sons of St. George, honored the memory of King George, last evening, by attending divine service at Hope chapel, when Rev. Frederic L. Greene, pastor, preached a sermon appropriate to the occasion.

In the course of his remarks, Mr. Greene referred to the development of human brotherhood, tracing its history from the time when it was confined to the limits of a clan or tribe to the present, when it is beginning to be better understood. "Brotherhood of the races," he said, "is fast developing into something more than theory, and is now more practical than in the past. The spirit of the fraternal world is coming into its own by development of a common helpfulness.

"The brotherhood of the human races, as we know today, has its roots and foundation in the fatherhood of God as taught by Jesus Christ, and has extended to the uttermost parts of the arth. Brotherhood, in its true sense, does not mean equality of capacity, but rather the equality of opportunity. Some may be captains, but others are better fiteed to be privates. Brotherhood mean sympathy, not a vague int rest, but an intense desire to help. I must feel for my neighbor, and bear with him, his burdens. There should be less of a tendency to slam those who are richer or not so well off as ours lves. Anything that touches the heart of men, should be our interest. If a man is down, I must help him; if in sin, I must rescue him.

"Not only this, but I must also remove the stumbling block from his path. Every man that comes into touch with our lives, are cares that belong to us. Every man that is too delicate to touch the horny hands that labor, commits a sacrilege when he utters, 'Our Father.' When he utters this he must recognize the brother of men and of nations. The day is not far distant, when we shall see more fully than now the brotherhood of the nations. Co-operation is success, and when we are able to see this, human brother will come into its own. Foreign missions, as are being carried on by the churches, is but one form of expression of the universal brotherhood as it is now dawning upon the world. Human brotherhood is far from being solved, as many do not make a personal application of this phase of life.

"The outlook for the proper development of universal brotherhood is bright, despite the occasional cloud that darkens the horizon. If the individual would practice the truths of brotherhood, he would accomplish much in keeping the sky of life clear. Any brother founded on any thing less than the love of God and neighbor, lacks the leverage necessary to lift the race up to the universal standard of brotherhood: Love never faileth. What progress is made in this line depends upon those who claim to be Christians."

A BORDER OF BOW-KNOTS AND FORGET-ME-NOTS FOR EMBROIDERING A SHEET.

What could be more acceptable, among the useful presents for a bride-to-be, than a hand-embroidered sheet. One which has been embroidered by the giver would be all the more appreciated, as it shows time and loving thoughts have been spent upon it.

This attractive border of bow-knots and flowers should be developed on a sheet entirely in white. The flower and leaves should be carried out in heavily padded solid work and the bow-knots and ribbon in outline and seed-stitch or solid work. When padding the bow-knots and ribbon, keep well within the outlines and pad higher in the center than at the edges. Do not pad too heavily at the narrow portions or they will look clumsy when covered. This border is four inches wide and, although it is illustrated on a sheet, it is also appropriate for use on a bureau-scarf and bedspread of hand-woven linen or madras. A portion of this border may be used on the ends of the pillow-cases. The edges of the sheet and pillow-cases may be finished with a scallop or with a wide hemstitched hem.

By Alice Gibson

The middy blouse and the shirt waist are decidedly American discoveries; Paris accepted them both and this season sent us several pretty middy models made up in cotton crepe and golfine trimmed with buttons and striped novelty cottons. This is quite a departure, as we have been in the habit of fashioning this blouse of heavy linen, duck or serge

One pretty model made up in white cotton crepe trimmed with blue and white ratine striped crepe and blue bone buttons had a low hung fitted girdle with the buttons arranged so that the girdle could be tightened if necessary.

No. 7615 is a middy design with a shaped girdle (the use of which is optional), a drop shoulder and an attractive collar and laced front opening.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

RHUBARB COMBINATIONS.

RHUBARB is delicious cooked with other fruits. Some desserts of that kind are made as follows:

Rhubarb Tapioca. Soak two-thirds of a cupful of pearl tapioca overnight in cold water. Drain, put in double boiler. Add one and one-fourth cupfuls of boiling water and two-thirds of a teaspoonful of salt. Cook until tapioca has absorbed the water. Peel rhubarb and cut in pieces to make three cupfuls. Sprinkle with one and one-third cupfuls of sugar. Add to tapioca and cook.

With Dried Fruits.

Rhubarb and Dates.—Wash, one pound good dates, add boiling water to cover and cook until the water is nearly absorbed. Then remove the stones. Skin and cut a pound of rhubarb in one inch pieces, put a layer in the bottom of a buttered pudding dish, sprinkle with sugar, add a layer of dates and repeat until all are used, having last layer of dates. Put in one-fourth cupful of water and bake until rhubarb is done.

Rhubarb and Prunes.—A combination for the spring is that of prunes with rhubarb. In any household where prunes are much used they are usually stewed in large quantities and kept on hand in juice. Take enough for a dish, draining the juice, and pour over rhubarb already stewed and to which very little sugar has been added.

Jam and Jelly.

Rhubarb and Orange Jam.—Take one quart of rhubarb cut in small pieces, six oranges and three cupfuls of sugar. Remove the rind from the oranges and scrape off the white pith. With a pair of scissors cut the rind into thin strips. Remove the seeds and fibrous parts from the oranges and put into a preserving kettle with the rhubarb, sugar and rinds. Bring to the boiling point and skim. Cook until the jam stiffens when tested on a cold saucer. Pour into jars, cover with paraffin and set away to cool and then cover.

Rhubarb and Apple Jelly.—Wash well the rhubarb stalks and cut them up into small pieces without peeling, rejecting any defective sections. To every three cupfuls of the rhubarb add one well washed Baldwin or greening apple, cut up in small pieces without paring or coring. Cover the whole with boiling water and cook until apple is done. Pour in jelly bag and when juice is drained out add to it equal measure of sugar or a little less, according to the tartness of the rhubarb. Stir till dissolved and cook.

Daddy's Bedtime Story — The Jolly Fairies Give Their Yearly Spring Frolic.

JACK and Evelyn loved to hear about the fairies. It suddenly dawned on daddy that he hadn't told the children a story about the elves for ever and ever so long. So he said:

"How about a story of the fairies tonight, children?"

"Oh, splendid!" shouted both the children.

"You know I haven't told you yet about their spring frolic. Once every year at just about this time the fairies have what they call a spring frolic. This year they had it the night before last.

"For days before this frolic the fairies had gone flower hunting, and, of course, they found quantities of them. So of every kind there was some specimen, and they knew just how to arrange these flowers. They put them all over the fresh green grass, and here and there they scattered young green ferns. It made the grass look like a soft carpet of all the prettiest colors in the world. Then all was ready for the party.

"And now the fun began. First of all, they had the May pole dance."

"It must be perfectly wonderful!" said Evelyn thoughtfully. "I can just think of all those lovely wild flowers which they gathered with the moon shining down over them and then all the exquisite fairies dancing around the May pole!"

"Yes; it is very beautiful, I fancy," daddy agreed. "But, to continue, the May pole dance is simply one of the many delightful things about their spring frolic. After the dance is over, when, of course, the fairy queen is proclaimed queen of the May, the sports begin.

"You see, every one feels just like exercise after such fine weather, and they have all kinds of races and games. Last of all comes the frolic."

"Is that a special game?" asked Jack. "I thought that you just meant the whole party was a frolic and because it was given in the spring it was called a spring frolic."

"Well, of course," said daddy, "the whole party is a real spring frolic. But they do have a special frolic before the party is over, and that consists of races and hurdle jumping.

"They have small hurdles placed every little distance on the race track. The race track is covered with flowers, and the hurdles are always covered with flowers also, and then all the fairies run and jump over this course, while the fairies who are not racing at the time sing jolly songs to help them hurry.

"The fairy who wins this race has the honor of leading the May pole dance for the following spring frolic, and after the whole party is over the fairy queen presents each little fairy with a lovely crown of flowers."

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

Author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"

CHAPTER XI.

Haying Time.

EVERYBODY in Riverboro, Edgewood, Milliken's Mills, Spruce Swamp, Duck Pond and Moderation was "haying." There was a perfect frenzy of haying, for it was the Monday after the Fourth, the precise date in July when the Maine farmer said goodby to repose and "hayed" desperately and unceasingly until every spear of green in his section was mowed down and safely under cover.

If a man had grass of his own he cut it, and if he had none he assisted in cutting that of some other man, for "to hay," although an unconventional verb, was, and still is, a very active one and in common circulation, although not used by the grammarians.

Whatever your trade and whatever your profession, it counted as naught in good weather. The fish man stopped selling fish, the meat man ceased to bring meat, the cobbler as well as the judge forsook the bench, and even the doctor made fewer visits than usual. The wage for work in the hayfields was a high one, and every man, boy and horse in a village was pressed into service.

When Ivory Boynton had finished with his own small crop he commonly went at once to Lawyer Wilson, who had the largest acreage of hay land in the township. Ivory was always in great demand, for he was a mighty worker in the field and a very giant at "pitching," being able to pick up a fair sized haycock at one stroke of the fork and fling it on to the cart as if it were a feather.

Lawyer Wilson always took a hand himself if signs of rain appeared, and Mark occasionally visited the scene of action when a crowd in the field made a general jollification or when there was an impending thunderstorm.

In such cases even women and girls joined the workers and all hands bent together to the task of getting a load into the barn and covering the rest.

Deacon Baxter was wont to call Mark Wilson a "worthless, whey faced, lily handed whelp," but the description, though picturesque, was decidedly exaggerated. Mark disliked manual labor; but, having imbibed enough knowledge of law in his father's office to be an excellent clerk, he much preferred traveling about, settling the details of small cases, collecting rents and bad bills, to any form of work on a farm. This sort of life, on stagecoaches and railway trains or on long driving trips with his own fast "trotter," suited his adventurous disposition and gave him a sense of importance that was very necessary to his peace of mind. He was not especially intimate with Ivory Boynton, who studied law with his father during all vacations and in every available hour of leisure during term time, as did many another young New England schoolmaster.

Mark's father's praise of Ivory's legal ability was a little too warm to please his son, as was the commendation of one of the county court judges on Ivory's preparation of a brief in a certain case in the Wilson office. Ivory had drawn it up at Mr. Wilson's request merely to show how far he understood the books and cases he was studying, and he had no idea that it differed in any way from the work of any other student. All the same, Mark's own efforts in a like direction had never received any special mention.

When he was in the hayfield he also kept as far as possible from Ivory, because there, too, he felt a superiority that made him for the moment a trifle disconcerted. It was no particular pleasure for him to see Ivory plunge his fork deep into the heart of a haycock, take a firm grasp of the handle, thrust forward his foot to steady himself and then raise the great fragrant heap slowly and swing it up to the waiting hay cart amid the applause of the crowd.

Rodman would be there, too, helping the man on top of the load and getting nearly buried each time as the mass descended upon him, but doing his slender best to distribute and tread it down properly, while his young heart glowed with pride at Cousin Ivory's prowess.

Independence day had passed, with its usual gayeties for the young people, in none of which the Baxter family had joined, and now, at 11 o'clock on this burning July morning, Waitstill was driving the old mare past the Wilson farm on her way to the river field.

Her father was working there, together with the two hired men whom he took on for a fortnight during the height of the season. If mowing, raking, pitching and carting of the precious crop could only have been done at odd times during the year or at night he would not have embittered the month of July by paying out money for labor. But nature was inexorable in the ripening of hay, and Old Foxy was obliged to succumb to the inevitable.

Waitstill had a basket packed with luncheon for three and a great demijohn of cool ginger tea under the wagon seat. Other farmers sometimes served hard cider or rum, but her father's principles were dead against this riotous extravagance. Temperance, in any and all directions, was cheap, and the deacon was a very temperate man, save in language.

The fields on both sides of the road were full of haymakers, and everywhere there was bustle and stir. There would be three or four men—one leading, the others following—slowly swinging their way through a noble piece of grass, and the smell of the mown fields in the sunshine was sweeter than honey in the comb.

There were patches of black eyed Susans in the meadows here and there, while pink and white hardhack grew by the road, with day lilies and blossoming milkweed. The bobolinks were fluting from every tree. There were thrushes in the alder bushes and orioles in the tops of the elms, and Waitstill's heart overflowed with joy at being in such a world of midsummer beauty, though life during the great heat and incessant work of haying time was a little more rigorous than usual.

The extra food needed for the hired men always kept her father in a state of mind closely resembling insanity. Coming downstairs to cook breakfast, she would find the coffee or tea measured out for the pot. The increased consumption of milk angered him beyond words, because it lessened the supply of butter for sale.

Everything that could be made with buttermilk was ordered so to be done, and nothing but water could be used in mixing the raised bread. The cornbake must never have an egg; the pie crust must be shortened only with lard or with a mixture of beef fat and dripping, and so on, and so on, eternally.

When the girls were respectively seventeen and thirteen, Waitstill had begged a small plot of ground for them to use as they liked, and beginning at that time, they had gradually made a little garden, with a couple of fruit trees and a thicket of red, white and black currants, raspberry and blackberry bushes.

For several summers now they had sold enough of their own fruit to buy a pair of shoes or gloves, a scarf or a hat, but even this tiny income was beginning to be menaced. The deacon positively suffered as he looked at that odd corner of earth, not any bigger than his barn floor, and saw what his girls had done with no tools but a spade and a hoe and no help but their own hands. He had no leisure (so he growled) to cultivate and fertilize ground for small fruits and no money to pay a man to do it, yet here was food grown under his very eye and it did not belong to him!

The girls worked in their garden chiefly at sunrise in spring and early summer or after supper in the evening. All the same, Waitstill had been told by her father the day before that she was not only using ground, but time that belonged to him, and that he should expect her to provide "pie filling" out of her garden patch during haying to help satisfy the ravenous appetites of that couple of "great, gorming, greedy lubbers" that he was hiring this year. He had stopped the peeling of potatoes before boiling because he disapproved of the thickness of the parings he found in the pig's pail, and he stood over Patty at her work in the kitchen until Waitstill was in daily fear of a tempest of some sort.

Coming in from the shed one morning she met her father just issuing from the kitchen where Patty was standing like a young Fury in front of the sink. "Father's been spying at the eggshells I settled the coffee with and said I'd no business to leave so much good in the shell when I broke an egg. I will not bear it. He makes me feel fairly murderous! You'd better not leave me alone with him when I'm like this. Oh, I know that I'm wicked, but isn't he wicked too, and who was wicked first?"

Patty's heart had been set on earning and saving enough pennies for a white muslin dress, and every day rendered the prospect more uncertain.

Waitstill's patience was flagging a trifle, too, under the stress of the hot days and the still hotter, breathless nights. The suspicion crossed her mind now and then that her father's miserliness and fits of temper might be caused by a mental malady over which he now had little or no control, having never mastered himself in all his life. Her power of endurance would be greater, she thought, if only she could be certain that this theory was true, though her slavery would be just as galling.

"I will not bear it."

It would be so easy for her to go away and earn a living. She who had never had a day of illness in her life, she who could sew, knit, spin, weave and cook. She could make enough money in Biddeford or Portsmouth to support herself and Patty, too, until the proper work was found for both.

But there would be a truly terrible conflict of wills, and such fierce arraignment of her unfilial conduct, such bitter and caustic argument from her father, such disapproval from the parson and the neighbors, that her very soul shrank from the prospect. If she could go alone and have no responsibility over Patty's future, that would be a little more possible, but she must think wisely for two.

And how could she leave Ivory when there might perhaps come a crisis in his life where she could be useful to him? How could she cut herself off from those Sundays in the choir, those dear, fugitive glimpses of him in the road or at prayer meeting? They were only sips of happiness, where her thirsty heart yearned for long, deep drafts, but they were immeasurably better than nothing

Freedom from her father's heavy yoke—freedom to work and read and sing and study and grow—oh, how she longed for this! But at what a cost would she gain it if she had to harbor the guilty conscience of an undutiful and rebellious daughter and at the same time cut herself off from the sight of the one being she loved best in all the world!

She felt drawn toward Ivory's mother today. Three weeks had passed since her talk with Ivory in the churchyard, but there had been no possibility of an hour's escape from home. She was at liberty this afternoon—relatively at liberty, for, although her work, as usual, was laid out for her, it could be made up somehow or other before nightfall. She could drive over to the Boyntons' place, hitch her horse in the woods near the house, make her visit, yet be in plenty of time to go up to the river field and bring her father home to supper.

Patty was over at Mrs. Abel Day's learning a new crochet stitch and helping her to start a log cabin quilt. Ivory and Rodman she knew were both away in the Wilson hayfield. No time would ever be more favorable. So, instead of driving up Town House hill, when she returned to the village she kept on over the bridge.

AMUSING FARCE TO BE PRESENTED

Comedy Club of Plainfield Has Selected Unusually Funny Play This Year.

HAS SCORED BIG HIT

"The Arrival of Kitty" Clever Three Act Show Has Record of Success for Eight Years—To Be Produced Under Author's Direction.

Although "The Arrival of Kitty," which will be presented by the Comedy Club of Plainfield at the Plainfield theatre on Thursday and Friday nights of this week, is a new play to local theatre-goers, it is by no means being given a tryout. It is from the pen of Norman Lee Swartout, who is also acting as the coach for the local players, and it has been presented 3,000 times in this country. The play is a screaming three act farce comedy, and it is handled by the most talented group of amateurs that has ever gotten together. The show has a record of eight years on the road, and a single actor has played the part of Bobbie Baxter, which will be taken by Brown Rolston in the local production, more than 2,000 times. The show is soon to be produced in England, and is being translated into German by Herr Kerrara, the best known woman impersonator in that country.

The show, which is being produced for the first time by amateurs, has received splendid criticisms by the nation's leading newspapers. The New York World said of its first performance, "The large audience at the West End theatre was kept constantly in laughter by 'The Arrival of Kitty.'"

Another newspaper which printed commendatory articles about the play was the Rochester Times Democrat, which said: "The play is a very clever and swiftly moving farce—it is all as light as air. The lines are very bright and the quips well turned." The Toledo Blade says the show is funnier than "Charley's Aunt," and that it goes with a snap and vim that ought to attract big crowds.

The Boston Globe describes it as "Sparkling with a breezy, wholesome comedy vein and teeming with unique situations." While the show is said to have "played a return engagement at the Academy last night, it is just as bright and snappy as ever, its humor is just as infectious and everything goes with the same swing and verve," in the Philadelphia Star.

Two of the leading parts are taken by Mr. and Mrs. Alson Abboth, both of whom have delighted Plainfield audience in "His Lord and Master" of 1913, "The Henrietta" of 1912, and "Trelawney of the Wells," of 1911. Mr. Abbott plays the part of the sporty uncle of Jane and friend of the musical comedy star, Kitty (Miss Elizabeth McGee). Mrs. Abbott in the play is irresistably funny, as his sister-in-law, who offers him ten thousand dollars to get her married off.

COLLECT $50 IN FINES FROM AUTOISTS

Fines aggregating $50 were imposed by City Judge William G. DeMeza in the city court, this morning, on six defendants charged with violating the State automobile laws, Sunday afternoon, April 19, when they were caught in a "drag-net" laid by Inspectors Shedd and Shinn near the Netherwood station. Leniency was shown by the court in each of the half dozen cases because of the fact that none were found to be flagrant. Carelessness in taking out licenses and vastly divergent ideas of speed were put up as a defense by the various offenders and all were shown clemency on their first appearance.

The drivers were apprehended here on April 19 by Patrolmen Kelley, Welsh, Flatley and McGinley and ordered to appear for hearing today. Seven were arrested but one failed to appear this morning and he will be brought to court tomorrow morning. The seventh offender is W. T. Powell, of Short Hills. In disposing of the cases Judge DeMeza reprimanded all of the offenders and told them that a second appearance would result in a much heavier fine and possible imprisonment. Inspector Shedd was in court this morning as complainant against the prisoners.

The following sentences were imposed: Ralph Snyder, driving automobile without a license, $5; R. A. Young, driving auto without a license, $5; Charles Humphries, driving auto without a license, $5; Otto Holmes, driving auto without a license, $5; Charles Dzeiksan, exceeding speed limit, $10; Vincent Terry and Leslie Lambert, exceeding speed limit on motorcycles, $10 each.

MUTINOUS OUTBREAK IN THE COUNTY JAIL

Prisoners Protest Against Food Being Given Them by the Warden.

Bedlam reigned in the prisoners' quarters in the Union county jail shortly after 5 o'clock this morning, shrieks and protests being lodged by the inmates against the food being given them. When the usual supply of rations was dealt out this morning the prisoners refused to touch it, claiming the bread was sour and the liquid food was not what it ought to be. The cries of the enraged prisoners attracted much attention from the residents in Union street, which adjoins the jail yard, and a crowd soon gathered outside the prison expecting an attempt to break jail by the inmates.

Order was soon established by the wardens, however, and an investigation on the part of the jail committee of the Board of Freeholders followed. During the time the fracas lasted the prisoners aroused the neighborhood by their protests but made no attempt to get away. The principal complaint appeared to be against the bread, which the inmates say has been sour for some weeks past.

During the last month many individual complaints have been filed by prisoners but the action on the part of the combined forces this morning was wholly unlooked for. The warden in the jail claims that the charges are groundless and that the inmates are receiving good, substantial food three times a day. The investigating committee returned a similar verdict this morning. The county provides forty-two cents a day for the maintenance of each prisoner in the institution and with this amount the jail authorities are supposed to provide adequate sustenance. A newspaper man who tasted the food this morning said that the part he was given was faultless.

BORO ENGAGES NEW PRINCIPAL

J. Frederick Aungst to Supervise North Plainfield Public Schools.

SUCCEEDS A. B. VOSSLER

New Appointee Comes From Hamburg, This State, and Has Had a Wide Experience—Pupils to Have Chance to Attend Charity Circus.

J. Frederick Aungst, of Hamburg, this State, was appointed supervising principal of the North Plainfield public schools, at a meeting of the Board of Education, last night. He will succeed A. B. Vossler, who will retire at the end of the school term after a service of two years in that capacity. The board announced that the selection of Mr. Aungst was made after careful consideration and a thorough investigation. Mr. Aungst has been holding a similar position at Hamburg. There were a large number of applications for the position.

Mr. Vossler recently announced that he would not be a candidate for re-appointment for another year. This action led to the rumor that he had had trouble with the corps of teachers in the borough schools, but no confirmation of this was to be had at the meeting of the board, last night. According to information obtained at the meeting last night Mr. Aungst has had an extensive experience in teaching school as well as supervision and the board expressed its gratification in being able to secure his services.

The board decided that in view of the fact that the circus to be given here on Monday is for the Open-Air School of Plainfield, but one session of the schools will be held so that the children who desire can attend the circus. The session as planned for the regular two session classes will be from 8:30 to 12:30, thus giving the pupils plenty of time to see the street parade as well as attend the matinee performance.

The other business of the evening was chiefly of a routine nature, there being an informal consideration of plans looking toward commencement to be held in June. There was also further discussion regarding proposed improvements to be made at the schools for the coming year. This work will be done during the summer months.

BOARD OF EDUCATION AWARD COAL CONTRACTS

The Board of Education at its meeting last night, awarded the contracts for supplying coal to the schools of the city to Wadley & Goodenough, The Consumers Coal Co. and the Boice, Runyon Co., all of Plainfield.

Wadley & Goodenough will supply the pea and stove sizes, the Consumers Co. got the contract for the buckwheat coal, and Boice, Runyon Co. will furnish the egg coal used. Between $2,500 and $3,000 is involved in these contracts.

BOARDS OF TRADE ARE AGITATING TROLLEY EXTENSION

Representatives of the Boards of Trade of this city and South Plainfield met at the office of Lamar VanSyckle, on Park avenue, yesterday afternoon, and arranged the details for their appearance before the Public Utilities Commission at Newark on Thursday. The question of the South Plainfield trolley line is to come before the Commission at that time for discussion.

The local representatives hope to be able to secure an extension of the trolley to South Plainfield, by presenting a weight of evidence before the Utilities Commission.

"DAVID COPPERFIELD."

Another treat is promised lovers of the best in motion pictures, when Dicken's "David Copperfield" will be shown at the Y. M. C. A., Friday and Saturday of this week. This great picture succeeded "Les Miserables," at Carnegie Lyceum, New York, where it is now being shown. It ranks high among the masterpieces of animated photography. It was made entirely in England and therefore visualizes not only the immortal characters of Dicken's great story, but also the quaint old English surroundings in which the story is set.

PLANNING TO RESUME HIGH SCHOOL WORK

Prospects for an early resumption of work on the High School addition looked bright last night, when the committee of local creditors of the P. J. Exner Company, the former contractor, attended a meeting of the Board of Education and the whole situation was thoroughly discussed.

It is reported on good authority that work will be resumed next week and pushed forward rapidly until completion. Three local builders of responsibility have indicated a desire to bid on the unfinished work on the building and the board will hold a special meeting next Friday night to receive their proposals.

In the meantime the legal aspects of the situation will be passed on by Judge Gilbert Collins, the counsel for the board, and matters pushed to a speedy settlement with the former contractor and the bonding company which guaranteed his contracts.

While protesting its legal and financial rights fully, the board has striven for the past two weeks to so arrange matters that the local creditors should receive fair treatment from the Exner Company claimants when the balance due on the completion of the building is distributed among them; and its action will undoubtedly result in much better terms for those who have put their labor and materials into the building than would have been the case if no opportunity had been afforded the creditors to learn the full facts of the situation and organize for their own protection.

SERVANTS THOUGHT THEY HEARD STRANGE NOISES

Servants in charge of F. O. Herring's home, 811 Third place, notified William F. Arnold, a neighbor, at an early hour this morning, that someone was prowling about the first floor of the house. Mr. Arnold notified the police department and an investigation followed, but no trace of the intruder could be found.

A window on the first floor was found open and there were evidences of someone having been in the place. The Herring family is out of town and servants have been left in charge.

QUESTION OF ALIMONY HELD UP

Special Master Instructed to Complete Inquiry in Hood Case.

DECISION ON JUNE 15

Permanent Allowance for Mrs. Hood Not to Be Made Until Property Matter is Settled on Appeal—Lively Argument of Counsel.

Newark, April 28.—The question of temporary alimony and counsel fees in connection with the divorce proceedings of Mrs. Frances Sparks Hood against Richard Haden Hood, was up on notice before Vice Chancellor Stevens here, today. It was shown that former Judge Clark McK. Whittemore, who as special master, appointed to inquire into the financial standing of Mr. Hood, had not completed his work, although his report to date comprises more than one thousand pages, and following an argument, the Vice Chancellor directed Mr. Whittemore to proceed with his work and requested him as well as counsel in the case to have the whole matter before him on June 15.

Chauncey G. Parker, of counsel for Mr. Hood, by his remarks cast some doubt on the efficacy of Mr. Whittemore's report now, since the divorce decree was granted on March 4 last. He said that Mr. Hood admitted being worth $85,000, and his counsel suggested $25 a week as a fair compensation as temporary alimony.

R. H. McCarter, of counsel for Mrs. Hood, said that Mr. Hood was reputed to be worth between $300,000 and $400,000, and he thought the allowance of alimony should be commensurate with the station of the couple.

The question of permanent alimony will not be decided by the Vice Chancellor until a decision in the property matter is reached. Mrs. Hood was given the residential property on Stelle avenue, by the court, but an appeal has been taken and until that is determined the question of permanent alimony will be held up by the Vice Chancellor.

COUNCILMAN STAHL SEEKS RECRUITS FOR MEXICAN WAR

Julius Stahl, of Somerset street, the borough, threw a scare into several of the borough male inhabitants of that "burg" within the course of the past few days by inviting them to enlist as marines for service in the Mexican War. Many were invited, but few responded. Mr. Stahl, however, secured a number of names of those who are interested. The present indications, however, seem to relieve the boroughites of any immediate worry.

HUERTA ACCEPTS MEDIATION; SEES HANDWRITING ON THE WALL

Fighting Stopped Pending Discussion of Terms—Americans Reported Safe Throughout All Mexico—Border Fight Over Powder House.

Washington, April 28 (Central News Dispatch).—General Huerta accepts in principle the offer of mediation. He thanks the Spanish ambassador for his service in the negotiations. He voices his appreciation of the good offices of the representatives in Washington of Brazil, Argentina and Chile and accepts them as a demonstration of the solidarity of the Spanish American peoples of the Western Hemisphere.

This is the belief of those who are of the optimistic clan in the Mexican crisis, but many officials here are skeptical that the dictator's acceptance of mediation is anything more than a subterfuge to get in time. Over night there has been a setting in of belief that the wily Huerta is preparing to tangle up the whole situation in clever and ingenuous diplomatic red tape. He did it before, until the snarl was cut by President Wilson's sharp demand for a "yes or no" reply to this government's demands.

This promised to be a day of conferences and deliberations. The Brazilian ambassador, with the ministers from Argentina and Chile, were expected early at the State Department. Senor Don D. Riano, the Spanish ambassador, who is looking out for Huerta's interests, also was looked to later in the day to bring important dispatches from Mexico City. Secretary Bryan appeared happier than he has been in weeks. The White House alone showed only a mild interest in the matter, apparently waiting until the sincerity of Huerta's eleventh hour decision was established by the diplomats. Brig. General Frederick Funston and his force of 4,000 troops will be landed today at Vera Cruz, it was announced at the War Department. The troop transports arrived off Vera Cruz last night, but did not land until this morning for reasons best known to General Funston. It is believed he did not care to essay a landing in the gathering darkness and, besides, it is possible that accommodations ashore had not been completely prepared for his men.

"We are not hampering General Funston with orders," said Secretary Garrison. "There was no necessity for a hurried landing, and undoubtedly Funston was guided by his knowledge of conditions."

The Navy Department has taken on an air of complacent calm in marked contrast to its feverish activity of the past ten days. All the ships of the fleet are concentrated off the Mexican coast or are under orders to proceed there, and nothing remains to be done except to keep moving carefully organized commissariat. Indeed, as Rear Admiral Badger reported from Vera Cruz, "The navy's work is nearly done, and well done."

Interest naturally centers in the work the diplomats are now about to undertake. Foreign representatives here, while non-committal are known to look upon the negotiations as foredoomed to failure. Huerta's announcement that under no circumstances would he relinquish power, it is pointed out, knocks the props from under any mediation that can be attempted, for this is President Wilson's chief demand.

AMERICANS SAFE.

Washington, April 28.—Consul Carrett, at Neuvo Laredo, says that all Americans are out of that district. 145 have arrived at Nogales from Torres, Consul Simpsich announced today, including 15 women. A trainload of refugees is expected today from Culiacan.

Yaleta, Texas, April 28.—United States troopers of the Fifteenth Cavalry, under Captain Eltinge, today drove back a band of armed Mexicans who had crossed the border and attempted to capture a large powder house, near here.

The approach of the invaders was seen by sentries, who opened fire. A troop of cavalry was ordered out, and there was a sharp skirmish for a few minutes, the Mexicans, also mounted, firing from the darkness from the brush. The troopers returned the fire, aiming at the rifle flashes of their assailants. The Mexicans escaped.

El Paso, April 28.—A cavalryman of A Troop, Thirteenth Regiment, was slightly wounded last night by shots fired from ambush by Mexican filibusters who were trying to capture a powder house twelve miles east of El Paso. This is the second attack of the kind this week. They were driven off.

Brownsville, Texas, April 28.—It is reported here by a refugee who arrived here today from Monterey on the first train between that city and the border for a year, that 100 Constitutionalists were killed and twice that number wounded in the recent attack upon that city. The Federal casualties also were said to be 300.

According to the report, the British flag is flying over the American consulate. In explanation Gen. Gonzales is quoted as saying that Consul General Hanna told him that the new American flag to replace the one torn down could not be raised without appropriate ceremonies.

Monterey was cut off from outside communication for two weeks before the Federal attack.

L. D. Bridge, a mining operator, who arrived last night, said that Guy Sawyer, an American, was struck by a shell during the bombardment and his back broken.

Two hundred refugees are expected from Monterey today.

Arlington, N. J., April 28.—S. B. Manchester, of this town, has received a letter from his brother, Charles, druggist, in Tampico, Mexico. It is dated April 11, and says in part:

"When they are through fighting outside the city the Mexicans leave their dead in the sun for days. Then they pile up the bodies and burn them. Several hanged constitutionalists can be seen swinging from ropes from our house. They have a pleasant little way here of cutting out a man's tongue, chopping off his fingers and gouging out his eyes before they finish him.

"Yet in the midst of this dandies walk about the streets, twirl their canes, polish their nails, flirt with the girls, while their own people are being tortured. Mr. Bryan thinks that with his grape juice policy he can reason with these people. On the firing line we are proud of being Americans. We call ourselves Chinamen because they get more protection from their government than we do.

"Continued troubled conditions have made everything expensive in Tampico. Milk sells for $3 a quart, eggs for $1.75 each, and potatoes for 75 cents a pound.

"There is a strong Anti-American feeling, thanks to Bryan, and we look forward to rioting at any time."

Vera Cruz, April 28.—If General Maas keeps his promise, the American and other foreign refugees held prisoners at Cordoba will be released today.

There are many women and children among the prisoners, and they have been huddled together in the jail with nothing to sleep on except the hard flags and entirely without sanitary provisions. The food, too, has been scarce and not of a good quality. Drunken jailers have not hesitated to insult the women, and the lives of all have been in danger constantly.

Vera Cruz, April 28—It was reported General Maas and his men are retreating from Soledad, where they stopped after evacuating Vera Cruz. Mexicans entering this city today said Maas is tearing up the railroad tracks and intends to destroy bridges as he retreats. Naval aviators will be sent up today to make a reconoissance in that direction.

Vera Cruz, April 28.—A court composed of United States army and navy officers today began the disposition of about 5,000 cases, the men having been held prisoners by the Mexican Federals, and having been found in the dungeons of San Juan de Ulua.

Many of the men found in cells had been there for long periods, and some were thought dead by relatives in Vera Cruz. Many had been imprisoned without trial, and hundreds are charged with political offences.

Prisoners already released were Fernando Iglesia Calderon, formerly of Monterey, a Liberal leader; Julia Hernandez Serrano, Herberto Casas, Alejandro Avila, Lieutenant Branja, Mario Olivares, and Jose Vasquez Olivares.

Colonel Aurelio Vigil, commander of the prison, voluntarily released the men, following an inspection of the place by the American officers. After the release of these men, the Mexican standard was drawn down, and the Stars and Stripes unfurled over the military prison and fort. Colonel Vigil surrendered his sword.

San Juan de Ulua was built in 1528 by the Spaniards. The foundations, sunk into the sea cost $4,000,000. The entire cost of the castle was $400,000,000.

Washington, April 28.—The entire Atlantic fleet will be sent through

Mr. Seals purchased a rosebush over the counter of one of the large and reliable New York seed houses last summer, brought it home and planted it in front of his residence on Front street. And, lo and behold! this very same bush, which still resembles what it was purchased for, has burst forth with cherry blossoms.

Four teams will roll in the Baraca Two-man Tournament on the Presbyterian alleys this evening. The games which the interest will center around will be the two games in which Mann and Zink will meet C. Braun and Hodge. If the Mann and Zink combination capture these two games they will be firmly entrenched in second place, whereas on the other hand, if they lose them they will be supplanted in that position by Braun and Hodge.

A typical New York newsboy dropped off the 1:14 train yesterday afternoon with an arm full of New York newspapers and aggressively wended his way through the principal streets of the borough crying "War Wuxtra! All about the burning of the American flag by the Mexicans." He quickly dispensed with all of his papers at three cents a piece, as against one cent, the regular price for the paper, and left the borough by the back-door route. It is safe to assume that the fellow will not venture within the borough limits again to dispose of his papers as the article which he was featuring contained no more than three inches of solid reading matter.

Somerville

The regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary Board of Somerset Hospital will be held at the Engine House, on Maple street, next Tuesday afternoon, at 3 o'clock. A card party will be given in Germania Hall on Thursday evening, May 14, for the benefit of the auxiliary, commencing at 8 o'clock. There will be whist and euchre, followed by dancing. Prizes will be offered and refreshments served.

Miss Laura E. Hoagland was a week-end guest of Mrs. R. V. Meeks, of New York city.

Mrs. F. W. Miller, of West High street, is visiting friends at Hempstead, L. I.

Mrs. H. P. Hoagland is visiting relatives in Newark.

A new house is being erected in Richards Park, while three of those already built have ben rented, and will be occupied at once. This property is now within the borough lines, as extended east, and the houses have all the modern improvements, including gas and electric lights. Substantial cement sidewalks have also been laid in front of the property and also on the connecting streets.

William Taylor, Jr., has moved his family from South street to one of the Hoffman houses on North Bridge street.

Benefit performances will be given at the Bijou theatre this afternoon and evening for the Public Library.

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Osbourn are spending two weeks at Atlantic City.

The History Club was entertained yesterday afternoon at the Country Club by Mrs. Robert Jeffcott.

Company M, Second Regiment, N. G. N. J., of Somerville, held an interesting smoker in its armory last night, in commemoration of the sixteenth anniversary of the call to arms for the Spanish-American war of 1898. The exercises followed the regular weekly drill. Incidentally, it was mentioned that the exercises also commemorated the birthday of General Ulyses S. Grant.

The exercises also were in the nature of a farewell reception to Captain Albert E. Case, who recently resigned as commander of the company, after a service of six years as its head, although he had for fourteen years been a member of the company. His resignation as captain has as not yet been accepted, but it is thought that he will receive his release in a few days, and in the meantime First Lieutenant Andrew G. Kohler is in command of the company.

Lieutenant Kohler presided at the exercises which followed the drill, and addresses were delivered by Captain Case, who spoke at some length of his connection with the company; Second Lieutenant Herbert L. Davis, Captain S. F. D. Meffely, of Company M, Second Ohio Infantry; S. A. Holmstrup, formerly of the Connecticut Coast Artillery, and a member of the Danish regular army, and now a generalissimo in the Ancient International Guard, and now a resident of Somerville, former Sergeant Roy Houston, representing the Spanish-American war veterans, now a resident of Wilkes-Barre, Pa.; William S. Woodruff and others, of Somerville.

An abundance of refreshments were served, and a general social time followed. The company is now recruiting a number of new members in anticipation of being called out for active service in the Mexico war, and a number of the Spanish-American war veterans have also expressed their intention of re-enlisting if their services are needed.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward O'Donnell, of this place, celebrated the tenth anniversary of their wedding at their home on South street, last night. Guests in large numbers were present, and a general good time resulted. Mr. and Mrs. O'Donnell were the recipients of a number of pretty and useful gifts.

SLIDES DOWN POLE WHILE BALANCED ON HIS HEAD

So much has been said about the local features in the circus which is to be given next Monday for the benefit of the Open-Air School, that the professional end has been somewhat neglected. The committee in charge of the affair have arranged with the Frank A. Robbins Shows, one of the best known tented organizations in the country, with a thirty-four years' record, to furnish the performance, and the acts which they will provide are all of the highest class. The feature this year is a slide for life by The Great Charbino, who balances on top of his head and slides down a long pole from the top of the tent to the ground. The act is an entirely new one to the Robbins show, and has never before been seen with a circus in this country. The act has been secured at great expense by Mr. Robbins, but is only one of many unusual things which will be seen with the circus when it comes here. The show has been greatly enlarged and improved this year. The parade, which takes place every morning at 10 o'clock, has many new features, the menagerie has been nearly doubled in size, and the program of acts provided by a big group of stars of the canvas dome, and a score of bright fun makers keeps the audience interested for a straight two hours. Prior to both the afternoon and evening performances there will be concerts by the Robbins Concert Band.

Reserved seat tickets for the performance are on sale at the Daily Press office, and there has been a lively demand for them, but there are many good seats left for both afternoon and evening performances.

BARONESS VON TURK-ROHN TO GIVE POPULAR PROGRAM

Baroness Olga von Turk-Rohn, the world's famous soprano, "Europe's greatest songbird," will give a joint recital in Columbus Hall tomorrow evening with Professor Hermann Spielter, the noted composer and piano soloist. The Baroness and Professor Spielter will appear in the Somerville Theatre this evening, prior to their appearance here. After their Plainfield engagement they give concerts in Montclair, Elizabeth, Newark, Princeton, Red Bank, Morristown, Trenton and Carnegie Hall, New York, which closes their engagement for the season. The Baroness sails for Germany in June where she gives three concerts, returning in the month of August, when she will fill the following engagements which are now booked. Newport, Marthas Vineyard, Asbury Park, Atlantic City and other coast resorts, and will then make a tour of the United States and Canada beginning next fall.

Some surprise has been expressed regarding this eminent artist's plan to abandon even but temporarily, the operatic stage for the concert platform. The Baroness is not a stranger to concert audiences, she having given any number of recitals in the royal castles and palaces of the Old World, in fact, before every crowned head of Europe. One of her engagements when she appears in Germany this summer is at the Imperial palace at Wilhelmshoe. The many press tributes that she has received and favors bestowed upon her by the royalty of Europe speak eloquently of the esteem in which she is held abroad. The beauty of her voice has been compared to that of Patti and Melba, and we wonder if her appearance in Somerville this evening is not to compare her voice with that of one of their local artists, who is now singing in Grand Opera, and where the audience would naturally be prejudiced in favor of the local idol, if public opinion there would be in favor of the Baroness it certainly will be a great victory for her.

ESTABLISH A POLICY.

Members of the City Council have a splendid chance to commit themselves definitely on the liquor question, in the ordinance which has been introduced by Councilman Calkins. Any one who says that he believes in the city's excellent policy of regulation and then votes against the Calkins' measure brands himself as insincere, by showing that he is against a clear definition of the entire question, as provided in the proposed ordinance.

The principal protests against any extension of the number of licenses in Plainfield during the past two years have come from the Federation of Men's Clubs, representing the various churches of the city. That federation numbers among its membership hundreds who do not believe in prohibition, and who think that the Plainfield system of regulating the liquor traffic is as near perfect as it is possible to have such regulation. Probably a large majority of these men have little or no use for liquor, but they recognize that it is impossible to stamp out the traffic entirely, and that strict regulation is the next alternative. That we have in the city of Plainfield now, but with the natural growth, there is sure to be a demand for more licensed places.

It is to provide for this growth, and yet to keep the number of new licenses down that Mr. Calkins has introduced his measure. It cannot be defined as anything but a temperance move. Any one knowing Mr. Calkins knows that he would not be identified with any legislation which is not meritorious.

It seems to us that a good plan might be for the executive committee of the Federation of Men's Clubs to hold a meeting, and have Mr. Calkins and perhaps some of the other councilmen speak to them about the proposed ordinance. It is our belief that when the men in this organization realize just what the measure means, they will give it their undivided support, and they have influence enough to have it passed. If they become convinced that it is really a temperance measure, as its introducer believes, the only opposition that will be left will be that of the liquor interests. They, perhaps, would prefer to leave the matter open, hoping some day to get six votes for more licenses, thus breaking up time-honored custom in Plainfield, and perhaps throwing down the bars to such an extent that several new places will be permitted to open. And this is not so impossible, either, for we understand that twice in two years the liquor interests have had five votes in a Council conference, so our splendid temperance policy is by no means free from danger, even now.

Even if the Federation of Men's Clubs does not see fit to take up the matter with Mr. Calkins, the City Council members have an excellent opportunity to show whether or not they are at heart in favor of the present splendid Plainfield policy, which for the sake of the fair name and reputation which this city enjoys, should be permanently maintained.

LONG WINDED PHONE USERS.

Telephone manners are sometimes not all they should be. People who would not think of being impolite, and who never get impatient when talking face to face with others, sometimes display rudeness over the phone, which would not be the case if they gave a second thought to what they were saying. People on party wires have a habit of calling up friends elsewhere, and carrying on conversations which last anywhere from five minutes to three-quarters of an hour, and during which they ignore the rights of others who may be unfortunate enough to be on the same party wire. This latter, is probably the rudest thing of all, and is often the result of thoughtlessness and nothing else. There have been cases in Plainfield, we are told, where some people have been so longwinded in their conversations that others on the wire have had to ask the telephone company to put them on another wire.

Up in Massachusetts the Public Service Commission has received so many complaints from telephone users about the "friendly visits" which are paid via the telephone, that the Commission has asked the phone company to admonish its patrons. If this fails, it is said that the commission will put regulations into force which will prevent long drawn out conversations. The trouble seems to be that no one likes to offend another by ringing off. If two persons are face to face they have their say, and then stop the conversation, but everyone seems to be afraid of offending the person on the other end of the line by shutting off a phone conversation. The wire is kept busy hundreds of times daily by persons who really have finished saying all they had to say, just because they do not wish to be impolite.

The proverbial clam has nothing on "our Jim" so far as silence is concerned when he is tackled on the postoffice question.

the Panama Canal should the Mexican situation warrant the removal of the ships from this coast. The purpose is believed to be to assemble the entire naval strength of the United States on the Pacific to test the usefulness of the canal, and also to demonstrate to Japan how formidable our navy it. Colonel Goethals says they can go through by May 1 and that all ships can go through by July 1.

Washington, April 28.—The Federals and the Constitutionalists are still fighting at Tampico, Admiral Mayo cabled the Navy Department today. The Federal forces are using every effort to persuade the rebels to join them against the United States, but without success.

Major Clarke, in command of the marines on the British ship Hermione, has gone to Orangehill, forty miles inland, to rescue eight Americans stranded there.

Washington, April 28.—Secretary Daniels explained today that the naval forces of the United States have been withdrawn from Tampico because persons intimately in touch with the situation told Admiral Mayo that the safety of foreigners depended on the fleet lying well away from the town. The Mexicans think that war is in progress and were trying to get rebels and federals together.

Vera Cruz, April 28—It is expected that General Funston will land the 4,000 troops he brought with him and which are now on the vessels in the harbor, today.

The entire land force will come under the command of General Funston. The bluejackets will return to their ships, but it is likely that the marines will remain ashore at least for some time yet. With his own forces, this will give General Funston about 7,000 men.

Paris, April 28 (Central News Cable)—Ex-President Reyes, of Colombia, who is in Paris, informed the correspondent of the Central News today that he had despatched telegrams to President Wilson, Secretary Bryan and Provisional President Huerta, of Mexico, suggesting the advisability of their using the undoubtedly powerful moral authority of ex-President Porfirio Diaz in the task of reaching an amicable solution of the Mexican embroglio.

The Brazilian minister says that all Americans in Mexico City are being treated with consideration, none are in danger, and only one has been arrested and that was the result of a judicial proceeding.

Consul Canada at Vera Cruz says the Americans are being treated O. K. at Cordoba. The American women are quartered in the hotel, and the men in the Commandancio.

London, April 28.—Foreign Secretary Grey said today in the House of Common, in replying to a question: "The Mexican situation is giving the British government great concern, owing to Great Britain's enormous commercial interests in Mexico. This government will encourage any proposal to mediate the difficulty between the United States and Mexico."

New York, April 28.—The report that there would be mediation with Huerta did not in the least check operations at the Brooklyn navy yard. The gunboats Machias, Marietta and Isla de Luzon were placed in commission. Finishing touches were put on the cruiser Washington, and she will probably sail this morning.

Work on the Texas and the Wyoming is being pushed with all speed. They will be ready to leave the yard by May 11 at the latest, and it is thought that the Wyoming will be ready by May 7.

The steamship Washingtonian is loading supplies for the fleet. The armored cruiser Tennessee, now at Philadelphia, is expected to Brooklyn today, and the Tonopah, a monitor and tender for submarines, is expected from Norfolk.

The commandant has been in constant communication with the New York between here and Newport and, so far as is reported, she made the trip all right.

It is teinded to hold drills each day in Prospect Park, at which the sailors and marines from the vessels will manoeuvre.

WASHINGTON TO SPEAK HERE.

Booker T. Washington will visit Plainfield on May 12 in the interest of Tuskegee Institute. He will address two meetings, one at the Plainfield Theatre and the other at the Crescent Avenue church.

PRESIDENT CONFERS ON STRIKE SITUATION

Seven Guards Killed Today in Fight Among Colorado Miners.

Washington, April 28—Just before the cabinet met today President Wilson had a lengthy conference on the Colorado strike situation, with Secretary Garrison and Chairman Foster, of the House mines and mining committee. No decision on sending Federal troops into the disturbed district was reached. Mr. Foster related to the President the flat refusal of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., whom he appealed to in New York yesterday, to interfere with the campaign against the striking miners being undertaken by the managers of his mining property.

The Colorado delegation in the House and Senate will stick to their original proposition that the only way to quell disturbances in the mine regions in Colorado is to send Federal troops there.

Denver, Colo., April 28—Fighting resumed in Walsenburg at McNally mine, captured by strikers, and at Walson mine this morning. Sheriff Farr says seven mine guards were killed according to the guard captain. Fifty militiamen arrived at Walsenburg early from Ludlow but are outnumbered ten to one. Sheriff fears for their safety. At Louisville, 20 miles north of Denver, acording to 'phone from the District Attorney, streets are filled with a mob of miners, who are shooting in every direction. Operators have machine guns in hills nearby but fear shooting into the city unless non-combatants be killed. Attack is directed against Heela mine.

Riots and battles between strikers, mine guards, strike breakers and with the Colorado State militia, blazed forth early today all through the coal fields in the southern part of the State.

All during the night there was desultory firing on the part of the strikers, and at dawn, the guards started their daily clean up to dislodge the "snipers" from the hillsides and tent cities about the various camps.

In a number of cases telegraph and telephone wires between the small coal camps, and the larger communities were cut sometime during the night, and details of proceedings cannot be obtained. It is not known if the wires were cut by order of the mining companies, to prevent news of the battle reaching the outside world, or if strikers were responsible in an attempt to prevent the mine guards from getting outside help.

Sheriff Farr, of Huerfano county, reported four men had been killed near the Walsen mine. It was reported Louisville is on fire.

BENCH SHOW IN SAN FRANCISCO.

San Francisco, Cal., April 28.—Blue-blooded dogs to the value of more than one million dollars were placed on display today at the opening of the annual bench show of the Golden Gate Kennel Club. There are more dogs entered and they are of a higher class than at any of the previous shows given in this city. Several breeds of dogs never before shown in California are included among the exhibits. The show will continue three days.

SUES TO RECOVER MONEY INVESTED

Newark, April 28—Fred Stern, of 193 Grand street, Newburg, N. Y., president of the Newburg Chamber of Commerce, has brought suit against the Vitaphone Company, a Delaware corporation, with a factory in Plainfield, in which he seeks to recover money invested in the stock of the company.

In the suit which is brought in the Supreme Court, through his counsel, Jacob L. Newman, Mr. Stern sets forth that the company "invaded" Newburg, selling stock giving the impression that it intended to build a factory at that place to build cabinets for its machines. The motors and metal parts being made in Plainfield it was planned, it is alleged, to ship the parts to Newburg to mount on the cabinets.

The complainant, according to the papers in the suit, states that he purchased fifty shares of stock for $500 receiving twenty shares as bonus. The company did not locate at Newburg, hence the suit to recover money invested.

The defense of the company, which is represented by William N. Runyon, of Plainfield, is said to be that the people of Newburg did not support the proposition as expected and that it was not warranted in erecting a factory in that city.

SCOOP IS VERY SENSITIVE ABOUT HIS LOOKS

When Brunswick Started to Puncture Denny's Delivery.

"SPORTDOM TIPS"

Announcement of Fred Ritter's death comes as a shock to the many friends he made among local baseball fans while performing in Queen City regalia. When last seen in this city he was the picture of health and was an object of considerable admiration in a baseball uniform because of his Herculean frame. As a twirler he had few equals in semi-professional baseball prior to his mishap in the Baltimore park in the spring of last year and all who saw him hailed him as a twirler of great promise. Ritter was twenty-two years of age and started his career as a pitcher while a member of the Stuyvesant High School aggregation. Ritter's promising career has been nipped in the bud and the youngster has passed away while in the prime of youth.

According to a Plainfield High School news correspondent "The girls of the P. H. S. basketball team will hold a reception next Saturday night and each member of the squad will be invited to bring two gentlemen admirers of the sport." Those feminine athletes will have to do some tall figuring to keep the surplus of male talent busy during the evening. We wonder how there're going to make things break even.

Jupiter Pluvius mediated with the baseball managers yesterday and as a result the Plainfield High School ball chasers took up the sport where it was suddenly curtailed Saturday afternoon. The scholastic diamond season is all too short to be interrupted by the rain god and unless he keeps hidden in his berth behind the clouds some serious trouble is pretty likely to result. Now's the time to stage the scholastic battles, why not take advantage of the good weather conditions?

Plainfield has a number of expert canoe paddlers enrolled in its midst and these water sports should come to the fore now that an opportunity has opened up in this branch of sport. The New Jersey canoe championships give promise of setting a precedent in this popular summer pastime and it might be appropriate for Plainfield to break into the list of "among those present." Several local paddle wielders have captured prizes at summer resorts in other years and the State title regatta should be tempting to these athletes.

Hats off to New Brunswick High School cinder path representatives. The athletes from the little town by the old Rar-i-tan showed up strongly in the Penn Relay carnival Saturday afternoon and brought some country wide prominence to their alma mater. Taking first place from the Ocean City, Camden and Philadelphia School of Trades High Schools, was no sinecure, but the Brunswick fliers came out with colors flying. No wonder our Plainfield High School track team is steering clear of this bunch of huskies from Middlesex. We would like nothing better than to see them in action on Parker Field, however, and it would probably not be hard to induce them to show themselves in the wilds of the Queen City some Saturday afternoon.

Mordecai Brown, better known as "Three Fingered" Brown, often attributed his wonderful curves to his lack of digits. The latest pitcher for whom a physical peculiarity is said to work wonders is Burr, the young recruit of the Yankees. According to Charlie Barrett, the former Detroit player, Burr throws a natural curve on account of a bend in his right arm. This bend is not the result of a break, but simply due to the fact that the young man's arm chooses to grow in a curve rather than in a straight line. The drop, which, it is said, most pitchers find difficulty in throwing, is declared to be easy for Burr. His team mates have christened him "The man with the bowlegged arm."

The fact that the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team was one of the three aggregations able to defeat the Deaf Mute College team of Trenton, during the past season reflects with credit on the work of the local Association five. The schedule of the silent workers was an unusually formidable one and they may well be heralded as a set of the speediest basketball players in the State.

TWO BIG ROUNDS WON THE GAME

North Plainfield High School Pitcher Weakens and Relief Comes Too Late.

GAME WAS A SWATFEST

Both Combatent do Some Hard Slugging—Stahl Sent to the Rescue all Too Late to Stem the Tide of Defeat—Denny not in Best Form.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team met a bunch of hard sluggers yesterday afternoon, when the Rutgers Prep nine appeared on Hyde Oval. They went home with the long end of a 10 to 3 score. The team could bon hit and field and after the first inning they had things their own way up to the finish. The game was fast in every respect, the locals being guilty of only four errors and the visitors of but two. Denny started for the boroughites and went six periods before he was benched by Captain Smalley. The "Canadians" had a change in their lineup, Burner on first, Dilts playing short and VanMater behind second base.

Denny started off well and blanked the invaders in the opener while the locals scored once in their half of this inning. The opposing pitcher was wild at the start and pitched ten balls to the first three batters before he managed to put one over the centre. The "Prep" boys tied the score in the second and both teams were goose-egged in the third. The fourth proved to be an unlucky inning for the borough team and with one error and three hits their opponents scored four times. Nothing more happened until the sixth came around and then the home team tock on a balloon ascension. Six hits in a row, one of which was a double, went all over the field and this time there were five runs to the visitors' credit. The local boys were blanked for five straight innings and in the sixth they came across with a pair on two hits and a stolen base.

When the seventh inning started Stahl was in the box for the boys across the brook and he had all the stuff that a pitcher needs. Steam and perfect control were his standbys and he proved that he could pitch by striking out the first three men to face him. Only one hit was made off his delivery and that was a single in the ninth. The locals had a fine chance to score in the seventh, but McGovern's fine catch and double play retired them. After the first inning Landsburg twirled invincible ball and had his opponents swinging in all directions. He was also given great support by his teammates. McGovern and Hasbrouck each pounded out three hits for the Rutgers team, while Smalley did the best batting for the locals, getting a single and a double.

EARLY LEAD NO HELP TO RIVAL

HITTING A FEATURE

Both Teams Clouted the Ball Hard During the Nine Innings—Local Team's Fielding a Revelation—Roselle Poor on Fielding.

The Plainfield High School baseball team broke its losing streak yesterday afternoon by defeating Roselle High School by the score of 7 to 5. Neither team played a very fast game of baseball, although Plainfield only made two errors, while the Roselle boys had eight scored up against them. The hits were plentiful, Roselle getting ten, including a three bagger by H. Davis and a two-base clout by Ostrander. Plainfield clouted out nine hits, one of which was a two bagger by Apgar. There were few sensational plays, although VanDeventer came across with a pretty one-hand stop in left field.

Plainfield was given a big scare in the first inning before Sminck had struck his stride, when Roselle had three runners cross the plate. Simpson, the first man walked, and Chynawith struck out. Simpson then went to third on G. Davies single. H. Davis singled, scored Simpson and G. Davies. G. Benedict hit to Sminck who knocked the ball down, but Benedict reached first and H. Davies second. Wheeler singled, but H. Davies was caught at the plate. W. Benedict hit between first and second and Meyer singled to left field scoring G. Benedict. Ostrander then ended the rally by flying out to Victorson. In the second inning Sminck struck his stride and Roselle never became dangerous during the rest of the game, but they scored a run in the third and seventh inning.

Plainfield scored in the first, second, fourth and sixth innings, but their big inning was the sixth, when they scored four runs. VanDeventer, the first man up, hit a long fly to center field which Meyer muffed. He stole second and scored on Rosenson's single. Butler flied out to left field. Victorson reached first base on an error by H. Davies, Rosenson going to second. Apgar doubled to center field scoring Rosenson and Victorson. Sminck struck out and Apgar stole third and scored on Dunham's single. Dunham stole second, but O'Leary grounded out, G. Benedict to G. Davies, ending the rally. This ended the scoring for Plainfield, but it had put them in the lead and they had scored enough runs to sew up the game.

TRIPLE TIE FOR TOP RUNG PERCH

Three teams are now tied for the top rung honors in the Elks' Club bowling tourney, Cose, Campbell and Stout being the leaders of the first rung occupants. Campbell and his crew crept into the Hall of Fame, last night, by snatching two out of the three encounters with the Stout array of talent, the first and third issues going to the former combination.

The first game last night resulted in a fifty-five pin verdict for the Campbell men and the rival combination came back with a win by a margin of twelve pins in the midway issue. The rubber contest went to the Campbell contingent with a margin of seventy-five iron men. Campbell hung up the individual high score mark of the evening with a 205 recorded in the second tilt.

YEA BO! THERE'S BEEN AN ERUPTION

Smalley Fires Becker and Becker Says "I'll Hand in My Resignation."

A wordy fracas that for a few minutes resembled a clash on the Mexican border, took place preceding the stretch stanza of the North Plainfield-Rutgers Prep. baseball game on Hyde Oval yesterday afternoon, between Captain Ralph Smalley, of the borough ball nine, and Coach Fred Becker, until yesterday affiliated with the same combination. When young Denny took an aerial ascension near the midway post Smalley dispatched "Germany" Stahl post-haste to the warming up pit.

So wild did Denny become in the sixth cantor that Smalley requested Coach Becker to send the rescue artist to the rifle pit, but Becker pulled off a piece of dramatics at this suggestion in which he intimated that he was "running the team and Smalley (although captain) had nothing to do with the ousting of played-out material." Smalley took this announcement with a grain of salt for the time being, but when Denny got to the stage where he started heaving the globule a mile and a half over the home dock the borough captain came through with a piece of strategy that put a different aspect on the whole encounter.

Smalley hung out the red flag and with proceedings halted he sent the "C. Q. D." signal of distress to Stahl, who by this time had his hook, slant, sinker, bend, twister and roundhouse working in excellent style. The big German's advent on the playing arena caused Becker a little distress and when he announced that he would quit should Smalley send Stahl to the slab the N. P. H. S. catcher retorted "Then quit."

Here ended the tale, for Becker wended his way from the diamond and was lost forever in a few minutes to the cohorts of the red and black.

Becker's retirement left an athletic plum unpicked over in "Canada" and the discovery of one Tommy Mullin lurking around the village loose last night solved the tangle that resulted from the upheaval to the satisfaction of all concerned. Henceforth Mullin will handle the destinies of the boroughites and will direct the pastiming of the North Plainfield High School color bearers in the shoes vacated by Becker yesterday afternoon.

Smalley's convictions were proven beyond a doubt in the next and succeeding rounds, however, when Stahl stepped to the mound and proceeded to mow down the opposition on strikes. Three men in the seventh fell by the wayside after putting three big dents in the atmosphere and the first man in the eighth repeated the stunt.

GODD CHANCE FOR DENNY.

Daniel Denny, pitcher for the North Plainfield High School baseball team, has a good chance of making the position of mascot of the New York Giants for the coming season. Denny has been to New York several times for interviews with Secretary John B. Foster and Manager McGraw and was in the Polo Grounds, Saturday, and played for some time with the big men. There is only one other person against Denny for the position and it is very likely that the local boy will land the job. He is going to the city for the last time next Saturday and then he will get the final decision.

HIGH BRIDGE TOMORROW.

The borough High School baseball team will go to High Bridge tomorrow afternoon to cross bats with the team of that place. The boroughites are especially anxious to meet this team as it is coached by B. J. Phelps, who was formerly principal of the local school. He has put out a good team this year and expects to make his old scholars go the limit. The team will leave on the 2 o'clock train.

LOCAL PILOT WILL ENTER BIG MEETS

Edson Woodhull, of this city, is making preparations to compete in the weekly motorboat races of the Lake Hopatcong Boat Club during the coming season and will leave shortly for the lake to put his racing boat in condition for the schedule of events. Woodhull is the owner of the "Skipper," a boat that has a reputation as a speeder on the Hopatcong waters and made a formidable showing in racing events last year.

The local pilot expects to install a new engine in the boat this summer and when completed the water steed will be capable of thirty-one knots an hour, according to the owner. Last year the boat cut the water at a clip of twenty-eight knots and the overhauling is expected to add at least three knots to its ability.

Saturday afternoon meets are conducted throughout the summer season by the yacht club of that place and some especially tempting trophies have been offered for the racing during June, July and August. Woodhull anticipates getting into the prize list and will leave several weeks before the season opens in order to have his craft tuned up for the prize tests.

WATCHUNG COUNCIL STILL HOLDING DOWN SIXTH PLACE

Watchung Council, Knights of Columbus pinners, are still holding down sixth place in the Knights of Columbus Eastern Championships Tournameent now being conducted on Thum's alleys in New York city. With only one more week to go the Castillian team, of New York city, is leading.

None of the local bowlers are among those recorded in the leading list of individual record holders. Star of Bethlehem team, of Newark, has recorded the high team score mark with a 959.

DUNN SIGNS M'AVOY, WILL RELEASE LIDGATE

Manager Johnny Dunn, of the Baltimore Orioles, has finally succeeded in landing Jim McAvoy, one of the surplus catchers on Connie Mack's string this year, and it is now probable that Eugene Lidgate, the Fanwood boy, will go back to the Raleigh team for further seasoning. Dunn has been dickering for McVoy's services all spring and made a statement last week to the effect that he intended to let Lidgate go as soon as he found a man with more experience.

In the two games in which Liddy participated last week he did some good backstop work but Dunn harbors the opinion that the Fanwood youth needs further training before breaking into the International League. McAvoy reported to Baltimore yesterday and caught one of the games of a double header.

ROD AND REEL

Willow Brook, in Monmouth county, is a good stream to try for big trout just as soon as the weather settles. This brook is in a sparsely settled section, about two miles from Bradevelt, on the Central Railroad. Hop Brook is another good one in the same direction.

Swimming river and its several tributaries is producing some fine trout fishing for the knowing ones these days. Automobile parties reach the Yellow Brook tributary from Freehold and Colt's Neck, and they report plenty of big fish.

Every line the writer receives about the weakfish brings them closer to New Jersey. They are now being caught south of Hatteras, and would have been further north if the wind hadn't come out of the northeast Saturday morning.

Our man-o'-war boys now in Vera Cruz harbor may not find time to do any fishing, but they are just in a spot for pompano and big bullheads. The latter are a specie of catfish that grow to weigh forty and fifty pounds, and when hooked on a bluefish squid, baited with salt pork, they put up a great fight if the angler is in a rowboat. The pompanos are not much for sport, but they are fine eating.

Flounder fishing, wherever it was indulged in, was very good last week, and it will be even better this week, as the weather is sure to become a trifle warmer, although a cold wave is predicted for tomorrow and Thursday. Flounders are now all out of the mud, and as long as the weather is not too warm they will stay with us. Bergen Beach, The Raunt, Goose Creek and Hammels Station in Jamaica Bay were well fished last week and thousands of flat fish were taken.

The salmon is one of the most fastidious fishes concerning its surroundings. That is why there are fewer salmon in the Penobscot every year, despite all that the State and Federal governments have been able to do in the way of artificial propagation.

All species of Pacific salmon have been hatched in the Government plant in East Orland, the latest experiment, now in progress, seeking to introduce the humpback salmon, but up to this time all efforts in that direction have failed. Should the present experiment prove a success, the Penobscot will have plenty of a smaller and rather inferior fish, but the scientists seem unable to arrest the steady diminution of the native species.

The tools for trout fishing are simple and not necessarily expensive, although some spend hundreds of dollars upon their outfit. If one limits his sport to bait fishing he saves considerable expense upon special casting lines, leaders and flies. Indeed, while a casting rod is admirably adapted for bait fishing, one can do very well in the latter line with a cheap rod, which could not possibly be used for fly casting.

Those who, through economy of time and expense, do not wish to go far out on Long Island for trout may visit the stream feeding Kissena Lake, between Jamaica and Flushing. It can be reached by trolley from the city to Jamaica, and then for an additional nickel to Kissena Lake. For the first half mile above the lake the stream winds through a bad marsh and is difficut fishing, but it holds many good trout. Further up it is more easily fished. Last season some eighteen-inch trout, as well as many smaller ones, were taken from that stream.

GAME POSTPONED.

Manager Charles Beckman, of the North Plainfield High School baseball team, received word yesterday that the Bernardsville game that was to be played at that place on Thursday would have to be postponed because of conflictions of the other man's schedule. The game will be arranged for a later date. This is always a popular trip with the local team as it is always made by stage and a large crowd of rooters generally accompany them.

RULE TO SHOW CAUSE CONTINUED TO MAY 25

Trenton, April 28.—Chancellor Walker, today, continued until May 25 the rule to show cause against Winfield S. Angleman, of Plainfield, why he should not be disbarred from the practice of law for alleged malpractice.

The order of the rule to show cause followed Mr. Angleman's alleged failure to prosecute diligently a petition for divorce after he had accepted a fee, and former Assistant Attorney-General Nelson B. Gaskill was assigned to prosecute the proceedings against the Plainfield lawyer.

According to an affidavit made by Mrs. Belle Overbaugh, of Plainfield, she engaged him to institute proceedings against Walter T. Overbaugh, her husband, on the ground of desertion. That was on November 6, 1906, and it is alleged that no further action was taken until January, 1910, when Mr. Angleman applied for an order of reference and it was denied.

CHRISTIAN FIELD.

The Young People's Society of the German Reformed church will hold a special meeting tomorrow evening, after the missionary service to be held at that time. Rev. George Drach will be the speaker of the evening.

Under the direction of the young women of the First Baptist church, the evangelistic missionary topic, "Can the World be Won for Christ?" will be discussed this afternoon at the church.

The regular spring rally and election of officers of the local Christian Endeavor Union will be held Tuesday evening, May 19. A meeting of the congress will be held May 14.

The twenty-first annual meeting of the National Flower, Fruit and Plant Guild will be held at the American Museum of Natural History, Thursday. The morning session will be held from 10 to 12 o'clock, and the afternoon session from 2 to 4 o'clock. It is expected that several members of the local guild will attend.

The Ladies Aid Society of the Swedish Lutheran church will hold a box and package social on May 16.

Rev. Charles L. Goodrich, pastor of the Congregational church, will speak at the Wednesday evening prayer service on "God's Work with Man." The meeting will be in charge of the Men's Bible class.

A dramatic entertainment will be given by Mrs. Whiton's Bible class of the Congregation church Friday evening, for the benefit of the parish house.

All the skirts have the fashionable long overdress. Some have the new fitted yoke which gives a slender silhouette.

We shall have nearly three hundred of these suits in all sizes in either black or blue, tomorrow, Wednesday.

Some of our own models have been price-lowered.

FEW FOLKS HAVE GRAY HAIR NOW

Druggist Says Ladies Are Using Recipe of Sage Tea and Sulphur.

Hair that loses its color and lustre, or when it fades, turns gray, dull and lifeless, is caused by a lack of sulphur in the hair. Our grandmother made up a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur to keep her locks dark and beautiful, and thousands of women and men who value that even color, that beautiful dark shade of hair which is so attractive, use only this old-time recipe.

Nowadays we get this famous mixture by asking at any drug store for a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," which darkens the hair so naturally, so evenly, that nobody can possibly tell it has been applied. Besides, it takes off dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; but what delights the ladies with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur is that, besides beautifully darkening the hair after a few applications, it also brings back the gloss and lustre and gives it an appearance of abundance.—Adv.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Kidney and bladder weakness result from uric acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in avoiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it, because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is splendid for kidneys and causes no bad effects whatever.

MARGARET LAWRENCE

A DAISY DESIGN FOR BUREAU-SCARF AND PIN-CUSHION.

One should always have a dainty hand-embroidered bureau-scarf with a pin-cushion to match, for the guest-room. This is quite essential, for nothing improves the appearance of a room as dainty, fresh coverings for a bureau.

This daisy design, No. 14603, should be developed in solid work and eyelets in white on a scarf of fine linen or lawn. It is also appropriate for use on a sideboard-scarf of fine, firm, round-thread linen. Mercerized cotton should be used for the embroidery, as it launders much better than silk and does not turn yellow.

The bureau-scarf design is 21 by 42 inches and the wreath for the pin-cushion-cover is 5 inches in diameter. This simple little design for the pin-cushion-cover may be stamped on linen, to fit the cushion, and finished with a narrow hem, or it may be hemstitched. If a less elaborate design is preferred some of the dots may be easily omitted in the scarf. These, however, should be cut away from the pattern before it is stamped.

LUNCHEON MENU.
Consomme.
Hamburg Steak.
Fried Potatoes.
French Rolls.
Baked Apples With Raisins.
Tea or Chocolate.

DELICIOUS and wholesome hot breads may be made according to the following recipes:

Cornmeal Puffs.—Take one cupful of cornmeal, one cupful of flour, one teaspoonful of sugar, one-half teaspoonful of soda and one of cream of tartar (or one and one-half teaspoonfuls of baking powder), one egg, one cupful of milk and one teaspoonful of melted butter. Mix the dry ingredients together and sift. The milk is added to the beaten egg and stirred into the other. Bake fifteen or twenty minutes in a hot oven.

Made With Cold Rice.

Rice Muffins.—Take one quart of milk, three beaten eggs, one tablespoonful melted butter, one teaspoonful of sugar and two cups of flour, with which sift two rounding teaspoonfuls of baking powder and one scant one of salt. Make into a batter and beat in a cupful cold boiled rice. Beat well and bake in a hot oven.

Wheat Gems.—Take one pint of milk, scald it and add to it one tablespoonful of butter. Let stand until lukewarm. Then add one-half cake of yeast dissolved in a quarter cupful of warm water, three cupfuls of flour and one teaspoonful of salt. Beat well, cover and let stand in a warm place until morning. A half hour before breakfast beat two eggs, yokes and whites, separately and add first the yolks, then the whites, to the risen mixture. Beat and bake in gem pans in a quick oven.

For Luncheon or Tea.

French Rolls.—Cream one-fourth of a cupful of butter and one-fourth cupful of sugar together and gradually beat into a pint of light sponge. Add two eggs, whites and yolks beaten separately, and flour enough to make the same thickness as before. Cover and stand in a warm place until it begins to rise, then add flour to make the soft dough and knead well. Set aside again until it doubles in size, then shape like Parker House rolls. Sprinkle granulated sugar over the top. Bake fifteen minutes. When done lay a napkin over the rolls in the pan for five minutes, which makes a tender crust.

Daddy's Bedtime Story—

The Quarrel Between Naughty Little Sparrows.

One Little Bird Found a Crumb.

JACK and Evelyn had been feeding crumbs to the birds every day for some time.

"I fancy they enjoy them pretty well, don't they?" said daddy.

"Yes; they love them," replied Evelyn.

"Do they ever scrap over who shall get a crumb first?" added daddy.

"No," said Jack; "they never seem to. They really are very cunning, and they seem to be very friendly and get along beautifully.

"Well, you know," said daddy, "the other day I saw some birds having an awful fight. One little sparrow had found a very big crumb and was trying to keep it all to himself."

"Sparrows are supposed to be rather fond of fighting, aren't they, daddy?" asked Jack.

"They do seem to be considered crosser and to have more cranky natures than other birds. But perhaps it's because they're always around us, and they never have a quarrel that we don't see it, for really we ought to be very grateful to the sparrows, for we always have them with us."

"Yes; that's true," said Evelyn. "And they're plucky little creatures, too, never minding bad weather, not even the very worst. But do tell us more about the fight, daddy."

"Another little sparrow," continued daddy, "was furious when he saw the selfishness of the first sparrow. He completely lost his temper. He flew at the first little sparrow and hit him with his wings just as hard as ever he could.

"Then a number of sparrows came and joined in the fight. Some took the side of the first sparrow and some of the second sparrow.

"It really might have been quite a serious battle had not an old sparrow stepped in and pitched his voice way up in the air. He simply shrieked at the sparrows.

"'Stop; stop at once!' he cried.

"All the sparrows stopped at once, for they were very much afraid of the old sparrow. He was quite their leader, and, though he was a very jolly old soul and would enter into all their sports, still he was quite strict.

"'Aren't you ashamed of yourselves, all of you,' he continued—'you, little first sparrow, for being so selfish, and you, little second one, for losing your temper, and the rest of you for joining in?'

"And all the little sparrows hung their heads in shame, and they then and there promised the old sparrow that they would never again be greedy and selfish nor would they fight.

"The old sparrow then looked very much relieved, for it always made him very unhappy when the sparrows were naughty."

The day of the old fashioned wrapper is long since past; the trim little one-piece house dress has taken its place.

BY KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Copyright, 1913, by Kate Douglas Wiggin

Author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"

CHAPTER XII.

Uncle Bart Discourses.

UNCLE BART and Cephas were taking their nooning hour under the Nodhead apple tree as Waitstill passed the joiner's shop and went over the bridge.

"Uncle Bart might somehow guess where I am going," she thought, "but even if he did he would never tell any one."

"Where's Waitstill bound this afternoon, I wonder?" drawled Cephas, rising to his feet and looking after the departing team. "That reminds me I'd better run up to Baxter's and see if anything's wanted before I open the store."

"If it makes any difference," said his father dryly as he filled his pipe, "Patty's over to Mis' Day's spendin' the afternoon. Don't s'pose you want to call on the pig, do you? He's the only one to home."

Cephas made no remark, but gave his trousers a hitch, picked up a chip, opened his jackknife and, sitting down on the greensward, began idly whittling the bit of wood into shape.

"I kind o' wish you'd let me make the new ell two story, father. 'Twouldn't be much work; take it in slack time after haylin'."

"Land o' liberty! What do you want to do that for, Cephas? You 'bout pestered the life out o' me gittin' me to build the ell in the first place when we didn't need it no more'n a toad does a pocketbook. Then nothin' would do but you must paint it, though I shan't be able to have the main house painted for another year, so the old wine an' the new bottle side by side looks like the old driver an' makes us a laughin'stock to the village, an' now you want to change the thing into a two story! Never heerd such a crazy idee in my life."

"I want to settle down," insisted Cephas doggedly.

"Well, settle—I'm willin'! I told you that afore you painted the ell. Ain't two rooms, 14 by 14, enough for you to settle down in? If they ain't, I guess your mother'd give you one o' the chambers in the main part."

"She would if I married Phoebe Day but I don't want to marry Phoebe," argued Cephas. "And mother's gone and made a summer kitchen for herself out in the ell a'ready. I bet yer she'll never move out if I should want to move in on a sudden."

"I told you you was takin' that risk when you cut a door through from the main part," said his father genially. "If you hadn't done that your mother would 'a' had to gone round outside to git int' the ell, and mebbe she'd 'a' stayed to home when it stormed, anyhow. Now your wife'll have her troopin' in an' out, in an' out, the whole 'durin' time."

"I only cut the door through to please mother, so't she'd favor my gittin' married, but I guess't won't do no good. You see, father, what I was thinkin' of is, a girl would mebbe jump at a two story, four roomed ell when she wouldn't look at a smaller place."

"'Pends upon whether the girl's the jumpin' kind or not. Hadn't you better git everything fixed up with the one you've picked out afore you take your good savin's and go to buildin' a bigger place for her?"

"I've asked her once a'ready," Cephas allowed with a burning face. "I don't s'pose you know the one I mean?"

"No kind of an idee," responded his father with a quizzical wink that was lost on the young man, as his eyes were fixed upon his whittling. "Does she belong to the village?"

"I ain't goin' to let folks know who I've picked out till I git a little mite forrarder," responded Cephas craftily. "Say, father, it's all right to ask a girl twice, ain't it?"

"Certain it is, my son. I never heerd there was any special limit to the number o' times you could ask 'em, and their power o' sayin' 'No' is like the mercy of the Lord—it endureth forever. You wouldn't consider a widder, Cephas? A widder'd be a good comp'ny keeper for your mother."

"I hain't put my good savin's into an ell jest to marry a comp'ny keeper for mother," responded Cephas huffily. "I want to be No. 1 with my girl and start right in on trainin' her up to suit me."

"Well, if trainin' 's your object you'd better take my advice an' keep it dark before marriage, Cephas. It's astonishin' how the female sect despises bein' trained. It don't hardly seem to be in their nature to make any changes in 'emselves after they once gits started."

"How are you goin' to live with 'em, then?" Cephas inquired, looking up with interest coupled with some incredulity.

"Let them do the trainin'," responded his father, peacefully puffing out the words with his pipe between his lips. "Some of 'em's mild and gentle in discipline, like Parson Boone's wife or Mis' Timothy Grant, and others is strict and firm like your mother and Mis' Abel Day. If you happen to git the first kind, why, do as they tell you, and thank the Lord 'tain't any worse. If you git the second kind jest let 'em put the blinders on you and trot as straight as you know how, without shyin' nor kickin' over the traces, nor boltin', 'cause they've got control o' the bit and 'tain't no use fightin' ag'in' their superior strength. So fur as you can judge, in the early stages o' the game, my son—which ain't very fur—which kind have you picked out?"

Cephas whittled on for some moments without a word, but finally, with a sigh drawn from the very toes of his boots, he responded gloomily:

"She's awful spunky, the girl is; anybody can see that; but she's a young thing, and I thought bein' married would kind o' tame her down!"

"You can see how much marriage has tamed your mother down," observed Uncle Bart dispassionately. "Howsomever, though your mother can't be called tame, she's got her good p'ints, for she's always to be counted on. The great thing in life, as I take it, Cephas, is to know exactly what to expect. Your mother's gen'ally credited with an onsartin temper, but folks does her great injustice in so thinkin', for in a long experience I've seldom come across a temper less onsartin than your mother's. You know exactly where to find her every mornin' at sunup and every night at sundown. There ain't nothin' you can do to put her out o' temper, 'cause she's all out aforehand. You can jest go about your reg'lar business 'thout any fear of disturbin' her any further than she's disturbed a'ready, which is consid'rable. I don't mind it a mite nowadays, though, after forty years of it. It would kind o' gall me to keep a stiddy watch of a female's disposition day by day, wonderin' when she was goin' to have a tantrum. A tantrum once a year's an awful upsettin' kind of a thing in a family, my son, but a tantrum every twenty-four hours is jest part o' the day's work." There was a moment's silence, during which Uncle Bart puffed his pipe and Cephas whittled, after which the old man continued: "Then if you happen to marry a temper like your mother's, Cephas, look what a pow'ful worker you gen'ally get! Look at the way they sweep an' dust an' scrub an' clean! Watch 'em when they go at the dish washin' an' how they whack the rollin' pin an' maul the eggs an' heave the wood into the stove an' slat the flies out o' the house! The mild and gentle ones likely enough will be settin' in the kitchen rocker readin' the almanac when there ain't no wood in the kitchen box, no doughnuts in the crock, no pies on the swing shelf in the cellar an' the young ones goin' round without a second shift to their backs!"

Cephas' mind was far away during this philosophical dissertation on the ways of women. He could see only a sunny head fairly rioting with curls, a pair of eyes that held his like magnets, although they never gave him a glance of love; a smile that lighted the world far better than the sun, a dimple into which his heart fell headlong whenever he looked at it.

"You're right, father; 'tain't no use kickin' ag'in 'em," he said as he rose to his feet preparatory to opening the Baxter store. "When I said that 'bout trainin' up a girl to suit me, I kind o' forgot the one I've picked out. I'm considerin' several, but the one I favor most—well, I believe she'd fire up at the first sight o' trainin', and that's the gospel truth."

"Considerin' several, be you, Cephas?" laughed Uncle Bart. "Well, all I hope is that the one you favor most—the girl you've asked once a'ready—is considerin' you!"

Cephas went to the pump and, wetting a large handkerchief, put it in the crown of his straw hat and sauntered out into the burning heat of the open road between his father's shop and Deacon Baxter's store.

"I shan't ask her the next time till this hot spell's over," he thought, "and I won't do it in that dodgasted old store ag'in, neither. I ain't so tongue tied outdoors, an' I kind o' think I'd be more in the sperit of it after sun down some night after supper!"

Waitstill found a cool and shady place in which to hitch the old mare, loosening her checkrein and putting a sprig of alder in her headstall to assist her in brushing off the flies.

One could reach the Boynton house only by going up a long grass grown lane that led from the high road. It was a lonely place and Aaron Boynton had bought it when he moved from Saco simply because he secured it at a remarkable bargain, the owner having lost his wife and gone to live in Massachusetts. Ivory would have sold it long ago had circumstances been different, for it was at too great a distance from the schoolhouse and from Lawyer Wilson's office to be at all convenient, but he dreaded to remove his mother from the environment to which she was accustomed and doubted very much whether she would be able to care for a house to which she had not been wonted before her mind became affected.

Here in this safe, secluded corner, amid familiar and thoroughly known conditions, she moved placidly about her daily tasks, performing them with the same care and precision that she had used from the beginning of her married life. All the heavy work was done for her by Ivory and Rodman; the boy in particular being the fleetest footed, the most willing and the neatest of helpers; washing dishes, sweeping and dusting, laying the table as deftly and quietly as a girl. Mrs. Boynton made her own simple dresses of gray calico in summer, or dark linsey-woolsey in winter by the same pattern that she had used when she first came to Edgewood; in fact, there were positively no external changes anywhere to be seen, tragic and terrible as had been those that had wrought havoc in her mind.

Waitstill's heart beat faster as she neared the Boynton house. She had never so much as seen Ivory's mother for years. How would she be met? Who would begin the conversation and what direction would it take? What if Mrs. Boynton should refuse to talk to her at all? She walked slowly along the lane until she saw a slender, gray clad figure stooping over a flower bed in front of the cottage. The woman raised her head with a fawn-like gesture that had something in it of timidity rather than fear, picked some loose bits of green from the ground, and, quietly turning her back upon the oncoming stranger, disappeared through the open front door.

There could be no retreat on her own part now, thought Waitstill. She wished for a moment that she had made this first visit under Ivory's protection, but her idea had been to gain Mrs. Boynton's confidence and have a quiet friendly talk, such a one as would be impossible in the presence of a third person. Approaching the steps, she called through the doorway in her clear voice: "Ivory asked me to come and see you one day, Mrs. Boynton. I am Waitstill Baxter, the little girl on Town House hill that you used to know."

Mrs. Boynton came from an inner room and stood on the threshold. The name "Waitstill" had always had a charm for her ears, from the time she first heard it years ago until it fell from Ivory's lips this summer, and again it caught her fancy.

"Waitstill!" she repeated softly. "Waitstill! Does Ivory know you?"

"We've known each other for ever so long—ever since we went to the brick school together when we were boy and girl. And when I was a child my stepmother brought me over here once on an errand, and Ivory showed me a humming bird's nest in that lilac bush by the door."

Mrs. Boynton smiled. "Come and look!" she wisbered. "There is always a humming bird's nest in our lilac. How did you remember?"

The two women approached the bush, and Mrs. Boynton carefully parted the leaves to show the dainty morsel of a home thatched with soft gray green and lined with down. "The birds have flown now," she said. "They were like little jewels when they darted off in the sunshine."

Her voice was faint and sweet, as if it came from far away, and her eyes looked not as if they were seeing you, but seeing something through you. Her pale hair was turned back from her paler face, where the veins showed like blue rivers, and her smile was like the flitting of a moonbeam. She was standing very close to Waitstill, closer than she had been to any woman for many years, and she studied her a little, wistfully yet courteously, as if her attention was attracted by something fresh and winning. She looked at the color ebbing and flowing in the girl's cheeks, at her brows and lashes, at her neck as white as swansdown.

"Waitstill! Does Ivory know you?"

CHORUS OF SIXTY VOICES IN COMMENCEMENT PROGRAM

Sixty members of the North Plainfield High School have been organized into a chorus which will take part in the commencement exercises of the High School in the Plainfield Theatre on June 19. The four parts are about evenly divided and the chorus rehearses every week. Miss Jessie Utter, the singing instructor, is in charge of the chorus and has selected three good pieces for the pupils to sing. They are "Who Knows What the Bells Say?" "Song of the Vikings" and another short one.

Those who are to take part are: Sopranos, Mary Bennett, Bertha Boylan, Edith Dalley, Marion Doughty, Marialle Dunham, Katherine Giddings, Ethel Hall, Viola Hauser, Ann Hull, Flora Krausse, Virginia LaPorte, Elva Lippincott, Lena Mobus, Emma Ryno, Helen Smith, Jennie Sears, Grace Townley, Margaret Vossler, Helen Woodruff, Marguerite Barkelew, Madeline Blair, Hester Stebbins, Elsie Debele, Rose Cooper, and Helen Yates; alto, Marjorie Burtis, Lucy Douglas, Lucille Ewart, Margaret Hogan, Bertha Keller, Grace VanDemburg, Hettis Hall, Laura Stillman, Lucy Hughes, Margaret Smith and Gladys Sullivan; tenor, Lester Chandler, John Dawe, Oscar Dilts, Vincent LaPorte, Warren Townley, David Levitz, LeRoy Adams, William Carson, Clarence Roddy and Russell Lee; bass, Ashley Burner, Charles Beckman, Frank Dunning, Duclos VanMater, Elmer French, Hyman Abrams, Ralph Smalley, Roscoe VanCamp, Sherman Chandler, Addison Newkirk, Attwood Giddings, Edson Day, Leo Larison and Franklin Lowe.

FEDERATION OF MEN'S CHURCH CLUBS TO MEET

Under the auspices of the Federation of Men's Clubs the first public meeting of the members will be held in Grace church parish house tonight, it being the nature of a "get-together." Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the Plainfield public schools, will address the gathering on the local school question, after which there will be ample time for an open discussion of the subject which appears to be quite timely at present.

In addition there will be a fine program of music by the quartet from Grace church choir and selections by the Dutch Arms Band of Trinity Reformed church, to be followed by the serving of light refreshments and a social hour. It is hoped that so far as possible all of the members of these clubs try to be present.

ANOTHER CHARGE AGAINST LAWYER

MORTGAGE IS INVOLVED

Defendant Makes a Statement Contending That He Should Not Be Made to Answer Other Charges—Court Declines to Accept View.

Trenton, April 29.—To permit the broadening of the record to include an additional charge, Vice-Chancellor Backes yesterday postponed until May 25 the return of the rule requiring Winfield S. Angleman, a lawyer, of Plainfield, to show cause why his name should not be stricken from the roll as a solicitor of the Court of Chancery.

The additional charge which Mr. Angleman will be called upon to answer involves a mortgage transaction in which Lydia P. Bullock and Mr. Angleman figured. The complainant alleged that she placed a mortgage for $4,000 in the hands of Mr. Angleman for collection.

At the time the mortgage was under foreclosure in a suit in Chancery to enforce a prior encumbrance, it is alleged that Angleman was authorized to accept a compromise and to receive $3,500 in settlement of the mortgage debt. The complainant charged that Angleman failed to make the settlement, notwithstanding that the record showed he had collected the money in December, 1910, and deposited it to his own credit.

Angleman claims that he had retained the money with the consent of his client, under an agreement that he should pay interest upon it. Subsequently, Angleman assumed full responsibility for the entire value of the mortgage, promised restitution as soon as he could make arrangements therefore, and later gave his promisory note for $3,545, payable in three months to Lydia P. Bullock. The note was secured by a chattel mortgage on Mr. Angleman's law library.

In July, 1912, Angleman paid $207.47 to his client and endeavored to obtain a receipt acknowledging him her debtor. She refused to sign a receipt.

When this case was before the court, Angleman claimed that because of the acceptance of the note and mortgage his trust relation with his client had been changed into those of debtor and creditor. In that capacity he submitted himself to a money decree, whereupon he was ordered forthwith to pay to Lydia P. Bullock $3,300, the net amount of the trust fund in his hands, with a counsel fee and cost.

Appearing in his own behalf yesterday, Mr. Angleman contended that he should not be compelled to answer the charges relative to the Bullock mortgage, upon the grounds that it had been already passed upon by the court and was therefore res adjudicata. Vice-Chancellor Backes refused to accept view, and granted the amended rule applied for by former Assistant Attorney-General Nelson B. Gaskill, who was designated by the court to prosecute the charges against Mr. Angleman.

The original charges upon which Mr. Angleman was cited to appear involved his alleged failure to prosecute a suit for divorce, instituted by Mrs. Bell Overbaugh, of Plainfield, against her husband.

BOROUGH PINOCHLE CLUB ENJOY ANNUAL BANQUET

The Borough Pinochle Club, of North Plainfield, concluded their season with a banquet at the Chatham Hotel, when a full course dinner was served by Mine Host Hilaire C. Blatz, nineteen being seated at the board. Speeches galore rounded out the evening in a manner enjoyable to those present. Among the notables present were Edward Gaub, Howard Woolston, Chief William T. McCullough, of the borough fire department; William Hogan and Campbell. The favors presented by Mr. Blatz were in the form of small card tables.

MR. MATTHEWS MAKES REPLY.

Former Assemblyman John A. Matthews, of Newark, in a letter printed elsewhere in today's issue of the Daily Press, makes reply to a communication sent to this paper by Mrs. E. F. Feickert, president of the New Jersey State League for Equal Suffrage, in which he states that Mrs. Feickert misrepresented him in referring to his vote against the law which raised the age of consent in New Jersey.

MAXIMUS HAS THRILLER FOR SCHOOL CIRCUS

Local Strong Man Will Have Assistance of Warren Ackerman on May 4.

Maximus, head of the local physical culture institute, who will be one of the principal Plainfield performers in the circus to be given for the benefit of the Open Air School next Monday, is making great preparations for his act. He will be assisted by Warren Ackerman, son of Marion S. Ackerman, and the two are arranging to give an exhibition which will not only be skillful, but which is promised to be full of fun.

Maximus' principal act will be one which has gained him commendation wherever he has appeared, and Mr. Ackerman will give the humorous touch to it. A 225 pound dumbell is placed on a spring board, built like a sea-saw, with the weight on the down end. Maximus mounts a pedestal six and a half feet high, and jumps to the raised end of the board. His weight throws the dumbbell in the air for a distance of fourteen feet, and when it comes down again he catches it on the muscles in the back of his neck. He has performed this trick a great many times and has a wonderful string of press notices, received before leaving the vaudeville stage and settling in Plainfield.

The young men who are going to act as clowns are planning a number of local hits, so that no one will be immune when it comes to the fun making. Modesty has prevented a lot of them from permitting their names to be used, but under the leadership of Warren Ackerman, Reginald Rowland and "Pete" Phillips, they promise many surprises.

During the two days of this week there has been an unusually large demand for reserved seat tickets, for both afternoon and evening performances, so that many of the 600 provided for each time are gone. There are still good seats left however, but local people are urged to make their selections at once. All of the boxes except five for the matinee and four for the evennig performance are now gone. Reserved seat tickets are on sale at the Daily Press office, and will be until next Monday noon for the matinee, and Monday at 6 p. m. for the evening performance.

FUNERAL OF GARRET P. KIELY LARGELY ATTENDED

The funeral services of the late Garret P. Kiely, who died suddenly at his home at Jersey City, were held this morning at his late residence on Claremont avenue, of that place, and from St. Joseph's Roman Catholic church, the borough, at 9 o'clock. Father Aurcli Poli was the celebrant at the requiem mass, while Father Miller delivered a short eulogy. Solos were sung by Miss Justina Smith and Mrs. Alfred Seidel. A large number of Mr. Kiely's friends and acquaintances were among the mourners. Thre were many floral token sent by his friends, among which were several set pieces, one of which was five feet high. A large cross of flowers was sent by his recent employers.

The bearers were James Burke, Joseph Burke John J. Kenney, H. Paul Greenwood, John J. Carty and David Mack. The service at the grave at St. Mary's Cemetery was conducted by Father Kirk, of Paterson, a relative of Mr. Kiely.

BUSINESS MEN'S ADV.

Walter Arnold, a local young man, prepared the splendid advertisement which appears elsewhere in, today's paper, as a message from the Plainfield Business Men's Asociation. The Community Spirit is the topic, and the advantages in having a strong local pride are well advanced in the article.

WILL ENTER THE SHRIEVALTY RACE

HAS EXCELLENT RECORD

Plainfield Man Has Been Active in Political Circles for Twenty Years—Believed He Would Be a Strong Candidate.

It became known in local political circles today that a good sized boom has been launched in favor of Councilman John H. Cose as the Republican nominee for sheriff, at next fall's election. Fully a dozen men prominent in Plainfield's civic and business life have announced their intention of supporting the Third Ward representative and by the time the anteprimary campaign is at its height it is believed he will have the endorsement of every G. O. P. organization in this part of Union county. The fact that so many adherents have already rallied to the Cose standard, previous to public announcement, is accepted as a favorable omen for future supporters.

Fully half a dozen Republicans in Union county believe they are entitled to the shrievalty nomination, but it is generally conceded they will have to "step some" to beat out the Plainfielder. Mr. Cose has been active in county political circles for the past twenty years, giving his time and money whenever called upon. He has held several minor offices but never anything that has brought the recompense of which he is deserving. He served twenty years in the call service of the Plainfield fire department, fully as many years on the city and county Republican committee and the first of the present year assumed the seat of Councilman-at-large.

His record as a city father, it is claimed so far, has stamped him as a man of initiative and sound business judgment. He has brought several excellent measures to the attention of his colleagues, one of which is the ordinance calling for a city electrician, now in the hands of the corporation counsel.

Under-Sheriff Robert Kirkland, who preceded Sheriff Wright in the office, will again be a candidate, so it is said. His attitude is not looked upon in a favorable light as it strengthens the opposition cry of "Ring-around-a-rosy," which cost the G. O. P. many hundreds of votes a few years ago. One Plainfield party leader said today: "John H. Cose is the best piece of shrievaly timber the county can produce and locally he will be supported as a unit. It seems to me the job is due to come to this city and John H. Cose will be our selection, regardless of the county seat's propositions."

Mr. Cose is a successful contractor and has a State wide prominence among the order of Elks. He is a past exalted ruler of Plainfield lodge and also past noble grand of Queen City Lodge of Odd Fellows. In addition to these orders, he is affiliated with the Masons and Knights of Pythias, the West End Civic Association and the New Jersey State Firemen's Relief Association.

COMEDY CLUB'S SHOW BIG FARCE

FINISHED PRODUCTION

With the dress rehearsal last night at the Plainfield Theatre the members of the Plainfield Comedy Club, who will present "The Arrival of Kitty" tomorrow night and Friday, completed the active preparation for the show. There will be a rehearsal of lines this afternoon, but last night's performance was the last complete one before the show.

The play is a farce, the broadest farce, in fact, that the club has ever attempted, and it is full of laughs from start to finish. Norman Lee Swartout, the author, has been acting as coach, and he has given great care to the production, so that he feels quite confident that the local performers will make as big a hit as have the professional companies which have been presenting the play for several years.

The cast will be as follows: Kitty, Miss Elizabeth McGee; William Winkler, Alson M. Abbott; Miss Winkler, Mrs. A. M. Abbott; Jane (niece of William Winkler), Miss Eva Browne: Suzette (a maid), Miss Monica Sharretts; Billy Baxter Brown Rolston; Ting (a bellboy), Roswell G. Rolston; Benajmin Moore, Frederick Goddard; a colored porter, Donald A. McGee.

From the moment the curtain rises to reveal Ting changing his brass-buttoned bellboy suit for the colored porter's clothes in the lobby of the Halcyon House on top of one of the Catskill mountains, so that he can pose as manager, the amusement of the play is incessant. Situation follows situation, plot is matched by counterplot. The basis of the play is the fact that a shocking yet likable old sport, William Winkler, will gain a large sum of money if he can marry his niece Jane to a fussy old bachelor, Benjamin Moore, according to her father's will. Billy Baxter is determined to prevent this, and, coached by the sharp-witted Ting, goes to the length of impersonating Kitty, a free-and-easy actress and an old flame of Winkler's, to do it. And then Kitty arrives.

The confusion caused by the real and bogus Kittys' presence in the hotel, combined with the antics of a colored porter, Ting and Bobbie Baxter, leave little time during the presentation of that play that is not given up to laughter.

Tickets for the performance are on sale at the theatre, and there are good seats still available.

CONNORS' BAIL IS BOOSTED TO $5,000

Notorious Criminal Wanted by Union County Authorities Remains in Chicago.

Counsel for Charles "Ice-Wagon" Connors, the notorious criminal, who is alleged to have robbed former State Senator Ernest R. Ackerman's home on West Eeighth street of $15-000 in jewels on the night of January 3, appeared in the Chicago police court yesterday and asked for a writ of habeas corpus on behalf of his client, which was granted. Connors's appearance in court yesterday exploded the numerous rumors that have been going the rounds predicting that he would jump bail, and it was stated yesterday that he was prepared to fight extradition.

Upon the request of Chief Kiely, who was in court when Connors was arraigned, the prisoner's bail was raised from $3,000 to $5,000, and another hearing will be held today in the Supreme Court of Illinois. It is anticipated that considerable trouble will be experienced by the Union county officers in landing their quarry, as Connors is prepared to put up a stiff fight against extradition, and has engaged counsel to appear for him. Assistant Prosecutor M. J. O'Connor and local Police Chief Kiely are the officers representing Union county in Chicago. It is likely that the case will be disposed of today, and if extradition is granted by the court the prisoner will be removed to the Union county jail in Elizabeth at once.

MOTORCYCLE HITS AUTO, TWO HURT

BOTH WILL RECOVER

Slippery Roadbed and Fog the Cause—Victims Allege That Auto Chauffeur Failed to Display the Required Tail Lights.

Enroute from Rahway to Elizabeth shortly after 8 o'clock last night a motocycle driven by Henry Dresselt, of 36 Lincoln place, North Plainfield, collided with the rear wheels of a large motor truck belonging to an Elizabeth concern. On the motorcycle with Dresselt at the time of the accident was Ernest Mantz, aged nineteen years, of 17 Pearl street, North Plainfield, and both were thrown violently on the road. The chauffeur of the truck stopped the vehicle and found the two motorcyclists in a semi-conscious condition. He notified the St. Elizabeth Hospital authorities and the victims were removed to that institution where they are reported as resting comfortably today.

Dresselt's foot was run over by the rear wheels of the heavy truck and he sustained numerous cuts and bruises. Mantz had his scalp severely lacerated. According to a statement made by Dresselt, who was piloting the motorcycle, to the police this morning, he was traveling at a slow rate of speed along Rahway avenue, two miles outside of Elizabeth, near Linden Township, when the motor truck loomed up in front. Dresselt alleges that the truck had no rear lights and he did not distinguish the vehicle until within a few yards of it. A sudden shift to the left in order to pass the truck caused the motorcycle to skid on the wet and slippery pavement and the riders were thrown against the rear wheel of the car and then to the roadbed.

Mantz coroborates the statement of Dresselt and an investigation into the circumstances surrounding the accident is being conducted by the police of Elizabeth today. When the accident occurred, the police claim that Dresselt had no driver's license with him but the latter says it was probbaly lost in the mix-up. The motorcycle is a two-cylinder Hartley-Davis and of an unusually heavy type. As was his usual custum Dresselt went for a ride about dusk last night with Elizabeth as his objective point and it was dark and foggy when the incident happened. He is an experienced driver and always took careful precautions to avoid accidents. The injured men will probably be removed to their homes in this city tomorrow morning. Dresselt is employed as a linotype operator for the the Daily Press.

PATRICK J. REVILLE TO BE POSTMASTER?

Latest Prediction is That He Will Succeed Elias H. Bird.

That Patrick J. Reville will succeed Elias H. Bird as Plainfield's postmaster is the latest prediction of the political prophets. They say that Mr. Reville has had ar alleged poor record while he was in the service some years ago corrected, and that everything has now been completed to pave the way for his appointment to the position which is so much sought after by Plainfield Democrats.

Like all of the stories about the postmastership which have been floating about for the last six months or more, the Reville story has no local confirmation. There is just that vague belief, which it is claimed is founded on fact, that he will be named within a short time.

Efforts were made this morning to secure confirmation of the story from United States Sentaor James E. Martine at Washington. A message was sent to him stating that it was reported here that Mr. Reville was to be appointed postmaster, following a vindication in his claim that he was illegally removed from the position he held in the postoffice some years ago. Mr. Reville himself was in town last night, but could not be found this morning.

"Report is gossip; not yet prepared to make statement."

DEAD BODY FOUND IN FATHER'S BARN

Philip Hoffman, of Somerville, Committed Suicide by Hanging This Morning.

Missed by the help on his father's farm in Somerville shortly after 9 o'clock this morning, Phillip Hoffman was found dead in the barn on the estate by a posse that had been formed to search the premises. The young man had committed suicide by hanging himself from a rafter in the hay mow and when the searching party reached the place life was extinct. The body was dangling high above the floor and had evidently been hanging there some time before discovery.

No cause has been assigned for the youth's rash deed as he was apparently as well as usual this morning and gave no evidences of being despondent. Shortly after breakfast he disappeared and when he failed to show up at the regular hour for work the other employes became alarmed and the search with the startling discovery followed. The Hoffman estate is located just south of Somerville and the young man was a prominent figure in that place.

County Physician Long viewed the body this afternoon and granted a burial permit. Hoffman leaves several brothers and sisters beside his parents. The funeral service will be held at the late home Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock.

FREE AMERICANS ORDERS HUERTA

Dictator Makes It Possible for All to Leave Who Wish to Do So.

3 HELD FOR RANSOM

So Hears Consul Shanklin—No Truth in Report That Other Nations Will Seek Seats on Mediation Board.

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Washington, April 29.—Official notification that orders for the release of all Americans held at Cordoba have been issued by the Huerta Government has been received at the State Department through the Brazilian Minister in Mexico City. Ambassador Da Gama informed the Secretary of State of the communicattion when he called at the department today. Twenty-two hundred Americans and foreigners have been taken from the Tampico district, Consul Canada advised the department, and only a few more remain, and they are in hiding with Mexican friends, refusing flatly to leave. Quiet prevails in Mexico City. Mail service from Vera Cruz was resumed today, in spite of the break in the railroad. Three hundred bags of mail which have been delayed at the Gulf ports were taken to the break in the railroad and turned over to a Mexican Federal ofcer, who forwarded them to Mexico City.

There has been no suggestion of other powers joining the mediators in the Mexican trouble, Secretary of State Bryan said today. Reports that France and other European nations had added members to the Board of Mediation, in addition to the envoys of Brazil, Argentine and Chile, are entirely unfounded.

Destruction of a long stretch of the railroad from Mexico City to Vera Cruz has made it necessary to deflect the course of some 600 Americans leaving the capital. They will proceed to Puerto Mexico and embark on refugee ships at that port, acording to the latest advices to the representatives at Vera Cruz.

General Carranza's attitude toward mediation is now the chief object o fspeculation in official circles. A note to the mediators from the Constiutionalist chief is eagerly awaited by the State Department. General Villa's conference with him yesterday and day before, when the two met at Chihuahua, is expected to change materially the relations of the first chief of the rebels toward the United States. The last note from this quarter was distinctly hostile in tone.

Vera Cruz, April 29.—Huertainas at Aguas Calientes are holding three Americans for $125,000 ransom, said an official report received today by Arnold Shanklin, former American Consul-General at Mexico City. The Americans are A. D. Emery, C. A. Smith and Waltr E. Uiler.

Washington, April 29—While the A. B. C. combination of mediators are seeking some method of bringing about an understanding between the United Sates and Mexico, representations continue to pour into the Navy and State Departments of parties of Americans either reaching American ships on the coast or crossing the boundary line to safety. These are virtually the only developments that now mark the crisis that exists between the Washington Government and the Huerta regime. With a suddenness that is almost startling, both sides to the controversy have rested on their arms. There is a complete calm. Whether the quiet is promising or ominous none can say.

There were more conferences today between the diplomatic representatives of Brazil, Argentina and Chile, who have undertaken to bring about some understanding between the two countries. Secretary Bryan is being kept in close touch with the envoys' plans, but no intimation of what these plans are has yet leaked to the outside and waiting world.

Ambassador Da Gama, of Brazil, called again at the State Department today. He did not look hopeful, but he refused to comment on the character of his mission. It is known, however, that the peace advocates are meeting with obstacles that for the moment seem to be insurmountable. The chief of these are the objections of the various factions in Mexico to being brought together to treat with Washington Government. After months of bitter fighting, in which the Constitutionalists have made decided gains, it was to be expected that objection would be made to giving up the ground gained. It is believed that objections are more determined than the envoys expected. In the meantime, the administration is not relaxing its program of preparation for any eventuality. Without making the matter public, the War Department had its finger on the militia of the country, and it could be mobilized in an incredibly short time.

Mr. and Mrs. John Bornmann entertained Miss Florence Newmiller, of Plainfield, and Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Reinmann and children, of South Stirling, yesterday.

Miss Minnie Steffens, who was operated on in the Muhlenberg Hospital, Plainfield, two weeks ago for appendicitis, has returned to her home on the Mt. Bethel road.

Joseph Wittman has the contract for the building of a large henhouse for Rudolph Steffens, of Mt. Bethel.

Watchung.

Emile Perrett, the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Albert G. Perrett, who has been very ill, is improving.

Manager Thomas C. Featherston, of the Watchung Athletic Club, has announced that season tickets for the baseball season can now be obtained from him or any other member of the nine. So far twenty-five games have been scheduled to take place on the home ground. The record of the blue and white last year proves that this year's season will be an interesting one.

There will be an exhibition of policemen and their strength at the coming "Harvest Home." Chief of Police E. T. Canning has his force out at daybreak taking cold dips in the lake and cross country runs. The Watchung A. C. may compete with the force, so beware "cops."

Andrew Bauman, one of Watchung's popular citizens, took a vacation trip to Philadelphia last week and returned yesterday with a bride. Mr. Bauman was married to Miss Alice Smith, of Chestnut Hill, Philadelphia. Mr. and Mrs. Bauman are occupying their new house on Mountain Boulevard. Their friends wish them much happiness.

The Misses Lucy and Carol Hughes, of Sunny Slope Farm, were among the participants of the Y. W. C. A. carnival of sports at the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, New York, last evening.

Ralph and Miss Edith Kutz, of Newark, were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Samuel J. Kutz, of Valley road, over the week-end. Both Mr. and Miss Kutz have just recovered from a very serious siege of typhoid fever and their week-end stay was in the nature of a family reunion.

Miss Agnes W. Mantz entertained the members of the Pleasant Word Workers at "Kirkbrae," on Valley road, Monday evening. Miss Theresa E. Schmidt, president, presided at the meeting. A pleasant social hour was arranged by the hostess after the regular business meeting and a discussion of the Sunday-school lessons led by George W. Williams. The organization is an auxiliary to the Wilson Memorial Union Sunday-school.

Miss Rachel Davies has removed from "Hill Top" to Charles Meyer's house on Johnston's Drive.

Ephriam S. Ackor led the prayer meeting in Wilson chapel Tuesday evening. George Mobus will be the leader next week.

Benjamin P. Armstrong, of Hillcrest road, has taken a position with the General Electric Company, of New York. Mr. Armstrong has many wishes for his success.

Miss Gladys M. Sullivan, of Sterling road, has been visiting in New York.

PERSONAL.

Charles Leighs, of South Second street, has taken a position with the Saurer Company, of Switzerland, erecting lace machines at Passaic.

Christopher Rasmussen, of East Fourth street, is a patient at the Muhlenberg Hospital, following an operation performed by Dr. Anthony.

Mrs. William D. Murray, of West Ninth street, who was recently severely burned by the spilling of hot boiling tea, continues to improve slowly and skin grafting has been made necessary before her recovery is made complete.

Mr. and Mrs. James H. Doig, who were married a few weeks ago, have gone to housekeeping at Lee place and South Second street.

AT ONCE! CLOGGED NOSTRILS OPEN, HEAD COLDS AND CATARRH VANISH

Breathe Freely! Clears Stuffed-up, Inflamed Nose and Head and Stops Catarrhal Discharge—Cures Dull Headache.

Try "Ely's Cream Balm."

Get a small bottle anyway, just to try it. Apply a little in the nostrils and instantly your clogged nose and stopped-up air passages of the head will open; you will breathe freely; fullness and headache disappear. By morning the catarrh, cold-in-head or catarrhal sore throat will be gone.

End such misery now! Get the small bottle of "Ely's Cream Balm" at any drug store. This sweet, fragrant balm dissolves by the heat of the nostrils; penetrates and heals the inflamed, swollen membrane which lines the nose, head and throat; clears the air passages; stops nasty discharges and a feeling of cleansing, soothing relief comes immediately.

Don't lay awake tonight struggling for breath, with head stuffed; nostrils closed, hawking and blowing. Catarrh or a cold, with its running nose, foul mucous dropping into the throat, and raw dryness is distressing but truly needless.

Put your faith—just once—in "Ely's Cream Balm" and your cold or catarrh will surely disappear. —Adv.

WORK FOR ARMISTICE IN MEXICO

Envoys Want Factions to Agree.

WILSON HAS HOPE.

Huerta's Note Said to Be Disquieting.

REFUGEE TRAIN HELD UP.

General Funston and "Fighting Fifth" Arrive at Vera Cruz, but Still Remain on Board Transports.

LATEST DEVELOPMENTS IN MEXICAN SITUATION.

Latin-American envoys who are trying to bring about mediation hold long sessions throughout the day.

Administration officials express optimism, but there is no cessation of the army and navy plans to prepare for any eventuality.

Members of congress express alarm at the sudden prominence of "A, B, C" powers and fear precedents growing out of mediation negotiations may embarrass United States in maintaining integrity of Monroe doctrine.

Admiral Fletcher reports Americans imprisoned at Aguas Calientes have been freed and that a trainload of refugees has reached Vera Cruz from the interior.

Flight of Americans from Mexico is unabated. Americans imprisoned at many points in the interior said to be held for their own safety.

Rear Admiral Fletcher seizes the piers, yards and buildings at Vera Cruz of the Terminal company, a British owned concern.

Rear Admiral Mayo sends a report to Washington that the Huerta forces at Tampico are making overtures to the Constitutionalists for a combination against the United States, but the rebels are still firing on the town.

Armored cruiser Washington has sailed from New York navy yard to join Admiral Winslow's flying squadron.

Washington, April 29.—Progress is being made toward bringing peace to Mexico, But opinion here as to the outcome continues to be pessimistic, and there are many disquieting rumors here because of what was said to be the substance of Huerta's acceptance. The Brazilian ambassador and the Argentine and Chilean ministers are very active in their efforts to forward the peace proposals initiated by them and are encouraged by the fact that nothing has occurred since their tender of good offices was made to present any insurmountable obstacle.

The present status of the negotiations may be set forth in this way:

First.—The South American negotiators have formulated a proposal, which may be subject to further consideration before being transmitted, that all Mexican factions be invited to a conference in Mexico City to adjust their differences and establish a central government of the republic. This proposal contemplates including Zapata as one of the parties to the conference.

Second.—The conduct of the proposed mediation under The Hague rules has been suggested and is being considered.

Third.—A suggestion, said to have come from General Huerta, is that French, British and Spanish representatives join the representatives of Brazil, Argentina and Chile who are conducting the present negotiations.

Fourth.—A suggestion has been put forward that the diplomatic representatives of all nations in Mexico City endeavor to adjust the existing trouble and establish a provisional government pending an election. This suggestion finds no favor either among American or European nations.

Fifth.—General Huerta has indicated that he will make stipulations for the conduct of mediatory efforts.

Sixth.—General Carranza's attitude toward the peace proposal is expected to be made known at an early date.

Want Mexican Factions to Confer.

The evident desire of the negotiators is that all the Mexican factions shall be brought together through representatives to meet in Mexico City with the idea that Mexicans are best able to adjust their own differences. These factions would be assisted and advised by the representatives of Brazil, Argentina and Chile in the Mexican capital, who would act as mediators to a limited extent at least. The full details of this plan have not been disclosed, but it is understood to contemplate the inclusion not only of representatives of the Constitutionalists, but of Zapata, the leader of the guerrillas who have given Huerta so much trouble in the vicinity of Mexico City.

No Word From Refugees.

Vera Cruz, April 29.—The special train which took 300 Mexican refugees to Tejeria, on the Mexican railway line, where it was to receive 250 American refugees from Mexico City, returned empty. The Mexicans were delivered to the outpost of General Maas, but when the officer in charge was asked what had become of the Americans he shrugged his shoulders and regretted that they had not been heard from. He could give no explanation, except perhaps there were breaks in the railroad which had delayed them.

It is known that the 250 men, women and children left the capital, for they were officially reported as leaving, but nothing has been heard since.

There is great anxiety in Vera Cruz over the affair, and W. W. Canada has used the telegraph as best he can to find out what has become of them.

A special train has been returned to Tejeria in the hope that they may come through at any time.

Washington, April 29.—Refugees, given every aid in the power of the officers and state department officials in Mexico, continue to leave Mexico in large bodies.

Admiral Howard, commander in chief of the fleet on the west coast of Mexico, telegraphed the navy department that all ships as soon as they report to him were turned over to the nearest consul and put to work helping refugees. The Mexican steamer Benito Juarez continues to make trips to Santiago bearing destitute Americans, having been assured of no molestation from naval forces.

Only thirty-two Americans remain at Mazatlan. Consul Alger advised the state department. Five of them are women and fifteen children. All of them refuse to leave. In addition there are more than 700 other foreigners in the district. The consular agent and all other Americans are on board ships at Guaymas. The cruiser Raleigh sailing for Manzanillo, has called at San Blas and Miramer to take refugees on board. Three hundred left Manzanillo and seventy-eight have left Mazatlan.

Hundreds are pouring over the border into Texas and Arizona. A special train from Torres brought 145 Americans from Torres to Nogales, Ariz. There is no force used to keep them from crossing the line, according to consular advices, but with some exceptions all are being deprived of their arms before being permitted to enter the United States.

Troops at Vera Cruz.

Vera Cruz, April 29.—General Frederick Funston and the "Fighting Fifth" brigade, which arrived at Vera Cruz, remain aboard the transports. They may land tomorrow. The question seems undecided.

Officially it is stated that the army requires three days in which to relieve the navy occupation, although the sailors themselves went ashore in an hour. Unofficially it is said that the desire of Washington not to do anything which might add to the feeling in Mexico City may be responsible for the delay.

General Funston, who remains on board the Kilpatrick, will select headquarters ashore and make ready for taking over the command.

The plans now are for three regiments to take each a district as marked out by the navy, while the Eighth regiment, under Colonel Plummer, will remain on reserve.

REFUGEES AT GALVESTON.

Dixie and Cyclops Sail to Take More Americans From Mexico.

Galveston, Tex., April 29.—The naval collier Cyclops and the naval tender Dixie began unloading refugees at the wharves. The three cases of smallpox from the Connecticut were transferred to the Sealy hospital isolation ward. Other refugees are to be discharged from quarantine.

The Dixie and Cyclops sailed for Tampico and Vera Cruz to bring back more refugees.

FREDERICKSON AND FLYNN.

Captain Christian Frederickson retires from the Plainfield police force on May first, after a long and creditable service to the city. In fact it is seldom that a police officer can look back over twenty-four years duty, as can Captain Frederickson, with a feeling of having served well and faithfully and with a clear record, not one complaint ever having been made against him. He joined the local force in 1890 as a patrolman, and by sheer merit worked his way to the second position on the force. There are still many people in this city who remember his bravery in capturing one of the most desperate criminals that has ever visited here, at the time of the attempt to rob the Cokefair residence on Crescent avenue. The Captain surprised the burglar at work, and ni the scuffle received as a memento of the occasion a bullet wound in the arm, but he landed his man. There were various other occasions when Captain Frederickson had a chance to display his courage, and he never faltered.

His retirement on pension leaves room for promotion in the department. The principle of civil service demands that Detective Sergeant John J. Flynn succeed as captain. Flynn has been on the force over a score of years. He has a record fully as clear and as meritorious as that of Captain Frederickson. It was only a few days ago that his self possession saved his life, when a drunken prisoner who had secreted a revolver in his sock placed it against Flynn's chest and threatened to kill him for alleged wrongs. Flynn has a long record of arrests, and he has proven to be a skillful detective, fully as skillful in fact as many of the high priced men on the big city forces. He has made 1,200 arrests, handling the most important cases in a splendid manner. With Chief Kiely he probably knows by sight and reputation more big crooks than any other man to be found on a police force in a city the size of Plainfield.

The members of the Police Board recognize efficient service, and we do not doubt that the Mayor after advising with the Board will name Sergeant Flynn to succeed to the Captaincy.

Members of Company K, the local military organization, are really anxious to go to war, and it is said that the company has made arrangements by which it can be instantly recruited to the war standing of 108 men from a waiting list. The peace footing is 65 men, but the rest of the 108 are ready for enlistment the moment they are called upon. Company K enjoys an enviable reputation among the various detached portions of the guard, for the high type of citizen soldiers which make up its membership, and while we hope that they are not called upon to go to war, the Plainfield boys could be depended upon to keep up their splendid record were they drafted into active service.

On Sunday a lot of strong lunged denizens of the New York east side came to Plainfield with big bundles of a New York afternoon paper. They made the usual Sabbath quiet hideous by shrieking at the top of their lungs all sorts of fakes about the war, news which the paper DID NOT contain. It seems as if this might have been a good chance for the police to get busy. If these fellows cannot be arrested for crying something they cannot deliver, they should at least be run out of town for disturbing the peace and quiet of the city.

City Judge DeMeza's fining of several autoists who were caught in this city a week ago Sunday driving their cars without licenses was fully justified, and he will have the commendation of every car owner who has paid his fee. The whole effect of the licensing law is lost if anyone is permitted to drive a car which has not been properly recorded at Trenton, and it is only by making examples of those actually caught that others are made to realize that they must pay what every law-abiding automobilist pays willingly.

By the way, has anybody heard anything more from "Jim" Martine about the postmastership. As Elias Bird says: "I should worry." We'll bet that a lot of those Democrats who want the job think that it is a shame to have that salary still going to a Republican when it really should be lining the pockets of one of the fifty-seven varieties of candidates for the job. Those who think that Jim promised it to them will please raise their right hands. If they do Plainfield will look like a forest of fists.

The Daily Press will make its appearance as usual on Saturday, but just what time it will get to press is another matter. The local suffragists are to act as editors and reporters, and the destinies of the paper are in their hands for that day. Similar editions are to be edited on the same day in Elizabeth, Trenton, New Brunswick, Bayonne and other cities of the State, in commemoration of "Suffrage Day."

Tomorrow the Public Utility Commission is to have the strongest kind of arguments presented to it in favor of compelling the Public Service Corporation to extend its lines to South Plainfield. This city will be well represented, and all business interests will hope to hear that the case is so strongly presented that the trolley company will build the line either voluntarily, or through order of the Commission.

In Chicago the City Council has ordered that the Stars and Stripes shall float from every public building in the city until the end of the trouble in Mexico. That's a pretty good idea, and might well be followed in every community in the country.

THE FORUM.

Editor, Plainfield Daily Press:

I ammuch averse tonewspaper controversy but I feel that in justice to the Anti-Suffrage ladies in New Jersey, whom I represented at Cranford in a recent debate with Mrs. Feickert, I should not allow to go unchallenged several mistakes (I shall not say "misstatements") which Mrs. Feickert made in her letter to your paper on April 20th last.

May I first reiterate what I never fail to state in my Anti-Suffrage speeches, that I have the highest personal regard for the motives and purpose not only of Mrs. Feickert, but also of the many other estimable ladies in New Jersey who are leading the Suffrage movement. I do maintain, however, what I stated in Plainfield, that they have little, if any, idea of the problem of suffrage here in the East from the standpoint of its effects upon the women and the State, for if they had they would manifes it in their arguments and speeches on the subject.

Mrs. Feickert says that I gave "no evidence of knowing how woman suffrage has worked in those States which have had it for many years." Neither did Mrs. Feickert. And for the good and sufficient reason which I pointed out, that Suffrage hasn't "worked' in those States. The burden of proof is on Mrs. Feickert, and indeed on every Suffrage advocate to show that the experiment of suffrage in those Western States demonstrates its expediency for Women and for the State. Did I not quote during our Cranford debate, Senator Helen Ring Robinson's reply to my question to her (Mrs. Robinson) in a recent debate in Philadelphia, when I asked her what Woman Suffrage had done for Colorado that hasn't been done by male suffrage States of like social and industrial conditions,and she answered that the greatest benefit of equal suffrage is in the fact that "A high and splendid comradeship between the men and women has followed its grant." That's how suffrage has "worked" in Colorado, according to one who certainly ought to know and yet as I told Senator Robinson in rebuttal, we men and women of New Jersey are very companionable and our divorce rate is lower than that of Colorado. It isn't that I don't know how Women Suffrage has "worked" in those States but rather that I do know how it hasn't "worked", and it is precisely because it has not bettered conditions or the electorate that I maintain its proven inexpediency for Eastern States whose problems of economics population and government are so vastly more complex than those of the Western "Suffrage Acres".

Did I not further show in Cranford how Suffrage has not "worked" in Utah when I called attention to the fact that Mormonism is on the increase and that only last week a former United States Senator in speaking at Princeton warned his audience of the alarming strides of Mormonism not only in Utah but in adjacent Suffrage States. Or does Mrs. Feickert think that because Mormon Utah's divorce rate is very low that Suffrage has "worked" in Utah? It isn't Suffrage that has "worked" in this instance, but polygamy. Furthermore I explicitly stated after showing how suffrage has not worked in those States (and I citied many more instances) that I didn't blame the Women Suffragists entirely for what had not been done nor for what had been done badly but insisted that its virtual failure in the West nullified the claims of its expediency here in the vastly different East.

Now as to Mrs.Feickert's statement that I "showed' no realizing sense of the ethics of a debate," I most respectfully disagree with her, unless indeed she means her idea of the ethics of debate. The extent of my unethical conduct according to her letter seems to be that I spent all of the first period allotted to me in "misstating" what she had said. This I fear is a mistake rather than a misstatement on Mrs. Feickert's part. As I very vividly recall it I spent those thirty minutes refuting statements by Mrs. Feickert which I am disposed to consider were mistakes on her part. If Mrs. Feickert will just jog her memory she will recall that I started my first speech by telling the audience that she had done nothing to prove her case and I called upon her more than once for the statistical and other sources of information, whence she culled rather extraordinary figures and supposed facts. That she had to spend a good part of her second period in setting straight my socalled "misstatements of her presentation of the Suffrage side" is not to be marvelled at since she only had fifteen minutes to present over again what she had failed to do in her original thirty minutes. And furthermore speaking of the ethics of debate they have ever been the fire escape in the conflagration of defeat.

Mrs. Feickert further finds fault that I said she failed to answer a question relative to a claim she made for Woman Suffrage in its effect upon the liquor traffic. I did not say she failed to answer. As I recall it she did answer by saying that she wasn't supposed to be an encyclopedia, and I agreed with her, tho I ventured she wae woefully abridged.

As to my "defeat" at the debate by a margin of eight votes I am not trying to "account" for it. I am much more interested and gratified to know that in Cranford at the first Anti-Suffrage presentation ninety-eight people including a majority of the men present (the men vote) are satisfied of the inexpediency of Woman Suffrage for Women and the State. And tho I can't call the lady by name I may say to Mrs. Feickert that one of her Rahway sisters said to me at the door "here are the eight that gave us the debate and we are all from Rahway." So that there would seem to be really some show of reason to claim that I was "speaking before an audience of Suffragists."

There is one mistake in Mrs. Feickert's letter however which I must lay special emphasis on because it is one of those mistakes which if made by an informed person would be a misstatement. She says "During his one term in the Assembly Mr. Matthews voted against the bill raising the age of protection for girls from sixteen to eighteen years, and he said in Cranford that the State of Delaware in allowing its age of protection to remain at eight years, no doubt expects, their natural guardians, their fathers, to protect them (by hanging those who injure them perhaps? That is the way it is done in the South)!"

Now if Mrs. Feickert will turn to pages 205-206 of the Minutes of the Assembly for the year 1913, when I was a member she will find in black and white that I did not vote against Assembly Bill 54, the bill in question, but that I voted for it. There were only two votes against it those of Mr. Burton and Mr. Kirkpatrick of Middlesex County, both of whom voted for the Woman Suffrage Amendment. That bill got to third reading in the Setnate, was laid over four times at the request of Senator Colgate of Essex (who by the way may be my opponent for the Senate next Fall) and remained unpassed in the Senate at the end of the session. And may I tell Mrs. Feickert that former Senator Davis who championed the Suffrage resolution in the Senate, and who also is an honest upright, public spirited man, refused me personally to stand for the bill when I tried to help its author, Mr. Fishler, of Essex, to get it through the Senate and Senator Davis' reason for refusal were honest and coguent. This is a case I venture where it were better for the "cause" of Woman Suffrage if its advocates were more careful of the sources of their information and it may throw additional light on why it took Mrs. Feickert the greater part of her second period of her debate to "set straight my misstatements of her presentation of the Suffrage side."

As to my supposed statement about the age of consent in Delaware, I never mentioned Delaware in Cranford and if I had I would have said that its age of consent law fixes not eight years, as Mrs. Feickert says, for Delaware's law fixes the age at seven years. I am sure that Mrs. Feickert would not have to be an encyclopedia to know that and may I not add that it is dangerous as well as unfair to deal with subjects that one is not informed about.

Now as to Mrs. Feickert's prediction that it will be easy to defeat me for the Senate I may say that I trust she will do her best for I know of no better medium of getting before the public than her opposition. If the sole title to political office in New Jersey is to be advocacy of the cause of Votes for Woman than public opinion can afford to take a vacation. I trust however that those Minutes of the Assembly Session of 1913 won't be any handicap to Mrs. Fieckert.

I shall pass over in charitable silence the Standard for Womanhood which Mrs. Fieckert so unfairly cites as "identical" with my ideas, and simply ask her to read the paragraphs immediately preceding and following the one she quotes from the book entitled "Votes for Men" at the same time assuring her that there is no more efficient way to distort the truth than to take it from its context.

In conclusion may I say that the mistakes in Mrs. Feickert's letter but serve to emphasize the inexpediency of Womn Suffrage. They are evidence of the danger not of votes for women, but politics for women.

JOHN A. MATTHEWS,
April 27, 1914. Newark, N. J.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

Will you kindly grant me space sufficient in your columns, to pay a small tribute to the memory of a man, that many men in this city, myself included, were proud to call, not only our employer, but our friend? I refer to the late David E. Titsworth. He was so well and favorably known in this city, that to the average person, it would appear as if nothing more were needed, than that already known, to place him in the highest niche of memory. But there was a side to the man, that was little known, except by those of his employes or friends who were in trouble, and to that side of the man, I want to pay tribute. Every person knows that employer and employe, have their differences, but very few employers can so far forget those differences, as to extend the helping hand, immediately following such a difference, but such a man was David E. Titsworth. One instance I will quote. A few years ago, a man in the employ of the Potter Printing Press Company was discharged by Mr. Titsworth's orders, who had broken the company's rules as to sobriety, beyond any possible hope of repair. He had been warned of his impending fate, time after time, until all warnings seemed unavailing. And as a last resort, he was discharged. On account of the pleadings of his wife he was again given his old position, only to hold it a short time, when he again forfeited the position. Two weeks after this, his faithful wife was taken suddenly ill, and died. The undertaker, who had not been paid for a former burial in the family, refused to bury the wife, unless guaranteed his pay. This man, in his trouble, called Mr. Titsworth out of a meeting in the Seventh-Day Baptist church, told him his trouble, and Mr. Titsworth not only furnished the money for the burial of the wife, but restored the man to his former position which he held, until claimed by the great reaper, death. No man ever appealed to Mr. Titsworth for advice or help and was refused either. And many a family, irrespective of religious creed or difference, was helped, beyond their expectations, from an unknown source, that eternity alone will reveal, that the source of their help was Mr. Titsworth. Personally speaking, I owe the man a debt, that I feel can never be repaid. I have gone to him for advice when he was so pressed for time, that it would seem impossible to enlist his aid. But no matter how busy, his ear was always open to any appeal, and he was glad to render help, where help was needed, glad of the fact that his men would come to him with their troubles. This is the side of Mr. Titsworth's character that was little known, except by those who went to him with their troubles, and to this cidel want to bear public testimony. A something, that to him living, would be repellant. But to his memory, a slight tribute that I feel is justly his beyond my feeble capacity to render. Personally speaking, I know I have lost a friend, and I know, I pen the sentiments of many others who feel the same way. A friend in need is a friend indeed. Anyone who has ever worked for the Potter Printing Press Company, of which Mr. Titsworth was general manager, knows their splendid reputation for square dealing with their men, and though he has left us, I feel that through him, that reputation became a standard, that any company employing men could emu-

270 ENTOMBED BY EXPLOSION

SOME BODIES RECOVERED.

Charleston, W. Va., April 29.—Successive explosions occurred in mine shafts Nos. 5 and 6 of the New River Collieries company, belonging to Guggenheims, located at Eccles, Raleigh county, eighty-five miles northeast of here. Two hundred and seventy men are entombed. The explosion was followed by fire.

Little hope is entertained of saving the miners. Rescuers trying to gain entrance to the mines have been driven back to the surface by the flames. The wives and children of miners are gathered at the main entrance, and the scenes are pathetic. Rescue crews from the nearby mining towns were rushed here, including the rescue car of the United States bureau of mines stationed at Bluefields, W. Va.

The mine is controlled by the Guggenheims, whose interests here represent an outlay of about $10,000,000.

Volunteer rescue crews penetrated No. 5 and No. 6 mines 200 feet when they were stopped by fire. All the entries in the mines are burning, and little hope is entertained that the entombed miners will be taken out alive.

The rescue crews under the direction of local Superintendent M. E. Kent took two foreigners from mine No. 5 and one from mine No. 6, all so severely burned that they are unrecognizable. They are expected to die.

Bodies Found.

The known dead taken from mine No. 6 are Carl Warden, A. W. Gaughman and F. J. Lingerton, all white natives, with the body of an unidentified white.

Nick Jones, a Hungarian, was found dead near the bottom of the shaft in No. 5, the only body rescued from there.

Both mines are filled with poisonous gas, and the rescue parties are having difficulty in reaching any of the rooms. The passageways are all choked except No. 6, and a survey of the mine has not resulted in the finding of any miners.

Three successive explosions in No. 5 wrecked the interior in such a way that if gas has not killed the men many of them have been crushed by falling timbers, earth and coal. Timbers were thrown from the shaft mouth a distance of more than 200 yards, wrecking the buildings at the exit.

Mine No. 5 is burning fiercely, with government, state and volunteer rescuers working desperately to subdue the flames.

The depth of the two main shafts is 600 feet, and the mines are connected under ground. There are two other shafts into the mines, but the explosion totally wrecked three out of the four. The lone entrance leads into mine No. 6, and by means of it the rescues were made. The No. 5 mine apparently is completely shut off from the surface.

The first explosion occurred in No. 5. The two shafts of this mine were demolished. It is believed the explosion traveled through this mine into No. 6. One shaft of the latter mine was wrecked, but the other remains intact and was the salvation of the workmen who escaped.

It is believed that the explosions were caused by a pocket of gas being ignited by a miner's lamp, enveloping both mines in flames. Debris was hurled forty feet in the air by the impact. No. 5 was wrecked by explosions which occurred fifteen minutes apart. Only one explosion occurred in No. 6.

BENSEL NOT INDICTED.

Albany, N. Y., April 29.—No indictments against State Engineer John A. Bensel, State Superintendent of Public Works Duncan W. Peck, former State Superintendent of Highways C. Gordon Reel and his first deputy, Charles F. Foley, was the report of the Albany grand jury, which for a long time has been considering the evidence of graft in the state highway construction work taken by Governor Glynn's state graft hunter, James W. Osborne.

Commissioner Osborne had referred this testimony to the district attorney of Albany county, with the request that these men be indicted for neglect of duty.

HEAR DISCUSSION ON CIVIC WORKS

DR. MAXSON SPEAKS

Members of the Federation of Men's Clubs conducted their first publice meeting in the parish house of the Grace Episcopal church last night, a large and enthusiastic audience being present. The meeting was held in the nature of a "get-together" event, and Dr. Henry M. Maxson, superintendent of the local public schools, was the principal speaker.

Dr. Maxson's talk was mainly on school work and school efficiency. He also discussed school expenses and the tax rate, and the need for a new school and its location.

In regard to school work, he said that the school should be judged not by the few children that one happened to meet, but by all the pupils collectively, and on that basis it would be found that the schools of today are doing very much more and doing it more effectively than the schools of twenty years ago. In connection with this, he showed about 200 leters recently written by the eighth grade pupils, as a school exercise, exhibiting the kind of training that is given them. There was a paper from every pupil in the class written without notice or preparation, and the exhibit was most interesting and showed excellent work.

In regard to school efficiency, Dr. Maxson dealt especially with spelling, stating that his aim was to make the children able to spell the words in their own vocabulary, cutting out from the spelling lesson those words they would not be likely to use in after life. Working on this basis, he had for each grade a list of about 250 words suitable to the age of the pupils in that grade, and that it was his purpose to focus the effort on these valuable words. In connection with this, he is using a list of 100 words that are the most commonly mis-spelled words in the language, which are given to all the pupils in the school as a test once a year. When it was given, some months ago, the average for all the eighth grade pupils in the city was 96.5 correct; for the seventh grade, the average was 94.8; for the sixth grade, 91.8.

Dr. Maxson also showed a very interesting collectiton of charts, with graphs or curves, such as the manufacturer uses for attaining efficiency in the shop, which Dr. Maxson uses for promoting efficiency in arithmetic and in language, showing that the schools were doing excellent work and making good progress from year to year.

His address was listened to with great interest, and later developed much interesting discussion. At the close of the meeting a unanimous vote of confidence in the Board of Education was given.

Dr. Maxson's talk was followed by a discussion, in which a large number of those interested in the topics mentioned took an active part.

Councilman Richard A. Claybrook also spoke at the meeting, telling of the ordinance proposed at the last meeting of the council to limit the number of saloons to one for every 2,500 population. He told of the possibility of four instead of two saloons being added next year if the ordinance is not put into effect, and urged that it be carried through before the election in the fall, when four new councilmen will be elected.

In addition to the talks on topics of civic interest an excellent program of music was rendered by the quartet of the Grace choir and the Dutch Arms band of the Trinity Reformed church. The band rendered a number of pleasing selections during intermissions, all of which were well received. Light refreshments were served.

PLAINFIELD Y. M. C. A. ONE OF THE THREE TEAMS TO DEFEAT TRENTON DEAF MUTES

According to a season's resume compiled by Bill Markley, manager of the Silent Workers basketball team of the State Deaf Mute College at Trenton, the Plainfield Y. M. C. A. basketball team was one of the three opponents to romp off with a victory at the expense of the Capitol City combination during the past season. During 1913-14 the Trentonians played seventeen games, of which twelve were victories, three defeats and two ties. Each of the defeats was recorded by a small margin, the Plainfield decision being 41 to 31. The Marshalls, who claim the undisputed championship of the State, triumphed over the collegians by a count of 30 to 20, and the Hoboken Triangles hung up a verdict of 48 to 44.

Should a history be written on the long basketball career of the Silent Workers, the exclamation point would be much in evidence on the part of those who are inclined to depreciate the ability of the deaf mute in athletic circles. But to spare the reader many a yawn, the boiled down history is that this long career, dating from the very berth of the game itself, has the word "success" spelled at the end of each and every one of its 23 years to date. The Silent Workers have supported a team for 23 years and are recognized as the most formidable group of basketball players in New Jersey.

The local Y. M. C. A. management set a precedent when he brought the collegians to Plainfield and the game was one of the best ever staged hereabouts. The present season to the Deaf Mutes has been an unkind one in their estimation, much difficulty having been encountered in booking games, so versatile has their ability been in the last decade of years. Many teams decline to take the Deaf Mute athletes for one reason or another and much trouble is experienced in soliciting engagements.

The record follows:

Query—Kindly state the different definition of these degrees: "Master of Arts," "Bachelor of Arts," "Bachelor of Philosophy" and "Doctor of Philosophy." H. W. P.

Answer—They indicate the degrees of proficiency in academic or philosophic studies in a college or university, and are also sometimes conferred as honors on distinguished men.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Where is the largest pipe organ in the world, also the second largest? J. X. V.

Answer—The largest organ at present is the one in the Church of Saint Roch, Paris. The next two are in St. Louis and Salt Lake City. Probably of these two the Salt Lake City one is the larger.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Kindly let me know where to get the list of names of people who have been left money by unknown friends or relatives? N B G.

Answer—We know of no such list.

Sporting Editor:

Query—I would like to know if anyone could tell me how to clean a well. We don't use it at all because it isn't full, and when we start to use it it has a very bad smell for a month. Please tell me what to do to the well to always have it full of water? C. L. S.

Answer—Better notify Health Officer Chandler, of the Board of Health, the first thing. The water is probably absolutely unfit to drink if you could get it and would probably cause typhoid fever. It would not smell unless it was very much impure.

Sporting Editor:

Query—Is there any place in this city where I can pose for moving pictures L. K.

Answer—No.

ONE PERSON, NOT THE SCHOOL.

Those interested in the welfare of athletics in the North Plainfield High School have requested us to make public the fact that the poetry submitted to another local paper yesterday dealing with the Becker baseball incident was not compiled at the instigation of the athletic asociation of the school and it was entirely unauthorized. Those at the head of the borough baseball nine allege that the attack was penned by the paper's correspondent in N. P. H. S.

CARLSTROM RELEASED.

Albin Carlstrom, formerly of the Plainfield baseball team, was released yesterday to the Buffalo team of the International League by the Montreal club with whom he has been playing.

DUCKY HOLMES RELEASED.

Ducky Holmes, well-known as a twirler in this section, was released yesterday by President Ebbetts, of the Newark International League Club to the Memphis team of the Southern League.

"INSIDE DOPE" FOR BIG BASEBALL RACE

Chalmers' Trophy Has Already Become the Cause for Keen Competition.

Ren Mulford, Jr., of Cincinnati, chairman of the Chalmers Trophy Commission, has announced the names of the newspaper men who will serve on this commission for the season of 1914. The Chalmers Trophy Commission is a jury of newspaper men who annually select the player in both the National and American Leagues, who has been of most value to his club during the league pennant race, and to the two men selected by this commission, Hugh Chalmers, of Detroit, presents the Chalmers Trophy—which each season consists of two automobiles.

I. E. Sanborn, Chicago Tribune; Tim Murnane, Boston Globe; Abe Yager, Brooklyn Eagle; Jack Ryder, Cincinnati Enquirer; H. G. Salsinger, Detroit News; Grantland Rice, New York Mail; Ralph S. Davis, Pittsburgh Press; J. C. Isaminger, Philadelphia North American; Sid. C. Keener, St. Louis Times; J. Ed. Grillo, Washington Star; Henry P. Edwards, Cleveland Plain Dealer.

The present season will be the fifth consecutive year during which the Chalmers Trophy has been awarded in major league baseball. Mr. Chalmers' original offer to the National Commission in presenting this trophy, was that he would give automobiles to the most worth while players in the major leagues for five years. Since this is the last season included in the acceptance of the trophy by the National Commission, 1914 may terminate the Trophy Commission and the awards.

For the past four years the Chalmers Trophy awards have created interest in baseball circles everywhere; in fact, the competition among the players for these major league prizes has at times closely rivaled the interest in the pennant race among followers of the game.

Mr. Chalmers' idea in offering these annual awards for the players of greatest proved ability was to establish a sort of baseball hall of fame. He felt that in the period of five years, the trophy awards would automatically create such a hall of fame. It is generally conceded by both foliowers and critics of baseball that Mr. Chalmers' original idea has worked out in the most satisfactory manner. The Chalmers Trophy has been awarded to the most famous baseball players in the country, and almost without exception the decisions of the jury of newspaper men forming the Chalmers Commission have been favorably received by the baseball public.

In the first year of Mr. Chalmers' offer, the trophy was officially presented to the player who finished with the highest batting average. Fans will recall that both Cobb and Lajoie, of the American League, finished with a much higher average than any player in the National League; and that the race between the Detroit and Cleveland stars was so close that the official figures had to decide it. The margin in favor of Cobb was only a fraction of 1.1000 per cent.

In view of the extreme closeness of the race Mr. Chalmers very liberally awarded a second car, giving a trophy to each of these great batsmen.

Keen rivalry was aroused by the very closeness of this batting competition, and some unjust criticism was offered. To obviate the possibility of any similar unfortunate situation Mr. Chalmers offered the trophy for the next four years on a different basis: the award to be made to the major league players who proved of greatest value to their teams. Ren Mulford, Jr., a former newspaper man, an old friend of Mr. Chalmers, was asked by the donor to act as chairman of a trophy commission. Under the new award a jury of the leading baseball writers of the country, known as the Chalmers Trophy Commission, was appointed by Mr. Mulford. This commission is composed of one newspaper man from each city in which a major league is represented. In all cities where both National and American Leagues are represented the commission votes on players from both leagues. In cities represented by only one major league, the commissioner votes only for the league in which his city is represented.

By this method the commission of eleven men virtually makes two committees of eight. These eight men, serving for each league, vote for eight players of the league, naming the players as they would rank them in ability and value to their respective teams. In considering the value of a player to his team his conduct on and off the field, his recognition of discipline, are considered as well as batting, fielding, and all around playing ability.

When the eight ballots come in from each league the players who receive eight points each, are placed first on the ballots; those who receive seven points each, are placed second, and so on, down to those who receive one point each who are placed eighth. The player who receives the greatest number of points in either league from the tight ballots gets the trophy. This method assures absolute fairness as a player must be pretty generally recognized over the entire circuit to get the award.

In 1911 the first time the award was made under this system, Ty Cobb received 100 per cent of the votes—in order words he was placed first on all of the American League ballots for a total of 64 points. No other player has been unanimous choice of the Chalmers Commission.

The players in the Chalmers baseball hall of fame are as follows:

For best all 'round playing ability:

1911—American League, Ty Cobb, Detroit; National League, Frank Schulte, Chicago.

The games of the Baraca Two-man Tournament on the Presbyterian alleys, Dunellen, last evening, resulted in the breaking of the triple tie for second place between the Mann and Zink, the Hodge and C. athletes at the same time commending them on their marked ability and skillful execution of this difficult number on the program.

The local association team was accompanied by a large delegation of rooters and witnessed an interesting and profitable demonstration of Y. W. C. A. work. The object of the meeting was to show what the Y. W. C. A. is doing for the twentieth-century girl and the various advantages it offers along many lines. Ten associations from in and about New York attended the celebration and the field of competitors was even larger than was originally anticipated. The program included numerous exercises prominent in the association work, principal among which were jumping, folk dancing, wand drills and calisthenic exercises.

Miss Elizabeth Wetherell accompanied the Plainfield girls and conducted the local association's part of the program. The visiting teams sang their respective association songs during the evening, thus furnishing a musical program in connection with the other events.

RULE TO SHOW CAUSE GRANTED BY COURT

Borough of Middlesex Begins Fight Against Joint Sewage Disposal.

Justice James J. Bergen, sitting in New Brunswick, yesterday, granted a rule to show cause why a writ of certiorari should not issue for a review of the action of the Common Council of this city in authorizing an issue of $300 000 worth of bonds to pay for Plainfield's share in the construction of a proposed joint sewage disposal plant.

Plainfield and the Boroughs of Dunellen and North Plainfield have united to build a sewage disposal plant on the Darling farm, in the Borough of Middlesex, and the scheme is being opposed by the Middlesex Borough officials and a number of residents of Plainfield.

William A. Coddington, of Plainfield, is solicitor for the objectors, and ex-Senator George S. Silzer is associated with him as attorney in the case. Yesterday's application was made by Coddington and Silzer, and the proceedings being of an ex-parte character no opposition to the issuance of a rule to show cause was made.

When the matter is argued, however, Plainfield and the Boroughs of Dunellen and North Plainfield will offer strenuous opposition to the writ of certiorari, and will be represented by Messrs. Lindabury, Depue and Faulks, as special counsel in the case.

It is argued by the Middlesex Borough opponents of the sewage disposal plant that those who desire the disposal plant should build within their own territory, and not attempt to destroy property values in Middlesex Borough, as the project is held to be detrimental to values all along the line.

It is held that the disposal plant, if erected, would be condemned after a few years, and that the money put into the project would be lost to the taxpayers.

The rule to show cause is returnable before Justice Bergen at Elizabeth on Saturday morning. If the writ of certiorari is issued it will hold up the entire project pending a determination of the points at issue in the courts it is said.

ARTISANS ENJOY ANNUAL BANQUET

Painters' Union Celebrates Fourteenth Anniversary of Its Organization.

Laying aside the tools of labor for a short time the members of the Painters, Decorators and Paperhangers' Union, Local No. 480, held their fourth annual banquet last evening at the Hotel Waldorf. The occasion was in honor of the fourteenth anniversary of the local union. Sixty-six journeymen and master painters were seated when Naylor's orchestra began to play.

The menu, as prepared by Henry Windham, was to the "queen's taste," and a spirit of fraternity reigned throughout the evening. John Cardover, president of the union, was toastmaster and in introducing the speakers, briefly outlined the financial standing of the organization, showing that $500 had been paid to the members in sick benefits, $200 to unemployed in the form of donations. The balance in the treasury at the present time amounts close to $1,000.

L. B. Woolston was the first speaker. "I believe in organization," he said, "for without it there is no success. Primitive man was out for himself, and was a failure. Since then the organization of families, tribes, clans and nations was developed, and the effects of organization could be seen. The development of the race must come through co-operation, and this is especially true of labor. The sick benefits and the social gatherings such as this are worthy motives. Don't attempt to be a boss and a journeyman painter at the same time. Be one or the other, and if you, as a journeyman, belong to a union, be a little more than a half-hearted associate; if not for the sake of yourself, then for the sake of your brother. I look forward to the day when there shall also be a Master Painters' Union, and the public and the workman will be better for it."

Alfred Luthman and Clarence Mundy, master painters, also of this city, were among the speakers, the former dwelling mostly on the theme of efficiency.

Joseph O'Neal, president of the State organization, was the last speaker. He complimented the union on the work it is doing. He also referred to the betterment of industrial conditions throughout the State and the increase of trade within the course of the past few months. In regard to the endeavors of the local along the lines of securing an increase of twenty-five cents a day, he suggested to those present that arbitration be given a fair trial, should any disagreement occur over the request. Allan Anderson, secretary and treasurer of the organization, also made a short address on the conditions of the union.

MOTION PICTURE HAS GREAT CHARM

The same charm which endears the printed story of "David Copperfield" to millions, invests the motion picture portrayal of that most popular of Dickens' writings to be shown at the Y. M. C. A. on Friday and Saturday. The depiction of both characters and scenes by English actors amid quaint old English surroundings could not be more effective. The picture was produced under the personal direction of Thomas Bentley, who has been conspicuously successful in adapting Dickens to the stage.

The actual places of which the story tells have been utilized for settings, and we are shown views of Canterbury, the cliffs of Dover, and street scenes that have not changed materially for the past hundred years. The beach at Yarmouth and the home of Pegotty and Ham and little Emily, so often referred to by Copperfield, are reproduced.

Particular care was used in selecting the players who make up the cast. So well chosen are they that they seem to come right out of the book. The types are true and the work of the players is sympathetic. They make the immortal characters, David, Micawber, Uriah Heep, Mr. Murdstone, Dora, Agnes, to live before our eyes.

G. A. R. WILL ASSIST LOCAL BOY SCOUTS

In Flag Raising Ceremonies at New Field Next Saturday Afternoon.

An invitation extended by the Boy Scouts of Plainfield to be present at the flag raising ceremonies to be conducted at the new scout headquarters at the head of Prospect avenue next Saturday afternoon, has been accepted by Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., and they will join the boys in carrying out the proposed program. The G. A. R. is planning to meet at its headquarters, Saturday afternoon, at 2:30 o'clock, and the Boy Scouts will meet at the First Presbyterian church at 3 o'clock.

The address of the afternoon in connection with the flag raising ceremonies will be delivered by Captain William Hand, of the G. A. R., and a number of prominen scout workers are also expected to speak. The engineering corps of the Boy Scouts will meet at the field at 1 o'clock and proceed to lay out the track under the supervision of A. V. Searing.

One hundred scouts representing patrols in all parts of the city, met last night and conducted a final drill prior to the exercises Saturday afternoon. The scouts in the play to be presented in the First Presbyterian church parlors tomorrow night held a final rehearsal last night, and the smoothness with which the affair was run off indicates that the show will be a monster sucess.

CHOICE OF BISHOP INTERESTS CHURCHMEN

The selection of a bishop to succeed the late Rt. Rev. John Scarborough in the New Jersey diocese of the Episcopal church will be the important matter to come before the 142d annual diocesan convention of the church to be held in St. Michael's church, Trenton, Tuesday and Wednesday, May 5 and 6. There is considerable speculation as to the probable choice of the convention, and there is not a single church or rector in the State that is not vitally interested in the matter.

Among those who have been prominently mentioned for the high position are Bishop Thomas of Wyoming; Bishop Griswold, of Salina, Kansas; Rev. Charles Fiske of Baltimore; Bishop Kinsolving, of Brazil; Rev. Alexander Mann, of Boston, and Rev. Mr. Travers, of Pittsburg.

JAIL RIOT LED BY ARLINGTON DANTON

Alleged Debonair Bandit Claims That County Food Is Not Fit to Eat.

W. Arlington Danton, alias Edward Farley and Ray Sampson, the debonnair bandit who is confined in the Union county jail in Elizabeth, pending trial on a charge of holding up two Summit policemen February 21 last, was the ringleader of the riotous mob that raised havoc in the jail quarters yesterday morning, according to information received here today. Danton, who is well known in this city where he lived last summer, and is alleged by the police to have "pulled off" several jobs, collected the prisoners at mess time yesterday and when the usual rations were passed around the inmates refused to touch the food, uttering loud protests against the warden and those who served it.

Declaring that the food given them for some time past has been sour and unfit for human consumption the inmates created a disturbance that attracted a large crowd of people to the walls of the prison yard, many fearing that the inmates would make an attempt to break jail. According to the authorities Danton was the leader of the mutinous crowd and it was only after considerable trouble that the keepers finally quieted the disturbance. Danton has many times declared that the prison rations were far inferior to those served at Delmonico's or other metropolitan restaurants and it is thought that he had been anticipating such an outbreak for some weeks past.

Since being apprehended by the Union county authorities, Danton has been confined in the couty jail at Elizabeth and his former jaunty spirit was given to a forlorn appearance. When seen several days ago the prisoner was haggard and worn and presented an unkempt appearance. He will probably be placed on trial next week.

Railroads have been instructed to prepare for a widespread movement, and to have cars and engines at Central points in readiness to move horses and guns and men.

The Navy also is active, but it is the activity of routine. There are virtually no orders for new movements, the only changes among the ships of the fleet being those dictated by the commanders themselves for the care of refugees and the protection of transports.

Interest centered today in the Americanization of Vera Cruz, through the appointment of a civil government headed and officered by Americans. It was said at the State Department that the move was necessary, for the Mexican laws prohibited civic officers from continuing in office except under the Mexican flag.

Washington, April 29.—Vigrous criticism of the withdrawal of American warships from Tampico when American citizens in that place were in danger from Mexican marksmen, and these Americans were rescued by British and German warships, was made in the Senate today. "I cannot help feeling that it is a good thing to protect our own citizens ourselves," said Senator Lodge, of Massachusets, who pointed out that American gunboats had been withdrawn from Tampico because it was feared that their presence might inflame a Mexican mob against American citizens in Tampico. "We should have landed men from American warships instead of withdrawing our ships, and then we could have protected all Americans without their being rescued by forcigners," continued Senator Lodge. The debate over the withdrawal of the American ships from Tampico was precipitated by the introduction of several teiegrams from refugees in Galveston. One of the telegrams sent by J. B. Wood was considered so offensive by Democratic Senators that they demanded that it be stricken from the record. The dispatch stated in part: "There would be few refugees saved today had it not been for the intervention of German and British gunboats, which is no doubt a disappointment to the State Department.

Vera Cruz, April 29.—Scantily clad, almost famished, 103 refugees from Terra Blanca, Motzorongo, Vista Hermosa and Cordoba arrived here early today. During the trip they were forced to walk six miles where the railroad track had been torn up. A number of women with babes in arms were in the party.

Appalling conditions in isolated sections were reported. One American had been imprisoned six days without hearing or trial on Huerta's order, he said.

Vera Cruz, via Galveston, April 29 (From Alfred J. Rorke, special correspondent of the Central News)—Aeroplane scouts have ascertained that the Mexican, General Maas, has taken up a position at Paso Del Macho, about 150 miles from here, with an army composed mainly of convicts and boys. A special train from Mexico City arrived last night having on board Commander Hugh Tweedy of the British Cruiser Essex, and a number of Americans who had been imprisoned in Cordova and who were picked up enroute.

Tweedy said he went to see General Huerta on Sunday in behalf of Admiral Craddock, to induce him to release American subjects marooned in the capitol. Huerta, General Blanquet and Foreign Secretary Rojas assured him all Americans desiring to leave Mexico City might go via Puerto Mexico. Huerta, however, refused to supply escorts for the trains, declaring it unnecessary. In consequence two British subjects will escort each train. Tweedy was assured all Americans who had been imprisoned were released.

Last night Robert J. Kerr, lawyer, of Mexico City and Chicago, was sworn in as Civil Governor of Vera Cruz. He will relieve General Funston of that part of administrative work which cannot be performed well by military officers.

The disembarkations of General Funston's brigade from Galveston is completed. The general has established himself at the old military headquarters of General Maas, but he will not take command of the city until tomorrow. Meantime, blue jackets are being withdrawn to their ships.

MISSIONARY TEA.

The annual foreign missionary tea under the auspices of the Women's Association of the Congregational church was held yesterday afternoon at the parish house of the church. Mrs. Harry Wade Hicks, who recently toured the world on an inspection tour of various mission stations, was the guest of honor of the occasion. Mrs. Hicks gave an address on the "Highways and Byways in Turkey," having her talk illustrated by many stereopticon slides. Mrs. Charles A. Rice, president of the association, presided. A social hour and informal reception to Mrs. Hicks followed.

"DUTCH SUPPER."

The Women's Relief Corps, No. 10, conected with Winfield Scott Post, No. 73, G. A. R., will hold a "Dutch Supper" at Reform Hall, Friday evening, from 6 to 8:30. The committee in charge consists of the Misses Harriet L. Gibbs, Mary E. Ritchell, Ada T. Velard, Harriet L. Kirch, Elsie Perrine and Mrs. Katherine Perry.

SENATOR THOMAS.

Demanded Federal Intervention In the Colorado Mine War.

SKIRMISHES CONTINUE IN COAL MINE RIOTS

(By Telegraph to The Daily Press.)

Trinidad, Col., April 29.—Constant skirmishes between the strikers, mine guards and the State Militia marked the last twenty-four hours prior to the arrival of several troops of United States cavalry today. Sniping fro mroadside brush and from hill tops into canyons was indulged in by both strikers and mine guards. Almost every human being that appeared in the vicinity of Walensburg was a target for one faction or the other, and sometimes both.

Henry D. Sloyd, blacksmith of Walensburg, was riding his motorcycle on the Pueblo road near the hog back enclosure. His fiancee was on the rear. A shot rang out and Sloyd tumbled from the machine dead. The cycle flung down the hog back, smashed against a tree and the girl was dangerously hurt.

Mine guards dragged two home made cannon muzzle loading, to the top o fwater tank hill, where the reservoir of water for the Walsen mine is located. Across the cannon is a tent colony of strikers. The men had been evicted from company owned houses in the town, and were forced to flee to the hills with their families. Loading the two canron to the muzzle with horse shoes, scrap iron and stones the mine guards charge dthem with several pounds of giant powder and touched the moff. Th efirst volley tore eight tents, huts and cabin in the miners colony to pieces, bu twounded no one as the miners had seen the cannon being dragged into position and had abandoned their camp.

Severe rainstorms this afternoon caused a cessation of hostilities for the time being.

Denver, April 29.—United States cavalry troops from Fort D. A. Russell, Cheyenne, Wyo., arrived here today en route for the mine strike war in the Southern Colorado coal fields. They left at once for Canon City.

The men arrived in Canon City in a downpour of rain, which ended hostilities at the Walsen mine, near Walsenburg, where the fighting between strikers and militia has been serious.

Nothing could be more artistic than an attractive little basket overflowing with graceful vines or flowers. This dainty design of baskets and shamrock may be used on lingerie pillows, bureau-scarfs, pillow-shams and bags. There are 4 motifs in pattern No. 13321, each 7½ inches high by 10½ inches wide. The baskets should be embroidered in outline-stitch and the shamrock in solid work or outline and seed-stitch. Mercerized cotton should be used for embroidering this design on linen, lawn or any wash material as it launders better than silk. Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern can be supplied to readers for 15 cents.

WHEN SHAD IS PLENTIFUL.

SHAD is one of our most popular food fishes, and now that it is in season those who are fond of it are enjoying it in every style.

Shad Timbales.—Free the fish from the skin and bones, chop as fine as possible and pound to a pulp. Press this pulp through a fine sieve. To each cupful add half a teaspoonful of salt, a little cayenne, the raw white of one egg and a little thick cream. Beat until blended and smooth, putting in the cream at the last. Have ready timbale molds, well buttered; fill even full with the mixture, place in a deep pan, pour around the molds some boiling water, cover molds with buttered paper and bake in a moderate oven.

Cooked In Salted Water.

Boiled Shad.—For this purpose the fish need not be scaled, but simply cleaned and washed. Put into boiling salted water and boil slowly for three-quarters of an hour. Drain and serve on a napkin garnished with sliced lemon and parsley.

Spiced Shad.—When the shad has been washed and dried place it in a large baking pan with pepper, salt and butter and bake slowly for twenty minutes. Then sprinkle with one teaspoonful of cloves, cinnamon and allspice and a dash of cayenne and pour over this one cupful of vinegar and bake half an hour more.

With a Ham Dressing.

Baked Shad.—Keep on the head and fins. Make a dressing of grated bread-crumbs, cold boiled ham or bacon minced fine, sweet marjoram, red pepper and a little powdered mace or clove. Moisten it with beaten yolks of eggs. Stuff the inside of the fish with it, reserving a little to rub over the outside, having first rubbed the fish all over with yolk of egg.

Planked Shad.—Select a firm, good sized fish and cut off the head and tail and detach the spinal bone. Season inside and out with salt and pepper and roll in flour. Now fry in butter or olive oil for five minutes. The plank, which is preferable when made of oak, should be well oiled with olive oil. Place the fish on the plank skin side down and bake in an oven for twenty minutes. Garnish the fish with lemon and parsley and serve on the plank.

The Big Dog That Won the Bravery Medal.

DADDY had never told Jack and Evelyn about the great, big dog who had been awarded a medal for having rescued two children. When daddy suggested telling them this story they were very eager to hear it at once.

"You see," commenced daddy, "this big dog saved the children's lives in the winter. Every night I've meant to tell you this story, and every night some other story has come to my mind first.

"The other day they gave the dog this medal, and so I decided I must not put off telling you the story any longer.

"The medal was made just for the dog. It was of bronze, engraved with his name and the date when he saved the children. It had a clasp on it, so it could be attached to his collar.

"And now I will tell you the story. Way back in the winter two children were skating on a pond. It was a blustery, snowy afternoon, and they were the only ones on the ice.

"This big dog I'm telling you about was taking a good run on this cold winter's day when he spied the children on the pond.

"He went down to the pond and ran across it a little way, but the ice had a bad way of creaking, and he was sure it was not so very firm. He decided that he had better stay around to see that nothing happened to the children.

"He had been there but a moment or two when a terrific crack in the ice sounded. It gave way, and the two children fell through. The sheet broke rapidly, and the water was soon clear for some distance around them.

"Quickly the dog went to the rescue of the children and swam to the shore with them. He saw some people drive by in a sleigh on the road above, and he barked so frantically that they stopped to see what the trouble was. Then, of course, they drove the two children to their home. The big dog went along too.

"Now, all that was in the winter, but the children never forgot who saved their lives, and the mother and daddy of the children were, oh, so grateful! The people in the sleigh never admired any animal as they did the dog who had made them stop by his wise barking, and so the other day a real reception was held for him. At this he was given the medal. His friends wanted him to have something to wear on his collar so that people might see it and appreciate the bravery and presence of mind of the great, big splendid dog. The hero simply said 'Bow-wow' when they fastened the medal on his collar. He wanted to tell them that he thought they were being very good to him, and he thanked them, but at the same time he was so modest that he didn't think he had been so brave. He felt any other dog would have done just the same, for, as he adored children and they were always so good to him."

VOTES FOR WOMEN

Conducted by the Equal Suffrage League of Plainfield and North Plainfield.

Is Suffrage a menace to the home? In our present system of privileged Suffrage, no one has ever thought of advocating so astounding a doctrine. One might as well ask, "Is government a menace to the home?" When the son of the family reaches his majority, and becomes a voter in consequence, does he at once become a menace to the home? How foolish such statements seem, and yet, if the woman of the family is given the vote, she at once will become a "menace to the home," according to one of the popular danger signals of the "antis."

Government in a civilized state of society is a necessity. Is it a necessity that, for that government to be safe and sane, that one-half of all of the people governed, should have absolutely no part in that government? This seems rather inconsistent from the people of a great nation that has been the first to demonstrate to the world that democracy, on a large scale, is a success. By what line of reasoning, then, can it possibly be demonstrated that to extend the vote to women, and thus further prove to the world that we do not have a "privileged class," is going to so "menace" the home, that we are willing to go on preacting democracy, while we fail to practice it.

What is there about casting a ballot on election day, or about the knowledge necessary to cast that ballot intelligently, that is going to be so demoralizing to women, that the very foundations of existence are going to be shaken, if they perform this very important duty and privilege of existence in civilized society? We have been taught to believe that "knowledge is power." Why then this great concern about the danger to women of this very important kind of knowledge? Knowledge about almost every other thing under the sun is freely and unquestionably accorded to women in this day. Why I ask then, this peculiar distinction? Such distinction is artificial and ridiculous. If such knowledge for women is destructive to the best interests of society, then all knowledge for women must be destructive to the best interests of society. Can it be possible that any one believes this in this enlightened age? It cannot be that the mere casting of a ballot is so attendant with danger. It must be, then, that the intelligence necessary is the point of danger.

The opponents of Woman's Suffrage, I fear, take recourse to the very common method of talking about something else, when one's point cannot be proven. When they see, in considering this question, the red flag of danger waving from the home, as a result of Woman's Suffrage, it seems to me that they must be thinking about the great change that has already taken place in the business and professional world, and given woman a place there. There is at least, from one point of view, some reason for seeing in this, a menace to the home.

What would happen if all of the men of the world should become physicians, lawyers or bookkeepers? There is just about as much reason to suppose that all of the women of the world are going to become stenographers, teachers or politicians with Woman's Suffrage. The great law of creation precluded any such calamity when it provided the individual difference in human beings known as temperament. It is true that Woman's Suffrage cannot and will not change the laws of nature. Its opponents seem to think that it can and will.

Woman is in business and in the professions, and as yet, we do not have Woman's Suffrage in the States in which, proportionally, she has made the greatest invasion with the business world. Has this been a "menace" to the home? By no just line of reasoning can it be so proven. It has relieved many a home by making the daughter self-supporting. If it has, as some people contend, lowered the wages, in certain fields, I wish to remind those people, that it has been man, as the employer, that has fixed the wage scale.

The business world is a training school for the women who enter it. Is the business side of the home, so different from all business that training in the general world of business is an actual handicap? If so, it may be, that it is the business side of the home that needs revolutionizing, and not the method of training. The business side of the home is important, and does need revolutionizing. Most of all it needs to be accorded its proper dignity. Is there a better way to do this than to give the great majority of women, who cannot procure this special training in school or in college a general knowledge of business, through actual contact with the business world. The business women through her broader outlook upon the world is a better wife, mother and homemaker, in that sense which is apart from the business side, than the woman who has not received such training in this or in some other way. In no other phase of life is training considered a "menace." Why, then, for the wife, mother and homemaker?

If participation in the world of affairs depletes a woman's physical resources, instead of strengthens them, then let us bend our energies toward reform in the logical place. Who would wish to eliminate the home because the physical resources of many a woman are depleted by exercising the duties of wife, mother and homemaker?

The great majority of educated and trained women, no matter by what means that training has been received, do marry. It would be rather a sad commentary on marriage, to make ignorance and lack of training a qualification for its success. They have never proven themselves to be a "menace" to the home. The ground for fear in this direction seems, then, to be unfounded. A few women, it is true, do not marry. Who can say, however, that the economically independent "bachelor girl" of the present day, on the whole, is not an improvement on the dependent "old maid" of the past generation? Almost everyone can instance some case in which this same "old maid" has been a distinctly felt burden to some home.

Woman's Suffrage, most emphatically does not stand for the destruction of the home. It is on account of their devotion to the home that they are, on the whole, a little less active than their sister "antis" in campaigning for their cause.

Every advance movement in the world's history has always awakened in the minds of many people, visions of dreadful and dire consequences. In spite of this the world has improved, made progress and is still moving onward. As a part of this great forward movement, Woman's Suffrage is inevitable, in spite of all foolish predictions of dire consequences.

By Alice Gibson

A smart feature of this blouse is the becoming V shaped yoke, which may be made of contrasting material very effectively. For instance, if the blouse were made of a dark material to match a costume the necessary bit of white at the throat could be introduced by having this yoke and collar of hemstitched crêpe de Chine or net in white.

7828 is a model suitable for almost any blouse material, linen, silk or flannel. As wash silk is used so much at the moment by the business girl or woman, I wish to offer a suggestion that may be of use. Often after a frock or waist has been laundered there is an unexplainable drawing of the seams. If the thread is soaked in cold water for some time and then allowed to dry thoroughly before using with wash materials this will never occur.

This blouse may be made in size 36 with 2¼ yards of 36 inch material.

This Is a Perfect Pattern.

It may be obtained by filling out the coupon and enclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin to the Pattern Department of this paper.

BY KATE DOUGLAS WIGGIN

Author of "Rebecca of Sunnybrook Farm"

CHAPTER XIII.

Ivory's Mother.

"I HAD a daughter once," she said. "My second baby was a girl, but she lived only a few weeks. I need her very much, for I am a great care to Ivory. He is son and daughter both, now that Mr. Boynton is away from home. You did not see any one in the road as you turned in from the bars, I suppose?"

"No," answered Waitstill, surprised and confused, "but I didn't really notice. I was thinking of a cool place for my horse to stand."

"I sit out here in these warm afternoons," Mrs. Boynton continued, shading her eyes and looking across the fields, "because I can see so far down the lane. I have the supper table set for my husband already, and there is a surprise for him, a saucer of wild strawberries I picked for him this morning. If he does not come I always take away the plate and cup before Ivory gets here. It seems to make him unhappy."

"He doesn't like it when you are disappointed, I suppose," Waitstill ventured. "I have brought my knitting, Mrs. Boynton, so that I needn't keep you idle if you wish to work. May I sit down a few minutes? And here is a cottage cheese for Ivory and Rodman and a jar of plums for you preserved from my own garden."

Mrs. Boynton's eyes searched the face of this visitor from a world she had almost forgotten and, finding nothing but tenderness there, said, with just a trace of bewilderment: "Thank you. Yes, do sit down. My work-basket is just inside the door. Take that rocking chair. I don't have another one out here because I have never been in the habit of seeing visitors."

"I hope I am not intruding," stammered Waitstill, seating herself and beginning her knitting to see if it would lessen the sense of strain between them.

"Not at all. I always loved young and beautiful people, and so did my husband. If he comes while you are here do not go away, but sit with him while I get his supper. If Elder Cochrane should be with him you would see two wonderful men. They went away together to do some missionary work in Maine and New Hampshire, and perhaps they will come back together. I do not welcome callers because they always ask so many difficult questions, but you are different and have asked me none at all."

"I should not think of asking questions, Mrs. Boynton."

"Not that I should mind answering them," continued Ivory's mother, "except that it tires my head very much to think. You must not imagine I am ill; it is only that I have a very bad memory, and when people ask me to remember something or to give an answer quickly it confuses me the more. Even now I have forgotten why you came and where you live, but I have not forgotten your beautiful name."

"Ivory thought you might be lonely, and I wanted so much to know you that I could not keep away any longer, for I am lonely and unhappy too. I am always watching and hoping for what has never come yet. I have no mother, you have lost your daughter; I thought—I thought—perhaps we could be a comfort to each other." And Waitstill rose from her chair and put out her hand to help Mrs. Boynton down the steps, she looked so frail, so transparent, so prematurely aged. "I could not come very often, but if I could only smooth your hair sometimes when your head aches or do some cooking for you or read to you or any little thing like that as I would for my own mother, if I could, I should be so glad!"

Waitstill stood a head higher than Ivory's mother, and the glowing health of her, the steadiness of her voice, the warmth of her handclasp must have made her seem like a strong refuge to this storm tossed derelict. The deep furrow between Lois Boynton's eyes relaxed a trifle, the blood in her veins ran a little more swiftly under the touch of the young hand that held hers so closely. Suddenly a light came into her face and her lip quivered.

"Perhaps I have been remembering wrong all these years," she said. "It is my great trouble, remembering wrong. Perhaps my baby did not die as I thought; perhaps she lived and grew up; perhaps"—her pale cheek burned and her eyes shone like stars—"perhaps she has come back!"

Waitstill could not speak. She put her arm round the trembling figure, holding her as she was wont to hold Patty and with the same protective instinct. The embrace was electric in its effect and set altogether new currents of emotion in circulation. Something in Lois Boynton's perturbed mind seemed to beat its wings against the barriers that had heretofore opposed it and, freeing itself, mounted into clearer air and went singing to the sky. She rested her cheek on the girl's breast with a little sob. "Oh, let me go on remembering wrong!" she sighed from that safe shelter. "Let me go on remembering wrong! It makes me so happy!"

Waitstill gently led her to the rocking chair and sat down beside her on the lowest step, stroking her thin hand. Mrs. Boynton's eyes were closed, her breath came and went quickly, but presently she began to speak hurriedly as if she were relieving a surcharged heart.

"There is something troubling me," she began, "and it would ease my mind if I could tell it to some one who could help. Your hand is so warm and so firm! Oh, hold mine closely and let me draw in strength as long as you can spare it! It is flowing, flowing from your hand into mine, flowing like wine. My thoughts at night are not like my thoughts by day these last weeks. I wake suddenly and feel that my husband has been away a long time and will never come back. Often at night, too, I am in sore trouble about something else, something I have never told Ivory, the first thing I have ever hidden from my dear son, but I think I could tell you if only I could be sure about it."

"Tell me if it will help you. I will try to understand," said Waitstill brokenly.

"Ivory says Rodman is the child of my dead sister. Some one must have told him so. Could it have been I? It haunts me day and night, for unless I am remembering wrong again I never had a sister. I can call to mind neither sister nor brother."

"You went to New Hampshire one winter," Waitstill reminded her gently, as if she were talking to a child. "It was bitter cold for you to take such a hard journey. Your sister died and you brought her little boy, Rodman, back, but you were so ill that a stranger had to take care of you on the stagecoach and drive you to Edgewood next day in his own sleigh. It is no wonder you have forgotten something of what happened, for Dr. Perry hardly brought you through the brain fever that followed that journey."

"I seem to think now that it is not so!" said Mrs. Boynton, opening her eyes and looking at Waitstill despairingly. "I must grope and grope in the dark until I find out what is true and then tell Ivory. God will punish false speaking! His heart is closed against lies and evildoing!"

"He will never punish you if your tired mind remembers wrong," said Waitstill. "He knows, none better, how you have tried to find him and hold him through many a tangled path. I will come as often as I can, and we will try to frighten away these worrying thoughts."

"If you will only come now and then and hold my hand," said Ivory's mother, "hold my hand so that your strength will flow into my weakness, perhaps I shall puzzle it all out and God will help me to remember right before I die."

"Everything that I have power to give away shall be given to you," promised Waitstill. "Now that I know you and you trust me you shall never be left so alone again—not for long, at any rate. When I stay away you will remember that I cannot help it, won't you?"

"Yes, I shall think of you till I see you again. I shall watch the long lane more than ever now. Ivory sometimes takes the path across the fields, but my dear husband will come by the old road, and now there will be you to look for!"

At the Baxters the late supper was over, and the girls had not sat at the table with their father, having eaten earlier by themselves. The hired men had gone home to sleep. Patty had retired to the solitude of her bedroom almost at dusk, quite worn out with the heat, and Waitstill sat under the peach tree in the corner of her own little garden, tatting and thinking of her interview with Ivory's mother. She sat there until nearly 8 o'clock, trying vainly to put together the puzzling details of Lois Boynton's conversation, wondering whether the perplexities that vexed her mind were real or fancied, but warmed to the heart by the affection that the older woman seemed instinctively to feel for her. "She did not know me, yet she cared for me at once," thought Waitstill tenderly and proudly, "and I for her, too, at the first glance."

She heard her father lock the barn

"If you will only come now and then and hold my hand."

and shed and knew that he would be going upstairs immediately, so she quickly went through the side yard and lifted the latch of the kitchen door. It was fastened. She went to the front door, and that, too, was bolted, although it had been standing open all the evening so that if a breeze should spring up it might blow through the house. Her father supposed, of course, that she was in bed, and she dreaded to bring him downstairs for fear of his anger. Still there was no help for it, and she rapped smartly at the side door. There was no answer, and she rapped again, vexed with her own carelessness. Patty's face appeared promptly behind her screen of mosquito netting in the second story, but before she could exchange a word with her sister Deacon Baxter opened the blinds of his bedroom window and put his head out.

"You can try sleepin' outdoors or in the barn tonight," he called. "I didn't say anything to you at supper time, because I wanted to see where you was intendin' to prowl this evenin'."

"I haven't been 'prowling' anywhere, father," answered Waitstill. "I've been out in the garden cooling off. It's only 8 o'clock."

"Well, you can cool off some more," he shouted, his temper now fully aroused, "or go back where you was this afternoon and see if they'll take you in there! I know all about your deceitful tricks. I come home to grind the scythes and found the house and barn empty. Cephas said you'd driven up Saco hill and I took his horse and followed you and saw where you went. Long's you couldn't have a feller callin' on you here to home you thought you'd call on him, did yer, you boldfaced hussy?"

"I am nothing of the sort," the girl answered him quietly. "Ivory Boynton was not at his house. He was in the hayfield. You know it, and you know that I knew it. I went to see a sick, unhappy woman who has no neighbors. I ought to have gone long before. I am not ashamed of it, and I don't regret it. If you ask unreasonable things of me you must expect to be disobeyed once in awhile."

"Must expect to be disobeyed, must I?" the old man cried, his face positively terrifying in its ugliness. "We'll see about that. If you wa'n't callin' on a young man you were callin' on a crazy woman, and I won't have it, I tell you, do you hear? I won't have a daughter o' mine consortin' with any o' that Boynton crew. Perhaps a night outdoors will teach you who's master in this house, you imperdent, shameless girl! We'll try it anyway!" And with that he banged down the window and disappeared, gibbering and jabbering impotent words that she could hear, but not understand.

late with profit. Peace to his ashes, and in closing I will say, that to many of us, his deeds of kindness and loyalty to those in trouble, has erected a memorial that will endure while life shall last; a memorial, replete with acts of kindness that all of us shall cherish, beyond any that could be expressed by the erection of the grandest mausoleum art could produce, or wealth purchase.

GEORGE S. DUFFORD,
675 West Front St., City.

Editor Plainfield Daily Press:

President Mellick of the Muhlenberg Hospital, in the explanatory letter which you published Saturday, says that he writes in order to "correct any false impression" which may have been created by the letter of Mr. William Henry Rogers in regard to his inability to secure treatment for his sick child. It seems to me that Mr. Mellick simply confirms what Mr. Rogers said in regard to the "blundering management" of the hospital, and especially in connection with the erection of new buildings.

Mr. Mellick admits that the hospital has a capacity for only eight cases of a contagious disease and that these must all be of one type. In a community of 30,000 people (and there are at least that many in the radius which was recently solicited for contributions) there is almost sure to be at all times at least one hospital case of some one of the several diseases which are now classed as contagious. So that as soon as one of these secures entrance to the hospital, all of the sufferers from every other kind are automatically barred out.

When the recent campaign was made for the hundred thousand dollars, the impression was given out that this money was to be used to give Plainfield and vicinity a thoroughly equipped hospital to benefit all classes in the community. A building to take care of eight cases of one kind of disease can be put up for two or three thousand dollars. The hundreds of persons of moderate means who contributed to this institution in order to have a place where their fellows in distress might find relief, are entitled to some explanation as to where the rest of this money has gone.

So far as I can find out, the bulk of it has been spent on elaborate private rooms capable of producing a considerable revenue and in which the charges are too high for ordinary people, with a special equipment for maternity cases, which, in the case of those who can afford the hospital prices, are the kind easiest able to be taken care of in their homes. It looks as though the chief aim of the expenditures was for the convenience of the wealthiest citizens.

Mr. Mellick regrets that Mr. Rogers did not telephone before seeking the hospital. Apparently he is not acquainted with our esteemed fellow-citizen of this county or he would know that the second mountain has not as yet been reached by such modern conveniences. Beside, a father anxious for the welfare of a child that he thinks is dying, and especially a man who has been as good a citizen and as willing to aid his fellowman as Mr. Rogers, would naturally think of a hospital as a place always open to those in distress; particularly, as he was not by any means in search of charity but only for that systematized relief which I think many of the contributors to the hospital fund thought they were helping to establish.

Considering the circumstances and the provocation. Mr. Rogers' letter was exceedingly mild. Mr. Mellick's reply implies that the hospital is a private institution from which small favors should be thankfully received. I had always been under the impression that it was of a public nature. If it is a private institution, the present criticisms of it may fall, but, on the other hand, a considerable amount of money has been collected under false pretenses. If it is not a private institution, then the public is entitled to a much fuller explanation from the management than Mr. Mellick has condescended to give.

Very truly yours,
A. C. PLEYDELL.

BORO JUNIORS PLAN FOR ANNUAL SENIOR BANQUET

Elaborate preparations are being made by the members of the junior class of the North Plainfield High School for the annual banquet that the third year class tenders to the seniors every year as a farewell. The "feed" will take place on Friday evening in the manual training building and will be served by Mrs. Henry Johnson, of the borough. This has always been one of the conspicuous social functions of the borough school, and the hosts this year are planning to give their guests a fine time. An effort was made to get some of the men that were formerly conected with the school to act as speakers, but none could be found.

Principal Albert Earley will act as toastmaster, and the main speaker will be A. B. Vossler. Several of the High School teachers will also give short speeches. Besides the members of the senior class, all of the teachers will be present. There will be places for about sixty-five at the table. The following committees have been appointed by Lester Chandler, president of the class: Executive, Ann Hull, Lucy Douglas, Jubilee Rowley, Elmer French and Lester Chandler; favors Hort Tomkinson; place cards, Katherine Giddings, chairman, Elva Lippincott, Emma Ryno; decorations, Marion Doughty, chairman, Margaret Hogan, Lizzie Hummer, Lucy Douglas, Edson Day, Richard Schroeder and Halbert Hutchinson.

MISS WINIFRED DIPLOCK BRIDE OF ANDREW WARE

Miss Winifred Ellen Diplock, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Diplock, of 109 Park place, the borough, was married yesterday afternoon to George Andrew Ware, of Prospect place, the borough. Mayor Robert Clark, Jr., of North Plainfield, officiated. Mr. Ware is employed as an accountant in New York. Both the bride and groom are active members of the Brethren of this city. Mr. and Mrs. Ware will continue to live in the borough.

EX-HUSBAND IS 'GOOD SPORT'

DECREE RECOMMENDED

Local Couple, Separated for Two Years, Appear Before Advisory Master in Jersey City—Leave the Court Room Together.

Alleging that her husband, Albert Lederer, a local real estate dealer, living at 52 Craig place, North Plainfield, deserted her in June, 1910, Mrs. Florence Lederer, of 4 Madison ave- Mster Charles H. Hartshorne, in Jersey City yesterday, for an absolute decree of divorce. The couple were married in 1902 and in filing an answer to her application for a separation Lederer said he was not responsible for the legal action, but would not contest the trial.

In court Mrs. Lederer testified that she had made unsuccessful attempts at a reconciliation, and her statements were corroborated by her sister, Mrs. Vida Siegfried, of Newark. Since their separation two years ago she has been conducting a manicuring and hairdressing shop at her Jersey City address and he has been living in this city. Mrs. Lederer is an attractive brunette and was becomingly and stylishly dressed in court, yesterday.

The Advisory Master announced that he would recommend an interlocutory decree for Mrs. Lederer. While the lawyers were trying to settle the alimony question, they being $1 apart, Mrs. Lederer walked up to her husband and smilingly said:

"Split the difference. What do you care for a dollar? You're a good sport, make it $7.50."

Lederer's lawyer had previously claimed that $7 would be a sufficient amount and her lawyer contended that $8 a week should be provided.

In reply to Mrs. Lederer's statement her ex-husband said:

"I'm game and give her the additional fifty cents."

Five minutes later Mr. and Mrs. Lederer left the court room together but Mr. Lederer did not take his wife's hand when she offered it. They were talking and laughing and appeared to be the best of friends. They have two little girls. Mrs. Lederer was awarded their custody but her husband has the right to see them whenever he pleases.

"KICKS UP" RUMPUS IN DISTRICT COURT

The usual serenity of the District Court was rudely disturbed this morning, when Mary Finneran, plaintiff in a suit against John Bremmer, for damages, kicked up a rumpus that landed her in a cell at police headquarters. She was escorted thither by Constable George Yorke, after his soothing voice and display of authority failed to quiet her. He lost his dignity and several chunks of skin off his face and narrowly escaped being pushed down a flight of stairs before subduing the amazon. She will be arraigned in the city court tomorrow on a disorderly conduct charge.

Mrs. Finneran brought suit for $500 against Bremner, alleging he had given her a beating which cost her a lot of money for doctors and supplies. Her case was about to be called by Judge Hetfield when she made a vicious slap at a woman sitting near her. By the time court attendants could get to her side, Mrs. Finneran broke loose in a violent fit of rage. She yelled, kicked and slapped at imaginary foes and hustled Constable Yorke around like a lightweight before the spasm halfway subsided. She was projected to the hall where she carried on more than ever, fighting off several men who tried to quiet her. When peace overtures failed she was locked up.

ELKS SHOW DATES CHANGED.

It was announced at last night's meeting of Plainfield Lodge of Elks that the dates for the organization's annual minstrel show had been changed from May 13 and 14 to May 20 and 21. The change was made because of conflicting attractions which could not be put over.

MISS CATHERINE LEAL AN APRIL BRIDE

Miss Catherine Leal, sister of Mrs. Lawrence Gerold, of 79 Sandford avenue, and Edward Hadden, of Westervelt avenue, the borough, were quietly married at 8 o'clock last night, at the home of the bride's sister, Rev. Frank Fletcher, of this city, officiating in the presence of the immediate relatives and a few friends. The only attendant was Miss Constance Hadden, daughter of the groom, who was a flower girl. The bride wore a gown of white chiffon, trimmed with lace and she carried bride roses.

The home was attractively decorated for the occasion, there being a pleasing arrangement of pink roses, sweet peas and greens throughout the parlors and dining-room. Following the ceremony congratulations were offered and supper was served. The couple left during the evening on a wedding trip and upon their return will reside in North Plainfield. The bride was employed for several years by the Plainfield Ice and Supply Company and is well-known here. The groom holds a responsible position with Hamlin & Co., insurance brokers, in New York. Mrs. Hadden received a large number of handsome gifts.

Among the guests at the wedding were Mrs. E. F. Thompson, of Walton, N. Y., and Mrs. W. T. Hine, of Delhi, N. Y., sister of the bride, and Mrs. C. H. Pettis, of Walton, N. Y., a niece. The other guests were near relatives and a few close friends of both the bride and groom.

FOURTH OF JULY IN NETHERWOOD

Residents' Association Already Planning for Biggest Time Ever in East End.

GREAT BASEBALL GAME

To Challenge West End Civic Association, Which Means There Will Be "Some Contest"—Greased Pig and Pole Struggles.

Fourth of July is not to be neglected, so far as celebration is concerned, if the Netherwood Residents' Association has anything to say about it. Although the weather up to the present time has served as anything but a reminder of the season around the national holiday, the men of the east end section have already begun to make definite plans for the day, which promises to make it memorable. A committee has been appointed to consider the matter, consisting of A. L. Seidler, C. D. Wardlaw, S. L. Crossing, S. M. Rosenthal, Stanley E. Gunnison and W. L. Hadley, the latter being the chairman. They are instructed to arrange for a "good old fashioned celebration of the Fourth of July" in the Netherwood section of the city, and under the auspices of the Netherwood Residents' Association.

The committee lost no time in getting into action, holding their first meeting at the residence of Chairman Hadley, Tuesday evening, when a general discussion of plans and program was had, and each member of the committte allotted specific matters to attend to at once.

It is planned to have a glorious "safe and sane" time commencing with a general athletic meet for all ages and both sexes of Netherwood residetns, from 10 o'clock a. m. until 1 o'clock p. m. Then a recess will be declared and all will go home for lunch, returning to the scene of activities at 3 o'clock to witness a baseball game between the association team and some crack outside agregation of ball tossers. It is understood that a challenge will be sent to the West End Civic Association team for the occasion. The game will be followed by a parade around Netherwood.

In the evening, well in the evening, by Japanese lantern light, aided and abetted by what moonlight there will be, there will be some more doings, announcement of which will be made later.

TESTIFY BEFORE UTILITY BOARD

Many Local and South Plainfielders Petitioners Ask for Trolley Extension.

NUMEROUS REASONS

Witnesses Declare That Extension of Service Will Mean Much to Both Communities—Hearing Still on in Newark.

Members of the Plainfield and South Plainfield Boards of Trades and representatives from several large manufacturing concerns in this city and South Plainfield are appearing before the Public Utilities Board of this State in Newark today in connection with the hearing being held on the trolley extension proposition. The local and South Plainfield Boards of Trade today made formal application for the Public Service Railway Company's line from this city to South Plainfield and the hearing is being held before Ralph W. E. Donges, president of the Board.

William E. Smith, of South Plainfield, was the first witness called by William E. Newcorn, who represents the petitioners, and on the stand he testified that the present means of travel between the two municipalities involved were too expensive for the average resident of South Plainfield and that there is at present an urgent need for trolley extension. He declared that he had lived in South Plainfield for thirty-seven years and that the present population of the place is between 1,000 and 1,500. He said that auto buses and hacks were the only means of transportation at the present time, the former costing the patron twenty-five cents each round trip between the two places and the latter $2 for each round trip.

William E. Hamilton, of South Plainfield, on the stand corroborated Mr. Smith's testimony and under cross examination by M. D. Gilmore, counsel for the trolley company, declared that the extension of the trolley line would lead to the development of a large amount of property that is at present unimproved.

A. E. Force, of this city, chairman of the Board of Trade's trolley committee, produced a letter that he declared had been forwarded to him by President McCarter, of the Public Service. In the letter the president said that he hoped at some future time to be able to endorse th application that was originally submitted to him for sanction but because of the present condition of the money

PLAINFIELD BOY IN FIRST FIGHT

WELL KNOWN LOCALLY

Letter Written April 22 Gives Vivid Account of Skirmish Fifteen Minutes After the Landing of the U. S. S. New Hampshire.

Many reports have come from the Mexican border line concerning the condition existing in the war territory, but one of the most vivid, and at the same time authentic, was received in Plainfield yesterday, by Mr. and Mrs. James Patterson, of Mariners place, from Alfred Mace Patterson, a local boy, who is a fireman on board the U. S. S. New Hampshire. Young Patterson, in a letter mailed to his parents April 23 says:

"Just a line or two to let you know that we arrived O. K., yesterday, (April 22) at 3:30 o'clock. Had troops ashore and were engaged in a battle fifteen minutes after our landing and there certainly was some fighting. Our captain is the regular commander so our men are in the lead. We have the port under control and expect reinforcements today. The Chester has been firing on the city continually. The Vermont has blown up railroad bridges so there is no way to get to Mexico City except by foot. Nineteen Mexicans were shot last night for firing on the Red Cross. They start the dirty work today when they will start to clean out all the "greasers." They do not fight from the ground, but from the tops of houses. So far we have four dead and ten wounded men on our ship. They were all shot by Mexicans on the roofs of houses. So far I am detained to man the ship. Safe so far."

Young Patterson's letter gives an idea of the actual state of affairs in Mexico shortly after the American warships arrived and shows that some real battling took place during the early part of last week. He has been in the navy for three years and has spent several furloughs with his parents in this city since his enlistment. Patterson is well known to a large number of the younger set in the city having been a pupil in the local public schools and a member of the Seventh grade in the Whittier School when he discontinued his studies. He was also a member of the Hope Chapel Boys' Club and took an active part in all branches of athletics.

Miss Anna B. Doty, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Doty, of Dunellen, and Wesley E. Bush, of this city, were married last evening at the home of the bride's parents. Rev. Ernest R. Brown, pastor of the Dunellen Presbyterian church, officiated. The couple was attended by the bride's cousin, Miss Bessie Morris, who acted as the maid of honor and the best man was Frederick Bush, of this city, brother of the bridegroom. The wedding march was played by Mrs. Harry Lude.

The bride was gowned in white duchess satin, attractively draped with Spanish silk lace and pearl trimmings. She carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maid of honor wore pink crepe meteor and carried a bouquet of ping rosebuds.

A reception followed, being attended only by imediate relatives and friends of the bride and bridegroom. The former received a large collection of gifts. The couple left last night on a southern trip, and upon their return will reside with the bride's parents. The home was attractively decorated for the wedding, white flowers and palms being used principally throughout the house. During the reception supper was served.

CAPT. FREDERICKSON WILL NOT RETIRE UNTIL JUNE 1

Captain Frederickson, of the local police department, announced today that he would defer his resignation until June 1. The Pension Commission will meet tonight to act on his application for a pension. The retiring captain is now sixty-five years old, and has been in the police department more than twenty-three years. He would have been eligible for a pension three years ago had the present regulations in regard to this matter been in effect at that time. The present law provides for a pension for an officer who has been in the department for twenty years and is sixty years of age. The resignation will be acted upon by the city Council, Monday night.

Rev. Gabriel Reid Maguire, of the Park Avenue Baptist church, will preach Sunday morning on "The Preeminent One," and in the evening on "The Two Great Questions."

OPTIMISM OVER PEACE PROSPECTS

SECRECY PREVAILS

Carranza Will Not Agree to Any Terms Which Do Not Eliminate Huerta—All is Quiet Today in Vera Cruz and Mexico City.

Washinton, April 30.—Greater optimism over the possibility of reaching an agreement between the United States and Mexico than has yet been shown by the A. B. C. mediators, was apparent today. The acceptance last night of the principle of mediation by General Carranza has put new heart into the envoys of Brazil, Argentina and Chila. They went into conference today with smiling faces.

The utmost secrecy marks the progress of the mediators work. An almost ludicrous programme of evasion, of attempted evasion, of the small army of newspaper men who hover in the vicinity of the embassy and the two legations, is being followed and back door exits and "gum shoe" entrances are daily practiced by the diplomats. They are "making progress" they say smilingly, when by good fortune they are discovered escaping through an alley or tip-toeing down a side street.

The aceptance of Carranza has simplified the work of the mediators greatly. It has thrown open the field to the consummation of an under standing not only between the United States and the Huerta government, but also between the warring factions in Mexico, itself. It is not believed that any terms can be arranged with Carranza, however, that do not include the abdication of Huerta. This the dictator is expected to refuse to do flatly. In such event, it is foreseen that the mediators will have their work cut out for them. What the outcome will be no one here has the temerity to prophesy.

One fact stands out prominently in all complications. That is the United States will not permit the negotiations to drag along through weary weeks. The Latin method of conducting diplomatic negotiations must give way to the modern, sharp and incisive methods employed by the powers in crises. The mediators have been given to understand this, and they are making vigorous efforts to impress the fact on General Huerta.

Washington, April 30.—Carranza, while willing to entertain further suggestions along the line of mediation, positively will not agree to an armistice during the negotiations.

This statement was made and reiterated today by members of the Junta representing the revolutionary chief in Washington. These representatives declare positively that mediation would not be acceptable to the constitutionalists, and that Carranza's note of last night is in no sense an acceptance or an indication of anything more than a willingness to listen to any proposals which might bring peace out of the chaoic conditions in Mexico. The Carranzaistas still will insist on the elimination of Huerta as will the United States. Some officials of the United States government believe this can be accomplished, while the constitutionalists are positive it cannot be done without continued fighting and refuse to grant a dictator a breathing spell by agreeing to a cessation of hostilities during peace negotiations.

The State Departments attitude, is of course, favoring any development which might possibly block further fighting between the elements in Mexico and strongly opposed to the use of force by the United States. Other members of the cabinet are strongly opposed to a "peace at any price" policy, and an open breach eventually is not impossible.

The administration continues to exert every effort to get every American out of Mexico, in frank fear of hostilities.

(From Alfred J. Rourke, Special Correspondent of the Central News)

Vera Cruz, April 30.—Impressive scenes attended the turning over of the city to General Funston at noon today.

The Naval brigade assembled on the Sanidad wharf, which is close to the scenes where the fiercest fighting of the first two days of the occupation occurred. The men from the Arkansas, the Florida and the Utah took up positions on the right of the line, under Rear Admiral Fletcher in command, and with Rear Admiral Badger standing beside him as the visiting officer. All saluted as the Stars and Stripes were hauled slowly, hand over hand, to the top of the pole. The navy then formally handed over to Gen. Funston the command of the city, with its accompanying responsibilities.

Gen. Funston then formally congratulated the officers and the men of the naval brigade for the excel-

STYLISH RELIABLE

Feeling "at home"

Is a nice thing anywhere; because home is a place where you "do as you like." One of our ambitions is to have folks feel at home in the Rothberg store; to cultivate all thru the place an air of geniality and good-will; not anxious to sell something, but eager and willing to be of service.

Our customers, we think, feel at ease here. We want them to feel so; they're welcome to our time and attention whether they buy or not.

Service here means more than selling; if we can get on terms of mutual confidence and understanding, the buying and selling can take care of themselves.

SAGE TEA KEEPS YOUR HAIR DARK

When Mixed With Sulphur It Brings Back Its Lustre and Abundance.

Gray hair, however handsome, denotes advancing age. We all know the advantages of a youthful appearance. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just a few applications of Sage Tea and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundred-fold.

Don't stay gray! Look young! Either prepare the tonic at home or get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy." Thousands of folks recommend this ready-to-use preparation, because it darkens the hair beautifully and removes dandruff, stops scalp itching and falling hair; besides, no one can possibly tell, as it darkens so naturally and evenly. You moisten a sponge or soft brush with it, drawing this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, its natural color is restored and it becomes thick, glossy and lustrous, and you appear years younger.—Adv.

SAMUEL VERMEULE DIES IN 96TH YEAR

Well-Known Citizen Passes Away at City Industrial Home.

Samuel Vermeule, who would have been ninety-seven years old had he lived another month, died today at the City Industrial Home on Rock avenue. His death, which was due to old age, had been expected for sometime, as he had gradually been growing more feeble every day. Owing to his condition he was scarcely able to recognize anyone for several days.

Mr. Vermeule was a native of this city and was a member of the well-known family bearing his name. During his early life he was a tailor by trade and was prosperous, but in later years he met with reverses. He had been an inmate of the Industrial Home since it was opened and was given every consideration and courtesy by those in charge. Mr. Vermeule has but few relatives. The remains have been removed to the undertaking parlors of George W. Cole and the funeral will be held Saturday the annonucement of which will be made later.

Gardens and Lawns

If your flower or vegetable garden last year was not satisfactory—if your lawn shows bare spots and slow growth, it usually means that the soil has become acid for want of lime.

Edison Pulverized Limestone sweetens soil and produces better flowers and vegetables and gives lawns the soft, smooth, green effect so much desired.

Edison Pulverized Limestone

This natural limestone, pulverized as fine as flour, causes no injury, no matter when or how used. Use it as a top dressing, evenly distributed, both in the garden and on the lawn, and allow the rains to carry it down into the soil. Or, if you don't want to wait for rain you can use the garden hose.

For a garden or lawn, in fair condition last year, use about 100 pounds of the Pulverized Limestone for every 1000 square feet. If they were in poor shape use a larger quantity. Remember, there is no danger from using any amount of Edison Pulverized Limestone.

SUFFRAGE ADVANCES.

This is a week of unprecedented activity on the part of woman suffragists in Plainfield as well as throughout the United States and is being observed by general demonstrations on a scale more elaborte than ever before. Parades, mass meetings and speeches will terminate a week of monster petition signing to call upon Congress once again to consider national suffrage. These are calculated to fix public attention indelibly upon woman's struggle for the ballot.

With such activity and the promise of another great parade of women in Washington next week, it is worth considering the continued advance of the cause of votes for women in this country thus far in 1914. This advance has been somewhat remarkable. It has included a defeat in the United States Senate, but the fact that the Senate was forced to take official recognition of the movement, even though the vote was unfavorable, is pointed to by the women as a big step in advance. This hearing in the Senate has done more than anything else to date to stimulate the leaders to the present renewed efforts and to plan this week's and next Saturday's nation-wide demonstrations.

Suffrage campaigns in the individual states have been making history during these few months in 1914. Women in Illinois and Alaska have voted for the first time this spring and it must be admitted they voted effectively. In five states—Montana, Nebraska, Nevada and North and South Dakota—the voters will pass upon amendments this year to enfranchise women. There the forces of suffrage are engaged in strenuous campaigns which promise to test the ability of the women to urge their claim. These five states form a geographical unit surrounded by suffrage states, a condition which favors the adoption of the amendment. Besides these five, in Ohio and Misouri, initiative petitions are being circulated to submit the question to the voters this fall.

In five other states—Iowa, Pennsylvania, New Jersey, New York and Massachusetts—the constitutional amendment has passed the first Legislature and in all except Iowa the vote may be taken by the people in 1915; legislatures in the last four named meeting in time to approve the proposed amendments before the 1915 elections. Success seems to be flirting with the suffrage forces this year.

News dispatches tell us that William F. Haddock, president of the Actor's Society of America, is raising a regiment of members of that profession to go to the front if volunteers are needed in the Mexico difficulty. From the success which the theatrical profession has had this winter with the new shows, probably the actors would be better off with thirteen dollars a month in the army, than they would waiting to tread the boards. But if they did go, wouldn't the motion picture operators with the army have a busy time trying to get them from in front of the cameras to get views of the battles!

As is always the case when communication is cut off the first reports about Americans in Mexico City indicated that they were being killed, mobbed, thrown into prison and generally abused. Now it turns out that only one man was arrested, and that was because of infraction of the laws of the land. Even Huerta, with all of his anger, realized that the killing or insulting of American citizens would result seriously in the end, and he has sent them all away in comparative safety.

The most remarkable part of the Mexican difficulty is the way in which editions of New York evening papers which go to press about 5:30 in the morning tell about the happenings of that same day, which could not possibly occur until three or four hours after the papers are on the street.

If former Councilman Patrick J. Reville should be named postmaster, as now seems possible, he certainly would be in a position to give the "merry ha! ha!" as the small boy says, to some of those people who have been talking about him.

The Panama Canal tolls question is still being debated in the house, but the war news affords welcome relief by crowding most of the stuff off the front pages, and into an inconspicuous position in the papers.

lent work they had done during and afterwards pacifying the city. Then all again stood at salute while the band played "The Star Spangled Banner."

Earlier in the day the officers commanding different sections of the city drew up their men and personally congratulated them on their excellent work. They reminded the men that, whether in the army or the navy, all who served under the American flag were brothers, and added that, wherever they might be, it was hoped that every arm of the service would work in harmony with every other arm.

The battalion from the Arkansas was escorted to the wharf where the ceremonies took place by the Orphan Band, whose home they had occupied while ashore. The little fellows had become fond of their Gringo protectors.

The little orphans were not the only ones who expressed their regret that the naval men were to leave the city. In various sections of the city many women, who since the naval forces landed have been protected better than ever before, came weeping to the sectional headquarters, begging them to remain. It was difficult to convince them that, although the men of the navy were to go on board the ships, their places would be taken by others of the land forces who would act as well by the people as did the sailors and the marines. Some of the women present pressed presents upon the officers, bringing embroidery and other work of their own hands, which they wished the Americans to carry home with them as tokens of remembrance. Many children brought flowers, too, and the sectional headquarters, before the men left them, resembled conservatories.

Another train has brought 99 refugees into the city. Six of them are Americans, 29 are Germans and the remainder are Spanish. They tell the usual stories of suffering at the hands of mobs inflamed against foreigners.

One hundred prisoners have been released from prison in San Juan, where they were confined by orders from Huerta for refusing to join the army. They were starving and half naked. The sailors are clothing and feeding them.

Washington, April 30.—Burton Wilson, the American lawyer of Mexico City, who was taken off a relief train at Lavillo, was reported safe in Mexico City today, to which place he was returned two days ago. J. B. Starr Hunt and his family, who were removed from the train just before it started, also were reported safe.

MARTINE CRITICISES COLORADO CONDITIONS

Wshington, April 30.—The Colorado strike situation came up for discussion in the Senate today when a telegram from a mass meeting deploring the lawless conditions in the strike regions was submitted to the Senate by Senator Kenyon.

Senator Martine, of New Jersey, a member of the committee which investigated the coal strike in West Virginia last summer criticised in vigorous terms the situation in Colorado.

SUFFRAGE RESOLUTION REPORTED IN U. S. SENATE

Washington, April 30—Senator Owen, of Oklahoma, today reported from the committee on Woman Suffrage the resolution introduced by Senator Shafroth, of Colorado, providing for an amendment to the Constitution for Woman's Suffrage. This resolution differs from that which was presented a month ago to the extent of providing that the final decision shall be left to the States. This obviates the objections raised by the former amendment as to forcing Suffrage upon the States without their consent. An extended report was submitted with the resolution showing in detail its main objects which are to secure submission to the voters of any State a proposition for Woman's Suffrage upon the petition of eight per cent. of the voters of such State. The amendment reported by Senator Owen has the report of the Congressional committee which represents the National Suffrage Association in Washington.

A large and appreciative audience of music lovers attended the joint recital held in the auditorium of the Columbus Club on West Front street, last night, Baroness Olga von Turk-Rohn and Professor Hermann Spielter being the visiting artists. The Baroness rendered a number of excellent soprano solos in a clear and particularly attractive manner.

Her accompanist on the piano, a composer and piano soloist of note, gave a number of especially fine solo numbers, of his own composition. The concert was given under the auspices of the Metropolitan Musical Bureau.

Alfred M. He declared that the Spicer Company at present employs 150 men who go back and forth to the South Plainfield factory from Plainfield in the auto buses provided by the concern which he represented at the hearing.

W. C. T. U. INSTITUTE IN SESSION HERE

The annual spring institute of the Union County W. C. T. U. is being held today at the Park Avenue Baptist church, Mrs. Mary Davis Tomlinson, president of the organization, presiding. A large number of delegates from all parts of the county are in attendance. Mrs. J. L. Manning, of Dunellen, conducted the opening devotional exercises.

Among the features this morning, was an "anti-cigarette" address by Mr. Jefferies, of Philadelphia, who denounced the business of manufacturing and distributing of that which proved to be a fatal influence in the lives of so many young men. Rev. G. R. Maguire, pastor the Park Avenue church, also delivered a short address, commending the work of the Union. "Medal Contest Work and It's Possibilities" was the topic of a discussion by Mrs. Edythe M. Currie, of Cranford.

The rejuvenation of the lawyers' baseball team brings to mind a contest staged between the lawyers and the newspaper men several years ago and a similar contest might be in order following the lawyers' disposition of the doctors this summer. Judge William G. DeMeza who is handling the managerial reins of the combination has some good talent in line for picking and we anticipate seeing a fast regiment turned out to meet the pill chasers.

But we are still wondering what is the matter with the ministers.

That double title tonight on the Saengerbund Hall basketball court looks pretty good when "explanationed" on paper and the festivities at that rendezvous tonight will no doubt wax pretty warm. Basketball in this weather is not altogether appropriate and it goes without saying that the bill is a precedent maker et al.

Speaking of late season performances, it is up to us to mention that much delayed Elks-Knights of Columbus series on the pin chutes. Neither combination appears particularly anxious to assume the role of challenger. Whatsmatter?

More rain ordered up for a side dish tomorrow. Wonder if the baseball season will ever be able to raise the lid? Better baseball ought to be forthcoming as a result of the extra seasoning period.

Watch the debut of suffragette athletes into the local sporting world tomorrow. We'll give 'em a start, but the coaching will have to come from a different source.

Watchung News Item—"Chief of Police E. T. Canning has his force out at daybraek taking cold dips in the lake and cross country runs." Whaddayamean bluecoats snatching cold "dips?"

One N. P. H. S. baseball player has inaugurated a new method of getting rid of a grievance. The player in question made an attempt to burst forth into poetical sarcasm, but did not get away with his debut in a way that spells satisfaction. Better luck next time old man. When angry count one hundred, etc.

Tomorrow's baseball card is an especially tempting one, but Father Jup gets first picking in events of this nature; a little moisture may spoil the morsel for other diners.

Somerville will have a local baseball team this season with Lou Dixon doing the backstop work. "Local," like "professional" has several different meanings in the world of sport.

A new pastime will be introduced at P. H. S. tomorrow night. The girls of the school will conduct a marathon around the corridors as part of their reception program.

FABER'S GOOD WORK WON LEAL'S CONTEST

Captain Pitches in Fine Form and Clips the Ball for a Two Sack Trip.

Leal School ball tossers smeared the Columbia Grammar School combination on Crescent Oval, yesterday afternoon, by a score of 5 to 1. The Plainfield regiment led the scoring from the early stages of the game and the New Yorkers were completely outclassed during the entire issue. Captain Faber pitched in good form for the winners, holding the hit total down to a half dozen and causing eight to hit the empty atmosphere and beat it for the bench.

The Metropolitan twirler was effective at times, but when bingles meant runs the locals could usually be relied upon to bring them over the platter. Four errors went down to the credit of the visitors and three to the local aggregation. Shifts continue to loom up in the Leal fighting front and the array of talent placed as it was yesterday afternoon did some good playing against the speedy invaders.

Faber led the locals with a neat two baggers in the hitting department, and Lyon, Stevenson, Garrigues and Schneider all pounded out one safety.

GIRARD MAKING GOOD WITH LAFAYETTE COLLEGE TEAM

Girard, the youthful twirler who spread terror in the hearts of Plainfield and North Plainfield High School players while wearing a High Bridge High School uniform during the past two seasons, has entered Lafayette College and is making an enviable record for himself on the baseball diamond. Several weeks ago the High Bridge twirler pitched seventeen innings against Cornell, the game being called with the score a 1 to 1 tie.

Playing on Franklin Field, Philadelphia, yesterday afternoon, Girard administered the first home defeat of the season to the University of Pennsylvania nine, letting the Quakers down with the short end of 5 to 1 count. Besides holding the opposition safe at all times and displaying some masterful pitching, Girard aided his team's work by cracking out two hits and scoring a run. In yesterday's game the High Bridge youth did not issue a pass and fanned five of the collegians. He also scored one putout and two assists.

Pitcher Stahl's Support Was Weak.

The North Plainfield High School baseball team lost its third straight games yesterday to the High Bridge High School nine at that place, by a score of 7 to 3. Inability to hit with the bases occupied and the excellent fielding of the home team was the cause of the locals downfall. The game was very close and exciting until the sixth inning when four hits and an error gave the home team three tallies that sewed up the contest.

Stahl was chosen to do the mound work and pitched good ball, but the boroughites were bound to make their gamely errors and had six misplays chalked up against them.

VanMater opened the game by getting hit and went to first, but died there. With one man out and one on the locals pulled three errors in quick succession that let the first run go over against them. In the second Dilts drew a pass, went to second on a fielders choice and scored when Powers threw the ball over first in an effort to get Smalley. In the fourth period, after the borough team had been blanked, May was passed and Dorland, the home twirler, smashed the ball against the center field fence for a triple, scoring May. The "Canadians" were shut out until the seventh, when they scored twice on two singles and a base on balls.

With two down and a man on first in the sixth, Dorland clouted the first ball that Stahl handed him to the right field fence for his second triple and scored on an error. The following inning the High Bridge boys made four singles and mixed with a costly error scored three times making a total of seven. In the last three innings the local team had fine chances to score, but could not hit the ball safely. In the ninth inning there were three on base and only one down, with Townley at the bat. He hit a hot one to the pitcher who nailed it and threw to third base, ending the game with a double play.

Stahl struck out eight men and passed three. For the home team Dorland was the whole show at the stick, getting two triples and a single out of four trips to the bat. VanMater and Abrams each poled out two hits, while Dilts, Townley and Dunning hit safely once.

LOCAL GOLFERS COMPETED IN LAKEWOOD TOURNAMENT

The entire East, as well as Canada, was represented in the play for the Shanley Memorial Cup on the links of the Lakewood Country Club, yesterday afternoon, and Plainfield was represented by two of its foremost brassie wielders, W. F. Merrill and C. W. McCutcheon. The trophy was very appropriately won by J. P. McFadden, of Newark, which is the home town of the donor. McFadden, playing for the Forest Hill Club, did 86-15-71.

Merrill, who is a member of the Plainfield Country Club, turned in a card of 111-24-87, and McCutcheon, of the Park Golf Club, did 115-20-95. Since last fall the course has been stiffened by the addition of traps on three holes. Ideal weather prevailed for the eighteen holes medal play. There were thirty-four starters, while twenty-seven cards were returned, about the same number as in previous years.

Y. M. H. A. PLANNING TO PUT OUT STRONG TEAM

Those interested in the athletic work of the local Y. M. H. A. have issued a call for practise and the initial tryouts wil be held the latter part of this week on a field to be announced later. Those at the helm anticipate having one of the strongest combinations that ever represented the local branch and expect to make things lively in the State league which they have entered again this season. Last year, although playing their initial season of league sport, the locals made a good showing and put up some clever fights.

Among the players enlisted to compete as Plainfield representatives this season are several North Plainfield and Plainfield High School stars and these form a fine nucleus around which a combination will be moulded.

SOMERVILLE PLANS FOR BASEBALL TEAM

James S. Parker, of Somerville, has taken hold of the baseball situation in that town and is preparing to turn out an aggregation that will be strong enough to compete with Plainfield and Dunellen during the coming season. Mr. Parker announced yesterday that he intended to form a strong aggregation and the rumors that have been going the rounds concerning the abandonment of the sport in that burg are eroneous. Jack Torpey will not be connected with the team this season, according to the new manager, but a wealth of local material has been unearthed and he is planning to make the sport a paying proposition, which it has not been for years past.

The season will open May 16 when the Westfield club will be entertained at Somerville and on May 23 the Pennington aggregation will furnish the opposition. A dance will be held May 15 in Germania Hall, Somerville, the proceeds of which will go to a fund for the purchase of pharaphanalia for the team. Several Somerville High School stars are being given a tryout and among the veteran material left to pick from is "Red" Grimes, who will captain the team and play short; Eddie Kraft, who will do the pitching; John Hickey on second base; Cunningham in left field; and Porter in right field. Kershaw and Smith, two Somerville High School performers will cover first base and third base respectively. Lou Dixon, of this city, will do the catching Frezza will play center field and Kelley will act as utility man.

M'NAMEE CHOSEN TO LEAD P. H. S. BASKETBALL TEAM

Following a number of postponements the Plainfield High School basketball team met this afternoon and elected Daniel F. McNamee to captain the 1914 team. McNamee, Peacock and Rosenson were the players eligible for election.

The captain-elect has played forward on the team during the past season and is a member of the junior class.

Attractive between-meals-mats may be made of white, dark blue, green, brown, or natural colored linen and decorated with hand embroidery. This artistic design of thistles and leaves may be embroidered on a between-meals-mat in two or more shades of one color, or the natural colorings. The leaves and flowers may be developed in outline-stitch and darning or Kensington stitch, and the scalloped edge should be heavily padded and covered with buttonhole-stitches the color of the linen.

Kensington-stitch consists of overlapping rows of long-and-short-stitch or back-stitch. Each row of stitches should lap deeply into the one preceding, and their direction should be the same as that of the veining of the petal or leaf, or radiating from the flower-center outward. The shading should be done with two strands of two shades. To work to the next, use one strand of the original shade and two of the lighter or darker.

This design, omitting the scalloped edge may also be used as a stencil. Developed in this manner, the design is appropriate for use on a between-meals-mat, runner or an evening scarf of crêpe de chine or chiffon. Beads or tiny spangles may also be used in carrying out this pattern, which is 23 by 40 inches. Explicit directions for stenciling are given on the pattern envelope.

Guaranteed, hot-iron transfer pattern, No. 14169, will be supplied to readers for 15 cents.

SPRING VEAL.

Bouillon.
Veal Fritters.
Endive Salad.
Sweet Wafers.
Orange Sponge.
Tea or Cocoa.

VEAL is at its best in the spring and, though not especially digestible, is served in a great variety of ways. It is a meat which does not keep long. If there is doubt of its freshness it is best to wash it at once, plunge it into boiling water and in ten minutes transfer it to cold water. No other meat is so useful for making soups and gravies.

Using the Shoulder.

Braised Veal.—Take a piece of shoulder weighing five pounds. Have bone removed and tie up meat to make it firm. Put piece of butter size of half an egg, together with a few shavings of onion, into a kettle and let get hot. Salt and pepper the veal and put into kettle, cover tightly and put over a medium fire until meat is brown on both sides, turning it occasionally. Then set kettle on back of stove, where it will simmer slowly for about two and one-half hours. Before setting meat on back of stove see if the juice of the meat, together with the butter, makes gravy enough and if not add a little hot water. Serve gravy hot with hot meat or cold with cold meat.

Stuffed Veal.

Roast Fillet of Veal.—Take a thick piece of veal from the upper part of the leg and have the bone removed. Fill the cavity with stuffing made of one cupful of breadcrumbs, moisten with a half cupful of water, one-third of a cupful melted butter, one-fourth of a teaspoonful of salt, a half teaspoonful of powdered thyme and pepper to taste. Tie into a round shape. Dredge with salt, pepper and flour. Put strips of pork over the top and bake. Add water as soon as the flour has browned and baste often. Cover with a paper to prevent burning and allow half an hour to a pound.

A Dainty For Luncheon.

Veal Fritters.—Take one egg, one and two-thirds cupfuls chopped veal, four tablespoonfuls milk, one-half tablespoonful olive oil, scant half cupful flour, one-eighth teaspoonful salt, white pepper, one-half teaspoonful lemon juice, frying fat. Beat thoroughly the yolk of the egg and add the milk, oil, salt and pepper, flour and lemon juice. Beat the white of the egg stiff and add to the mixture when ready to use. Then stir in the veal, which should not be chopped too fine. Drop with a spoon into slightly smoking fat and fry to a golden brown. Drain on soft paper or cheesecloth. Serve with or without sauce.

The Old Man Loved His Horse.

The Clever Fire Horses Save a Life.

JACK and Evelyn had not been able to sleep very well the night before because they had heard the fire bell ring late at night. Then they had looked out of the window to see the engines fly by, and after that it was difficult to get to sleep.

"I think," said daddy, "I will just tell you a short story, for I am sure you children must be sleepy after such a wakeful night."

"Did you hear anything about the fire last night?" asked Jack. "No one was hurt or anything dreadful like that?"

"The fire," began daddy, "was in a deserted barn on the very outskirts of the town. It was quite near some houses and an inn. So the firemen wanted to do all they could to keep the fire from spreading to the houses, for there was quite a high wind. No one minded if the old barn burnt, for it really was of no use to any one, and the owner of it never bothered to keep it up at all.

"But the fire engine horses made an awful fuss. They heard, what the firemen didn't hear, one of their own kind crying for help in horse language.

"They tried to break from the engines and kicked their heels and made a lot of commotion. They shook their heads and made all sorts of funny sounds.

"Finally one of the firemen said:

"'I have a suspicion that the horses hear something in that barn, and I am going in to investigate, for maybe there is something alive inside. I have never known these horses to make a mistake.'

"So he went in through a broken window, and when he got inside he found a horse trembling with fear at seeing the flames.

"The old fireman unbolted the back door of the barn where the fire had not as yet spread and led the horse out. Then you should have seen the fire engine horses. They were so happy that the old horse had been saved.

"But just at that moment an old man came running out of the inn and crying: 'Oh, save my horse! He's in that barn!'

"And when he saw that his horse had been saved he went over and put his head on the horse's mane, and the horse neighed contentedly.

"The old man had stopped at the inn for the night, and there they had told him he could safely keep his horse in the old barn.

"'Oh, I am so grateful to you!' said the old man to the firemen. 'I love my horse like a very real friend, and he is just as devoted to me. How can I ever thank you?'

"'We're not the ones to thank,' said the fireman who had gone in the barn when the fire horses had seemed so excited. 'Our horses saved your horse's life.'"

MOTHERS' WORK

Contributing Staff.

Mrs. H. E. Parker, chairman; Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. J. L. Evans.

The Daily Press for Thursdays containing the column on Mother's Work will be sent by mail for one dollar a year, in advance.

There was an error in last week's issue in this column about the amount of free literature which the High School Parent-Teacher Association has had for distribution the past year. It should have read, one thousand leaflets and booklets, instead of one hundred.

The following petition which should interest every mother is being circulated: "We, the undersigned do respectfully petition the merchants of Plainfield to close their stores on Saturday afternoons and evenings during the month of August, 1914, keeping them open, if they so desire on Friday evenings.

"In appreciation of their willingness to grant this petition, we do agree to do our usual Saturday shopping on Fridays, and we do further agree to make an especial effort to patronize the Plainfield stores." Many have already signed the petition and we hope others will not delay.

Some mothers try to exact obedience from their children by making them fear almost everything under the sun, both animate and inanimate. "Don't go off the steps, the big dark will get you," "Don't do that, that man will cut your ears off," "If you don't behave, I'll let that boogaboo out of the closet," "Hush crying, or that dog will bite you," and many similar lies, both absurd and cruel have been told to little innocent children.

One day on the train, I overheard a mother who had a child with her about three years of age, say to her friend in a bantering tone, (Heaven help her). "Do you know what I'm going to do with Charlie when we get to the city? I'm going to give him to a big policeman." The child looked at her wonderingly, then sidled away from her. I could not refrain from taking his chubby hand and saying, "You're not afraid of the policemen are you, they just love little boys." It is fortunate that magazine writers and modern Psychologists have taken up this "Fear-Thought" subject, telling us to get rid of fear. Mind-healers, New Thought and some other Philosophers have been telling us the same thing for years, and now modern writers are urging us to teach our children to fear nothing. Don't fear you have eaten the wrong thing; don't fear afraid you will take cold; don't fear contagious diseases; don't fear trouble which most likely will never come; don't fear anything but the consequences of transgressing Nature's laws, which are God's laws.

The April Delineator has a most helpful story on "Have You a Fear-Family?" Borrow it from your neighbor and read it; it may save much needless worry.

Remember Job said "The thing which I feared has come upon me." Horace Fletcher, who "Fletcherizes" in eating, also advocates abolishing Fear and Worry. Prof. Elmer Gates discovered years ago that Fear, worry and anger poison the blood and produces disease.

The Plainfield delegates who attended the International Mothers Congress, at Washington, report an illustrious convention. Dr. Maximillian Groszmann, ore well?loved townsman, gave a magnificent address on "Eugenics."

Mrs. G. Stewart Simons, gave an inspiring report of the Congress before the Dunellen Parent-Teachers' Association, and Mrs. Voorhees gave an interesting address on "Public Recreation," since returning from the convention.

It is urged that more mothers join the State Congress, for its broadening influence is invaluable, while the reports brought to us from our delegates bring us into close touch with the actions of the State National and International bodies.

Judge Bregy in his charge to the jury trying the case of Dr. Joshua Sweet one of the six faculty members of the Medical School of the University of Pennsylvania under indictment charged with wanton cruelty to animals, ruled that vivisection, if the animal suffers pain, is an indictable offense. He said "To indicate a view on the part of these physicians that these operations upon dogs were made for scientific purposes to obtain information for the alleviation of human suffering. I charge you that the law of Pennsylvania does not allow pain and suffering, torment or torture to be inflicted upon dogs for any purpose except for the relief of the suffering of the dog itself." Any one who wantonly or cruelly maims or tortures an animal shall be guilty of an offense."

Mrs. Caroline White President of the Woman's S. P. C. A. said in her reply to local surgeons, that some of the most eminent of the professors of medicine and surgery have declared that progress on these two sciences has been retarded by vivisection. She cites a number of instances from different surgeons, this being among them. Sir Frederick Treves the leading surgeon of today in Great Britain, who was chosen to perform the abdominal operation of King Edward VII, who had himself been a vivisectar, in an address given in 1898, said: "Many years ago I carried out sundry operations upon the intestines of dogs; but such are the differences between the human and canine bowel, that when I came to operate upon man I found I was much hampered by my new experience; that I had everything to unlearn and my experiments had done little but unfit me to deal with human subjects."

The English Parliament has exempted dogs from vivisection and we congratulate Mrs. Van Molgan and those who so nobly fought the battle against vivisection at Rahway, and won the victory.

Religion is a controlling principle, the very essence of which is love and kindness to all of God's creatures.

FINE PERFORMING HORSES WITH ROBBINS CIRCUS

Intelligent animals, especially horses, always attract attention and interest those who watch them perform. With the Frank A. Robbins circus, which comes here for the benefit of the Open-Air School, Monday, is a splendid troupe of 8 imported Belgian stallions. These beautiful black animals, under the direction of Prof. Joseph Beris, provide 15 minutes entertainment during the Robbins show each day, and are without exception the finest specimens of performing animals in the country. They are but one feature of an all feature show, which is declared to be bigger and better than ever this year. The Great Charbino, who slides from the top of the tent to the ground on a slender pole while balanced on his head; the best known men and women bare-back riders in the country today; famous aerilists, acrobats par excellence; the Cevene troup of wire walkers, who have just returned from a triumphant tour of South America, and many others will be seen when the show comes here. A splendid band gives concerts before each performance; there is a big street parade in the morning, and with the show is a menagerie doubled in size over that of last year.

"DAVID COPPERFIELD" IN PICTURES GREAT PRODUCTION

The film version of Dickens' "David Copperfield," in seven parts, which will be shown at the Y. M. C. A. tomorrow and Saturday, is regarded as one of the finest accomplishments of the motion picture industry. It was produced by a splendid company of players under the direction of that master craftsman, Thomas Bentley. For sheer beauty, the picture, with its quaint old English settings, has never been surpassed.

Photographically, it leaves nothing to be desired. The innovation of having the scenes dissolve into one another instead of the usual abrupt cutting is most pleasing. "David Copperfield" is a picture of such rare merit that it has been selected to follow "Les Miserables" at the Carnegie Lyceum, New York, where it is now being exhibited.

RECREATION NOTES

The Civic Club, which is one of the regular clubs which uses the public school buildings under the auspices of the Public Recreation Committee, is to depart this evening from its ordinary process of business. A number of interesting and varied papers are to be read by the members of the club upon subects of broad scope and purpose. Miss Erilka Holpainen is to tell the club about "National Lighthouses." Dominick Mathews will read a paper on "The Gulf Stream." A. Goldberg will interest the club in "The National Parks." Walter Betley has "The Panama Canal" as his topic for discussion. Harry Isaacson will talk about "The Seed Farms of California."

The Dramatic Club, which meets in the Washington School, is beginning to plan for another play. Soon an earnest and hard-working cast will be at work, practising faithfully for one, or maybe two, other productions. They set themselves so high a standard in the presentation of their first play, "Paddle Your Own Canoe," that the Recreation Committee and their friends are wondering how they can surpass their efforts.

FEATURES AT PROCTOR'S.

A series of detective "movies" will be inaugurated today at Proctor's with "The Mysteries of the Silver Snare," will be shown. Other features on the schedule for today are "David Grey's Estate," "Skelly's Birthday," "Bill Tell, Pawnbroker," "It Came by Freight," "Cupid's Caprice," and "In the Wolve's Fang." The big feature for tomorrow, is "The Vanity Case," together with several comedies.

CHAPTER XIV.

Locked Out.

WAITSTILL was almost stunned by the suddenness of this catastrophe. She stood with her feet rooted to the earth for several minutes and then walked slowly away out of sight of the house. There was a chair beside the grindstone under the Porter apple tree, and she sank into it, crossed her arms on the back and, bowing her head on them, burst into a fit of weeping as tempestuous and passionate as it was silent, for, although her body fairly shook with sobs, no sound escaped.

The minutes passed, perhaps an hour; she did not take account of time. The moon went behind clouds, the night grew misty, and the stars faded one by one. There would be rain tomorrow, and there was a great deal of hay cut, so she thought in a vagrant sort of way.

Meanwhile Patty upstairs was in a state of suppressed excitement and terror. It was a quarter of an hour before her father settled himself in bed, then an age it seemed to her before she heard his heavy breathing. When she thought it quite safe she slipped on a print wrapper, took her shoes in her hand and crept noiselessly downstairs, out through the kitchen and into the shed. Lifting the heavy bar that held the big doors in place, she closed them softly behind her, stepped out and looked about her in the darkness. Her quick eye espied in the distance near the barn the bowed figure in the chair, and she flew through the wet grass without a thought of her bare feet till she reached her sister's side and held her in a close embrace.

"My darling! My own, own poor darling!" she cried softly, the tears running down her cheeks. "How wicked, how unjust, to serve my dearest sister so! Don't cry, my blessing, don't cry! You frighten me! I'll take care of you, dear. Next time I'll interfere. I'll scratch and bite, yes, I'll strangle anybody that dares to shame you and lock you out of the house—you, the dearest, the patientest, the best!"

Waitstill wiped her eyes. "Let us go farther away where we can talk," she whispered.

"Where had we better sleep?" Patty asked. "On the hay, I think, though we shall stifle with the heat," and Patty moved toward the barn.

"No, you must go back to the house at once, Patty, dear. Father might wake and call you and that would make matters worse. It's beginning to drizzle or I should stay out in the air. Oh, I wonder if father's mind is going and if this is the beginning of the end! If he is in his sober senses he could not be so strange, so suspicious, so unjust."

"He could be anything, say anything, do anything!" exclaimed Patty. "Perhaps he is not responsible and perhaps he is; it doesn't make much difference to us. Come along, blessed darling! I'll tuck you in and then I'll creep back to the house if you say I must. I'll go down and make the kitchen fire in the morning; you stay out here and see what happens. A good deal will happen, I'm thinking, if father speaks to me of you! I shouldn't be surprised to see the fur flying in all directions. I'll seize the first moment to bring you out a cup of coffee and we'll consult about what to do. I may tell you now I'm all for running away!"

Waitstill's first burst of wretchedness had subsided and she had recovered her balance. "I'm afraid we must wait a little longer, Patty," she advised. "Don't mention my name to father, but see how he acts in the morning. He was so wild, so unlike himself, that I almost hope he may forget what he said and sleep it off. Yes, we must just wait."

"No doubt he'll be far calmer in the morning if he remembers that, if he turns you out, he faces the prospect of three meals a day cooked by me," said Patty. "That's what he thinks he would face; but, as a matter of fact, I shall tell him that where you sleep I sleep, and where you eat I eat, and when you stop cooking I stop! He won't part with two unpaid servants in a hurry, not at the beginning of haying." And Patty, giving Waitstill a last hug and a dozen tearful kisses, stole reluctantly back to the house by the same route through which she had left it.

Patty was right. She found the fire lighted when she went down into the kitchen next morning, and without a word she hurried breakfast on to the table as fast as she could cook and serve it. Waitstill was safe in the barn chamber, she knew, and would be there quietly while her father was feeding the horse and milking the cows, or perhaps she might go up in the woods and wait until she saw him driving away.

The deacon ate his breakfast in silence, looking and acting very much as usual, for he was generally dumb at meals. When he left the house, however, and climbed into the wagon, he turned around and said in his ordinary gruff manner: "Bring the lunch up to the field yourself today, Patience. Tell your sister I hope she's come to her senses in the course of the night. You've got to learn, both of you, that my 'say so' must be law in this house. You can fuss and you can fume if it amuses you any, but 'twon't do no good. Don't encourage Waitstill in any whinin' or blubberin'. Jest tell her to come in and go to work and I'll overlook what she done this time. And don't you give me any more of your eye snappin' and lip poutin' and head in the air imperdence! You're under age, and if you don't look out you'll get somethin' that's good for what ails you! You two girls jest aid an' abet one another—that's what you do, aid and abet one another—an' if you carry it any further I'll find some way o' separatin' you, do you hear?"

Patty spoke never a word nor fluttered an eyelash. She had a proper spirit, but now her heart was cold with a new fear, and she felt, with Waitstill, that her father must be obeyed and his temper kept within bounds until God provided them a way of escape.

She ran out to the barn chamber and, not finding Waitstill, looked across the field and saw her coming through the path from the woods. Patty waved her hand and ran to meet her sister, joy at the mere fact of her existence, of being able to see her again and of hearing her dear voice almost choking her in its intensity. When they reached the house she helped her upstairs as if she were a child, brought her cool water to wash away the dust of the haymow, laid out some clean clothes for her and finally put her on the lounge in the darkened sitting room.

"I won't let anybody come near the house," she said, "and you must have a cup of tea and a good sleep before I tell you all that father said. Just comfort yourself with the thought that he is going to overlook it this time. After I carry up his luncheon I shall stop at the store and ask Cephas to come out on the river bank for a few minutes. Then I shall proceed to say what I think of him for telling father where you went yesterday afternoon."

"Don't blame Cephas!" Waitstill remonstrated. "Can't you see just how it happened? He and Uncle Bart were sitting in front of the shop when I drove by. When father came home and found the house empty and the horse not in the stall, of course he asked where I was, and Cephas probably said he had seen me drive up Saco hill. He had no reason to think that there was any harm in that."

"If he had any sense he might know that he shouldn't tell anything to father except what happens in the store," Patty insisted. "Were you frightened out in the barn alone last night, poor dear?"

"I was too unhappy to think of fear, and I was chiefly nervous about you, all alone in the house with father."

"I didn't like it very much myself. I buttoned my bedroom door and sat by the window all night, shivering and bristling at the least sound. Everybody calls me a coward, but I'm not. Courage isn't not being frightened. It's not screeching when you are frightened. Now, what happened at the Boyntons?"

"Patty, Ivory's mother is the most pathetic creature I ever saw." And Waitstill sat up on the sofa, her long braids of hair hanging over her shoulders, her pale face showing the traces of her heavy weeping. "I never pitied any one so much in my whole life. To go up that long, long lane; to come upon that dreary house hidden away in the trees; to feel the loneliness and the silence and then to know that she is living there like a hermit thrush in a forest without a woman to care for her it is heart breaking!"

"How does the house look—dreadful?"

"No. Everything is as neat as wax. She isn't 'crazy,' Patty, as we understand the word. Her mind is beclouded somehow, and it almost seems as if the cloud might lift at any moment. She goes about like somebody in a dream, sewing or knitting or cooking. It is only when she talks, and you notice that her eyes really see nothing, but are looking beyond you, that you know there is anything wrong."

"If she appears so like other people, why don't the neighbors go to see her once in awhile?"

"Callers make her unhappy, she says, and Ivory told me that he dared not encourage any company in the house for fear of exciting her and making her an object of gossip besides. He knows her ways perfectly and that she is safe and content with her fancies when she is alone, which is seldom, after all."

"What does she talk about?" asked Patty.

"Her husband mostly. She is expecting him to come back daily. We knew that before, of course, but no one can realize it till they see her setting the table for him and putting a saucer of wild strawberries by his plate, going about the kitchen softly, like a gentle ghost."

"It gives me the shudders!" said Patty. "I couldn't bear it. If she never sees strangers, what in the world did she make of you? How did you begin?"

"I told her I had known Ivory ever since we were school children. She was rather strange and indifferent at first and then she seemed to take a fancy to me."

"That's queer!" said Patty, smiling fondly and giving Waitstill's hair the hasty brush of a kiss.

"She told me she had a girl baby, born two or three years after Ivory, and that she had always thought it died when it was a few weeks old. Then suddenly she came closer to me"—

"Oh, Waity, weren't you terrified?"

"No, not in the least. Neither would you have been if you had been there. She put her arms round me and all at once I understood that the poor thing mistook me just for a moment for her own daughter come back to life. It was a sudden fancy, and I don't think it lasted, but I didn't know how to deal with it or contradict it, so I simply tried to soothe her and let her ease her heart by talking to me. She said when I left her: 'Where is your house? I hope it is near! Do come again and sit with me. Strength flows into my weakness when you hold my hand.' I somehow feel, Patty, that she needs a woman friend even more than a doctor. And now, what am I to do? How can I forsake her, and yet here is this new difficulty with father?"

"I shouldn't forsake her. Go there when you can, but be more careful about it. You told father that you didn't regret what you had done, and that when he ordered you to do unreasonable things you should disobey him. After all, you are not a black slave. Father will never think of that particular thing again, perhaps, any more than he ever alluded to my driving to Saco with Mrs. Day after you had told him it was necessary for one of us to go there occasionally. He knows that if he is too hard on us Dr. Perry or Uncle Bart would take him in hand. They would have done it long ago if we had ever given any one even a hint of what we have to endure. You will be all right because you only want to do kind, neighborly things. I am the one that will always have to suffer because I can't prove that it's a Christian duty to deceive father and steal off to a dance or a frolic. Yet I might as well be a nun in a convent for all the fun I get. I want a white book muslin dress; I want a pair of thin shoes with buckles; I want a white hat, with a wreath of yellow roses; I want a volume of Byron's poems, and, oh, nobody knows—nobody but the Lord could understand—how I want a string of gold beads!"

"Patty, Patty! To hear you chatter anybody would imagine you thought of nothing but frivolities. I wish you wouldn't do yourself such injustice. Even when nobody hears you but me, it is wrong."

"Sometimes when you think I'm talking nonsense it's really the gospel truth," said Patty. "I'm not a grand, splendid character, Waitstill, and it's no use your deceiving yourself about me. If you do you'll be disappointed."

"Go and parboil the beans and get them into the pot, Patty. Pick up some of the windfalls and make a green apple pie, and I'll be with you in the kitchen myself before long. I never expect to be disappointed in you, Patty—only continually surprised and pleased."

"I thought I'd begin making some soft soap today," said Patty mischievously as she left the room. "We have enough grease saved up. We don't really need it yet, but it makes such a disgusting smell that I'd rather like father to have it with his dinner. It's not much of a punishment for our sleepless night."

QUIT MEAT WHEN KIDNEYS BOTHER
Take a Glass of Salts if Your Back Hurts or Bladder Troubles You.

No man or woman who eats meat regularly can make a mistake by flushing the kidneys occasionally, says a well-known authority. Meat forms uric acid which clogs the kidney pores so they sluggishly filter or strain only part of the waste and poisons from the blood, then you get sick. Nearly all rheumatism, headaches, liver trouble, nervousness, constipation, dizziness, sleeplessness, bladder disorders come from sluggish kidneys.

The moment you feel a dull ache in the kidneys or your back hurts, or if the urine is cloudy, offensive, full of sediment, irregular of passage or attended by a sensation of scalding, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any reliable pharmacy and take a tablespoonful fn a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to activity, also to neutralize the acids in urine so it no longer causes irritation, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts is inexpensive and cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which all regular meat eaters should take now and then to keep the kidneys clean and the blood pure, thereby avoiding serious kidney complications.—Adv.

Rubber-Soled Oxfords Again in Great Vogue

Formerly they were regarded as a luxury, or for athletic wear; but now they have come into general popularity for all around use.

They are very sensible shoes to wear. The flat, low heel lasts are not only natty looking, but so comfortable that you can tramp for miles, golf or "tennis" all day without tiring.

The leather welt and leather insole between the upper and the rubber sole prevent "burning." Made for flexibility and serviceability.

Shown in tan calf and white buck. English last with Blind Eyelets. High and low cut.

PENNSYLVANIA Oilproof VACUUM CUP TIRES

Use them. They rob the oiled road of its tire terrors. They resist the rotting effects of oil which soaks into the tread and speedily ruins ordinary tires—those not guaranteed against oil.

Vacuum Cup Tires are the only oil resisting tires on the market. This crowning improvement is added to the anti-skid and long service features which have made Vacuum Cup Tires the choice of the wise motorist during the past 3 seasons.

The guarantees on Vacuum Cup Tires go the limit.
